SAW BEATTIE KILL WIFE, SAYS WRITER

Tells Prosecutor He Was Bribed by Accused Husband to Keep Silent.

MAY REOPEN THE TRIAL

Prisoner, Unconcerned, Expects Jury to Stand Seven for Conviction and Five for Acquittal.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 6.—All plans of the prosecution in the case of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., on trial for the murder of his wife, may be changed as the result of a letter received to-night by Commonwealth's Attorney Wendenberg from a man who says he was an eye witness to the killing of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie. Mr. Wendenburg states that he may ask the court to-morrow to reopen the case for the introduction of the new evidence before the final addresses to the jury.

The stranger, whose name is kept secret, will tell of hearing heated words which ran like this:

"I am tired of this; I am going to end it."

"How are you going to end it?"

"I'll show you how; I'd just as soon kill you as not."

Then, the witness will say, the man slew the woman, and he will describe the scene in detail.

Prosecutor Wendenberg will prove, he says, that Beattie afterward gave this man money, bought him clothes, and sent him away so that he would not be able to appear against him.

Mr. Wendenberg says that the man's story so fully bears out the idea of the prosecution in regard to the death of Henry Beattie's wife that he is eager to have him brought on as a witness.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE, Va., Sept. 6.—"I am innocent and feel that the jury is all right," said Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., the alleged wife murderer, in his cell here to-day. "I am going to get out of here. If I don't do it on this trial I will do it on the next one," he added.

Asked if he did not think it would be hard to get an unprejudiced jury for a second trial, Beattie said:

"There certainly will be. Every one, I think, had formed an opinion against me before the trial. Every one thought me guilty. If I had read the same things in the papers about some one else I would have thought the same. I don't blame them. But I know I am innocent, and I cannot see how the jury can vote otherwise after hearing the testimony in the case. I do not expect a quick verdict. I have doped the jury as being five for acquittal and seven for conviction.

"By the way, boys," he suddenly asked the reporters, "how's the betting in town?"

When told odds had been placed for a "hung" jury, he said:

"That's what I really think, too."

"Do you think Beulah Binford is going on the stage?" he was asked.

"I do not know what she would do if she were to go on the stage. She has no voice, or at most a very weak one, and she has not a bit of talent in the world. However," he added, "if she should take Sheriff Gill to New York with her I would predict a howling success for their act."

Sheriff Gill and his stubby whiskers have been an amusing feature of the trial, and the man whose fate the jury will soon decide, laughed heartily as he thought of Beulah Binford and the chin-whiskered Sheriff doing a turn in vaudeville.

"Do you think the defense would have called Beulah Binford?" Beattie was asked.

"Certainly. Why not. Had she not been held incommunicado in jail I'm positive Mr. Smith would have put her on."

"What do you think of the testimony in rebuttal yesterday?"

"Nothing to it," laughed the prisoner. "The witnesses made absolutely no impression on the jury. It's a wonder to me that a certain one of them had not been afraid of being struck dead, he lied so unmercifully."

At this juncture the Sheriff arrived with Henry's dinner and the interview ended.

Beulah Binford will be released from jail to-morrow. Her mother says she will take her to the country until the trial is ended. The Binford girl says:

"Me for Broadway as soon as I get out of this hole."

Judge Watson will also issue the order when court convenes in the morning.

Judge Watson to-day received a telegram from a man in Chicago advising that Paul Beattie be indicted as an accessory, the Chicagoan declaring he would come to Chesterfield Court House to testify if it was so desired.

Detective L. L. Scherer, who has been working up the case of the prosecution, to-night repudiated any such purpose as to Paul Beattie, but said that the investigation as to the Binford girl had not been completed.

"I do not attach much importance to it," said Scherer, "and it is quite probable that Beulah Binford will be released to-morrow. Yet we are working on the information received, and will continue to do so, regardless of her release to-morrow or the verdict in the case."

The argument over the instructions to be given to the jury occupied three hours to-day. The instructions are brief, and will not be made public until given to the jury to-morrow. They are similar, however, to those given in the famous murder case against Mayor McCue of Charlottesville, Va., six years ago, when the Virginia Supreme Court set a precedent in determining not to thrust aside what it regarded as an evidently fair verdict merely on legal technicalities.

Judge Watson declared to-night that after delivering the instructions to the jury to-morrow he intended to ask how long a time was desired by counsel for the argument, and if it was not an unreasonable period he would grant it. He added, however, that he would suggest to counsel the completion of the argument by to-morrow night, and that if the jury did not appear to be very fatigued he would ask them to retire at once and find a verdict. It is not considered likely that the lawyers will be able to finish their summing up to-morrow, and it is expected that they will be continued over until Friday morning. It is now quite certain, however, that the case will go to the jury not later than Friday noon.

J. M. Gregory, the Commonwealth Attorney, will open the case for the prosecution, and will be followed by Attorneys Harry M. Smith, Jr., and Hill Carter for the defense, the concluding speech being made by L. O. Wendenburg of the prosecution.

The prosecution's main broadsides will be delivered along the same lines as characterized its rigid cross-examination of the prisoner, and will centre about the one question:

"How did the same gun which Paul Beattie bought for his cousin Henry on Saturday, July 15, come to be in the hands of the alleged highwayman on Midlothian Turnpike on the night of Tuesday, July 18?"

The defense has attempted to puncture the story of Paul Beattie, the cousin of the accused, who not only told of the purchase of the weapon but of the alleged confession of the prisoner to him of having committed the crime. The defense by numerous witnesses endeavored to impeach the veracity of Paul as to his having transferred the gun to Henry on Saturday night, July 15, and by one witness, E. H. Neblitt, charged that Paul had a shotgun with him on Sunday, July 16, at the bridge where he was employed as a watchman. The Commonwealth introduced several witnesses to combat the testimony of Neblitt.

Other points in Paul's story of his meetings with Henry have been attacked, but the Commonwealth considers that his story nevertheless remains intact in its main features.

TREASURE FOUND IN OPORTO.

Riches in Cathedral Vaults of Which Church Was Ignorant.

OPORTO, Sept. 6.—Agents of the Government while taking an inventory of church property have found in the underground vaults of the cathedral here a great amount of treasure, as to the existence of which the authorities of the Church were almost entirely ignorant.

The accumulations of wealth date from the centuries when Portugal was a rich colonial power.

Chests that have been discovered are filled with gold ingots and plates and gold ornaments studded with enormous rubies. Altar furniture of pure gold has been found.

The discoveries have caused a sensation in this city.

It is presumed that the treasure will revert to the State under the Separation law.

The Sé, or Cathedral of Oporto, is one of the oldest ecclesiastical buildings in Portugal. It was originally a Romanesque structure, but was rebuilt in the Gothic style. Above ground there are now few remains of the earlier building, and the interior is not impressive.

That Portugal is rich in art treasures—is, in fact, the best hunting ground remaining in Europe—has been recognized for some years by discerning collectors. France, Italy, and even Spain have been scoured for precious objects, but Portugal is still a mine of wealth, and the operation of the law separating Church and State, involving the investigation of the property of the churches, is likely to result in many interesting finds.

ACID-LADEN CAR RUNS WILD.

Clears Load of Passengers, but Demolishes Two Small Buildings.

A runaway trolley car created a lot of excitement on Richmond Turnpike, in Tompkinsville, S. I., yesterday morning, besides sending one man to the hospital with slight injuries, and almost totally demolishing two buildings. The car, which was of the box variety and laden with acid, was in charge of Motorman Timothy O'Dwyer and the Conductor Joseph Dicorone. It belonged to the Richmond Railroad Company.

It started from Lewis Street and soon the motorman lost control of it, the brake refusing to work. It ran rapidly along the Richmond Turnpike, passing three switches by the way. At one of these a car laden with passengers was waiting. The conductor saw the runaway car approaching and fearing it might collide with his car warned the passengers to alight. However, it passed on without accident.

After running three-quarters of a mile, the car left the track at Montgomery Avenue and ran into the shoe shop of Morris Seegal, a two-story frame structure, tearing out the front. Turning to the side the car next totally demolished the one-story frame building occupied by Louis de Martini, barber, 51 Richmond Turnpike. De Martini's assistant, Harry Razzo, who was inside, was injured and was taken to the Schmidt Infirmary.

Both the conductor and motorman of the runaway car jumped before it left the track and escaped severe injury. It was not until late in the afternoon that the wreckers removed the debris of the car away from the demolished barber shop. Great crowds were attracted to the scene.

TOADSTOOLS KILL TWO MORE

Many Others Ill in Mount Vernon from Eating Them for Mushrooms.

A toll of two more deaths and nine cases of serious illness was paid in this city and Mount Vernon yesterday as a result of poisonous toadstools picked in nearby fields and woods on Monday, and eaten under the impression that they were mushrooms. At least one of the victims now ill may die.

Mushrooms have been growing plentifully in the fields near Mount Vernon and in the Bronx owing to the warm weather following the recent heavy rains. On Monday Pasquale Bianco of 221 South Fifth Street, Mount Vernon, went out to pick a quantity of them, and on his return home distributed some among his friends. Later in the day he and every one of those to whom he had given the fungi was seized with intestinal pains. Bianco's sufferings grew so intense that he was removed to the Mount Vernon Hospital yesterday morning at 9:45 o'clock. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon he died there.

The others who are seriously ill with toadstool poisoning at their homes are Florence and Anthony Bianco, children of the dead man; Mrs. Sophie Bonavita, F. di Marzo, Mrs. di Marzo, Charles Seiralli, Ralph Filicell, and Ereco Calvino, all neighbors of Bianco.

Mrs. Marietta Casico of 294 Pleasant Avenue, this city, died yesterday as a result of eating toadstools she believed to be mushrooms. Her husband, Pietro, who partook of the dish she cooked of them, is dangerously ill.

MORE POLITICIANS INDICTED.

Ten Bills Drawn by Ellsor Grand Jury in Jersey Election Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 6.—Ten more secret indictments were returned to-day by the ellsor drawn Grand Jury in the election cases. The jurors immediately retired to their quarters.

Justice Samuel Kalish received the bills, looked them over critically, and passed them to County Clerk Samuel Kirby, with explicit instructions not to allow them to be made public until next Wednesday, when those indicted will appear to plead and enter bail.

County Clerk Kirby took them into his private office, where they were scanned by the county officials behind closed doors. It is said two men "higher up" are named in the bills, and names are mentioned in the streets, but the court gave warning that publication of the names of those indicted before the defendants were in custody would probably mean indictment for contempt of court.

Attorney General Edmund Wilson caused panic among the machine people this morning when he announced that no more bail bonds would be accepted by the New York bonding company represented by Bob Johnson, who is also under indictment, and who has given bonds for almost all who have been indicted thus far. This places the men indicted to-day under the necessity of getting private bail.

UP-STATE WILL YIELD TO TAMMANY PLAN

Murphy's Congress District Map to be Accepted and City Will Get All the New Members.

CLASH ON DIRECT PRIMARIES

Governor to Have Conference with Leaders—Grady Assumes Leadership of Senate in Absence of Wagner.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 6.—With brief sessions in both houses, the Legislature to-night resumed its labors There was a small attendance, and only the necessary routine was taken up. Both houses are scheduled to meet again at noon to-morrow, when, in all probability, a recess will be taken for ten days.

The only initiative taken in connection with the various matters the Legislature is called upon to consider related to the Congressional reapportionment. A special committee of seven members was provided for by resolution passed in each house to formulate and report a Congressional Reapportionment bill. In the meantime it is thoroughly understood that the Tammany leader, Charles F. Murphy, and his lieutenants in and out of the Legislature, in advance of anything this select committee may do, have mapped out Congressional districts to suit the organization.

The Tammany plan contemplates giving all the six additional districts allotted to this State to New York City, thus giving the city more than half the entire delegation from this State to the House of Represenatives. While protests have been raised against this plan here and there throughout the State, it appeared to-night from statements made by up-State Democrats that there would be little, if any, opposition to it within the Democratic majority. The up-State lawmakers realise that practically the only increase in population in the State, as shown by the last United State census, was in New York City.

Aside from reapportionment, the mapping out of a programme for the deferred session is awaiting a conference between the Governor and the Legislative leaders, scheduled for to-morrow morning. At this conference the advisability of enacting a direct nominations law will be strongly urged upon the leaders by Gov. Dix, in redemption of the pledge made in the Rochester platform, on which the Democratic Party was returned to power in this State. In this the Governor will have the strong support of a majority of the up-State Democrats in both houses. Nothing could be further from the mind, either of Mr. Murphy or William Barnes, Jr., Republican State Chairman, than to let the direct primary pledges made in both party platforms stand in the way of continuing the time honored convention system of making nominations for public office.

There are some lawmakers here who look for a sharp clash between the Governor and the Democratic lawmakers who are of his way of thinking and the Tammany chieftain and his following in the Legislature. Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, when the Governor's Direct Nominations bill was before the Senate prior to the recess, denounced that measure as a sham and a fraud, declared to-night that he would do his utmost to have the deferred session enact a bona fide direct primaries bill, no matter how long it took the Legislature to do it. Speaker Frisbie said that he most heartily agreed with the Governor, and that he would use his influence in support of the Governor's recommendation. The Governor's plan is likely to get more support in the Assembly than in the Senate, because a number of Assemblymen who were elected on a direct primary platform will be called upon to go back to their constituencies for re-election this Fall.

The illness and absence of Senator Robert F. Wagner, President pro tem. of the Senate, will inevitably prolong the session. Where originally it had been intended to finish up the work in a couple of weeks, the legislative leaders admitted to-night that the session might last a month, possibly longer. While the leadership should automatically fall on the shoulders of Senator James J. Frawley, who is Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Senator Thomas F. Grady, the veteran Democratic leader in the upper house, assumed the leadership of the majority when the Senate met to-night. On his motion, supported by a speech, in which he voiced his feeling of regret at Senator Wagner's enforced absence, the Senate will send a message of sympathy and condolence to the stricken leader, who has been operated upon for appendicitis.

None of the measures which will absorb the attention of the lawmakers at the deferred session was introduced to-night. It was announced that neither the proposed New York City charter nor the Apportionment act would be ready for presentation to the Legislature before the recess, which will be taken to-morrow. As to the fate of the charter, the greatest uncertainty prevails among the leaders. The Republicans from New York City will oppose it, as Assemblyman Ahearn, Republican, of Kings, has a bill amending the present New York City charter so as to eliminate the Mayor's veto in franchise matters.

In the Assembly bills can be introduced only by unanimous consent, and this was not forthcoming. Assemblyman James J. Hoey of New York, who has a good deal to do with the preparation of the proposed New York City charter, said this evening that this measure had been amended so as to meet virtually all objections advanced at the public hearing until at the present time practically the only vital points in dispute were the provision giving the Mayor an insuperable veto over Subway contracts and that for a paid Board of Education. For all that the City Club will appear before Gov. Dix to-morrow through a large delegation, which will enter a blanket protest against the passage of the charter at this time.

NOVEL WAR ON STRIKERS.

Some Men in Shops Not Affected Laid Off to Fill Their Places.

The Employers' Association of Architectural Iron Workers put into effect yesterday a novel way of fighting the strike of the inside iron workers. After a conference with representatives of the National Erectors' Association, whose members employ the housesmiths, it was decided by the local association to lay off 20 per cent. of the inside ironworkers in each shop, who can, if they choose, find employment in the shops of the Lieberman & Sanford Company and Rubin & Rubin, the only firms affected by the strike so far, the intention of the union being not to order a general strike, but to order strikes in a shop or two at a time.

When the two firms affected by the strike have had their shops manned the rest of the men who have been laid off will be taken back in the other shops.

GERMANY DEMANDS FRENCH GUARANTEE

Foreign Secretary Delivers Reply to French Proposals to Ambassador Cambon.

OUTLOOK BELIEVED HOPEFUL

But Alarmist Rumors Are Still Current and Run on Banks at Stettin Continues.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, and Herr von Kiderlen-Wächter, the Imperial Foreign Secretary, conferred this evening for forty-five minutes, and the German reply to the French proposals was delivered.

According to the Cologne Gazette's semi-official dispatch the German counter-proposal demands a full guarantee regarding important economic interests in Morocco, concerning which technical advice must be taken before the conclusion of the agreement. This will require care and time. Much preparatory work, however, has already been accomplished in the details of the guarantee and territorial compensation, so that, with good will on both sides, an early result may be hoped for.

The Lokal Anzeiger says that the French proposals and the German counter-proposals each contain a basis for an understanding and that their amalgamation will end the nightmare of a month's duration.

The Cologne Gazette says: "We are convinced that Germany and France will not cross swords over the Moroccan question."

The nervousness of the uninformed public, however, continues to be nourished by the increasing crop of wild rumors, though the run on the savings banks has been confined to Stettin. In that city the run on the banks continued to-day, and all attempts of the banking officials to reassure the depositors proved fruitless.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—Tension over the Moroccan situation has been somewhat relieved by impressions, derived both from Berlin and from official quarters in Paris, that an agreement is more likely since the French proposals have been read by the Emperor and the Imperial Chancellor.

The anxiety has by no means disappeared, but a certain confidence has been inspired by the published statement of sober-minded journals, such as the Temps, that the probabilities of an accord being reached have sensibly increased.

The Foreign Office maintains complete silence regarding the progress of the negotiations.

MRS. M'CORMICK COMING EAST

After Brief Stop at Cleveland She Will Visit Pocantico Hills.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, expects to leave Chicago Friday for Cleveland, going thence to Pocantico Hills, where she will join her parents. The announcement that she had hurriedly left on Monday for the East to visit her father was premature.

The statement of her plans was given out to-night by the butler at the McCormick town house, 1,000 Lake Shore Drive, who said he was authorized by Mrs. McCormick.

Asked if he could give a specific reason why Mrs. McCormick had hastily recalled her invitations to a dinner dance at her Summer residence in Lake Forest on Tuesday evening and moved to her town house, the butler said he was forbidden by Mrs. McCormick to give out any further news concerning her. He said, however, that Mrs. McCormick was not ill and had not been ill.

Mr. McCormick was found at the Lake Forest Summer home. He said regarding Mrs. McCormick:

"She expects to leave the latter part of the week to join her parents in the East."

"Will the children accompany her?"

"That has not been decided yet," replied Mr. McCormick, who denied the published statement that his wife is ill.

An hour later Mr. McCormick was said to have left the Lake Forest home and to be on his way to join his wife at the town house. At the latter place, however, although it was admitted that Mr. McCormick was expected home for a late dinner, he failed to arrive.

AIGRETTE SELLER ARRESTED.

Woman the First Prisoner Under New Law—May Be Fined $2,060.

The first arrest in this city under the law which became effective Sept. 1 last making it unlawful to offer for sale aigrettes and making the offender liable to a fine of $25 for each quill so offered was made yesterday afternoon by Delmar C. Steenburgh, an agent of the Bureau of Marine Fisheries and Conservation Commission. Mrs. H. B. McCulloch, a widow, 33 years old, of 430 West 119th Street, was arrested in her apartment after she had advertised feathers for sale and had offered Mr. Steenburgh eighty aigrettes for $9.50.

Mrs. McCulloch was taken to the Harlem Court and arraigned before Magistrate Appleton. She waived examination and was held in $500 bail for trial.

Steenburgh told the Court of the inhuman treatmont suffered by the parent bird, when not slain outright, when the aigrette feathers are obtained, and Magistrate Appleton was much interested. The agent told the court that a fine of $60 is imposed by the new law upon a person found guilty of offering aigrette feathers for sale, and an additional fine of $25 for each quill offered. If found guilty, he said, Mrs. McCulloch would be liable to a fine of $2,060.

Mrs. McCulloch said the feathers had been sent her by a friend in South America, who had requested her to dispose of them. She told the court that she was ignorant of the new law.

After the preliminary hearing, Agent Steenburgh said that information had been received in this city to the effect that aigrette feathers are being smuggled into Philadelphia in large quantities, and that a number had been forwarded to this city for disposal. The National Association of Audubon Societies advocated the passage of the new law.

ASTOR OFFERS $1,000 AS MARRIAGE FEE

Rev. Dr. E. C. Johnson, Newport Baptist, Refuses to Perform Ceremony with Miss Force.

METHODIST ALSO DECLINES

Clergyman Told That Wedding Was Planned for To-day—No Application Made for a License.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—John Jacob Astor has made an offer of $1,000 to the Rev. Dr. Edward C. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Newport, as a fee if the minister would marry him to Miss Madeleine T. Force. Dr. Johnson refused to officiate at the wedding. The offer was made through an attorney of Newport, William P. Sheffield, who told the clergyman that the ceremony was planned for some time between Monday and Thursday of this week.

Dr. Johnson was the first of the clergymen in this location to be asked to perform the ceremony, the request being made Aug. 29. The clergyman acknowledged being in the lawyer's office on that day, and was informed by Mr. Sheffield that Col. Astor was willing to pay $1,000 for the service and no more.

"Mr. Sheffield and myself talked the subject over," said Dr. Johnson, "and before Col. Astor's name was mentioned Mr. Sheffield stated he had a client who wanted to get married. I asked him if it was Col. Astor and he replied yes, stating Col. Astor wanted to be married between Monday and Thursday of this week, but he did not set any definite day.

"It was a lot of money to refuse and a big temptation, but I would not marry Col. Astor, no matter what might be offered me," added the clergyman.

Dr. Johnson is soon retiring, temporarily at least, from the ministry because of defective eyesight, and goes to his former home in Philadelphia at the close of the month. It is plain Col. Astor is unable to obtain a minister hereabout to marry him.

Under the recently enacted State law of Rhode Island it is necessary for a non-resident to file notice of intention to wed five days before the marriage license can be issued. Miss Force is not a resident of Rhode Island, and up to the closing of the City Hall to-night no application for a license nor any statement of intention had been filed.

Beechwood, the Newport residence of Col. Astor, remained open, and Newport society expects that the ceremony will take place here. Any Justice of the Supreme could perform the ceremony, and one of the Justices, Darius Baker, lives here. He, however, has not been asked to marry Col. Astor and Miss Force.

Vincent Astor was at the Horse Show this afternoon.

The Rev. Frederick L. Brooks, pastor of the Methodist Church of Little Compton, R. I., has been asked to officiate at the marriage of Col. Astor and Miss Force and has declined, owing to the restrictions which his Church places on the marriage of divorced persons. According to the Rev. Mr. Brooks, the date of the wedding was set for to-morrow and was supposed to occur in Newport.

Friends of Col. John Jacob Astor said yesterday that he would probably go to his country place at Rhinebeck in the latter part of this week. They added that no date had positively been set for his marriage to Miss Madeleine Force. Col. Astor himself smilingly told a reporter that he wasn't going to be married for seventy-two hours anyway.

Col. Astor called on Miss Force yesterday morning, and they both went out in a taxicab. Later they returned to Miss Force's home at 18 East Thirty-seventh Street. They went to the St. Regis for luncheon. Last night they went to the theatre.

Positive assurance was given at Miss Force's home last night that the marriage would not take place to-day.

ROUGHS RIOT AT A DANCE.

Bronx Police Have Busy Time Opposing Clubs to Chairs Used as Weapons.

A fight between two gangs broke up the second annual ball of the Harry J. Austin Association in Ebling Casino, St. Ann's Avenue and 156th Street, the Bronx, last night. According to the police, the rival bands consisted of members of the Bergen gang of the Bronx and the Car Barn gang of Ninety-ninth Street, Manhattan.

When Special Patrolman Frank Broier, who was on duty in the dance hall, tried to restore order he was badly beaten. Patrolman William Fraser of the Morrisania Station was knocked unconscious with a chair by one of the brawlers and was badly bitten on the hand by a prisoner who escaped. Patrolman Cullen of the Tremont Station heard the din in the hall and entered, but was thrown out. Patrolman Kline of the Morrisania Station sent in a call for the reserves and Cullen began to fire his revolver to bring help.

The reserves under Lieut. Anthony Vachris cleared the hall. For several minutes the brawlers held the Casino against the police raining down chairs and bottles from a balcony. One prisoner was taken. He refused to give his name and tried to stab Patrolman Cullen in the station house.

Dr. Brill of the Lebanon Hospital dressed the wounds of Cullen and Fraser. Through telephone calls to the station house it was learned later that the disappointed dancers had provoked fights in several saloons of the neighborhood.

To Seek Hidden Box on Liner.

Inspector Hughes, in charge of the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters, received a cablegram from Bermuda last night offering $50 reward for the recovery of a black tin box containing jewelry. The cablegram stated that the tin box was probably hidden under a mattress in Stateroom 305 on board the steamer Oceana, due in Quarantine at 6 o'clock this morning. Isabel Ogden was the name signed to the dispatch. Detective Moody was assigned to the search.

New Submarine Launched.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—The new navy submarine Carp, the first of four under water fighting boats to be built here, was launched to-day. The Carp's fuel will be kerosene, substituted for gasoline, and it will have a fighting radius of 2,400 miles. Its length is 142 feet.

MRS. BELMONT HELPS AGAIN.

House Adjoining Equality League's New Home to be Joined to It.

Workers for woman suffrage were enthusiastic yesterday over the arrival of cheering news from Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, whose golden outpouring for the cause made possible the partly completed clubhouse of the Political Equality League at 15 East Forty-first Street.

The message was that when the house is completed, probably in October, there will be attached to it the handsome brownstone residence at 18 East Forty-first Street.

The combined houses will then be the meeting place for all branches of the Political Equality League. Dr. Florian Krug, who is reported to have sold the premises at No. 18 to Mrs. Belmont, refused last night either to affirm or deny that the sale had been completed.

SURE OF TAFT IN 1912.

Wilson Says President's Renomination and Re-election Is Certain.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 6.—"There is no question about President Taft's renomination and re-election. It is as certain as any future event can be," declared Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to-day on arriving here to attend the formal opening to-morrow of the Stanley dam and irrigation project.

The Secretary declined to comment on the case of Dr. Wiley. "It is now in the hands of the President," he remarked, "and I can say nothing at this time."

STANDARD OIL ACCOUNT LOW.

Check for $90 Issued at Portland, Ore., Marked "Not Sufficient Funds."

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 6.—A $90 check issued by the Portland office of the Standard Oil Company was returned by the Ladd & Tilton bank to the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company marked "not sufficient funds." The incident created amusement in the railroad office when the humor of the situation dawned upon the officials.

If it were not for the fact that the rules of the railroad company require an accurate accounting of every receipt and expenditure, the local officials would frame the check as a souvenir.

Later in the day local officials of the road made deposits sufficient to care for this, as well as for all checks that may be issued for some time.

JURY HUNG BY A WOMAN.

Holds Out Against Six Men and Five Women in Washington Liquor Case.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Sept. 6.—Northwest Washington's first "mixed jury," six men and six women, had failed this morning to agree on the guilt or innocence of a saloonkeeper, charged with selling liquor to an Indian.

Late last night the bailiffs escorted the jurors to separate dormitories on the top floor of the Court House and locked them up. When the jurors reported that they still were unable to reach a verdict the court declined to accept a disagreement and sent the jury back.

It is reported that a woman juror is preventing a verdict being reached.

STEEL TRUST BARS SMOKING.

Forbids Use of Tobacco by Employes in Working Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 6.—"Down with cigarettes and tobacco and up with moral standards" is the latest cry of the United States Steel Corporation, which, in many ways has been striving to uplift its thousands of workmen. Following the lead of the American Bridge Company, the Steel Corporation is making tobacco a contraband article during working hours in the Pittsburgh mills.

The first move was made at Ambridge, the townsite of the American Bridge Company's great industry. Notices have been posted there forbidding smoking within the big plant, and it is understood that the officials, in order to set an example, will refrain from smoking in office hours.

The example of the American Bridge Company has been followed in various Carnegie mills, and there has been little or no protest against the ruling from the men.

BORROWS AUTO, IS KILLED.

Glenn Elkin Takes Father's Machine for Spin—Three Others Hurt.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 6.—When an automobile in which they were riding at high speed struck a telephone pole near here early to-day, Glenn Elkin was killed and Howerton Gratz, Robert Cunningham, and Warren Fisher were badly injured. All the young men live in this city and are prominent socially.

The machine was the property of Cunningham's father. Last night Cunningham asked his father to let him use it, and, when his father refused, managed to take it out unnoticed. He took the other young men, his friends, with him. Darkness prevented them from seeing the telephone pole, and when the machine crashed into it Elkin was thrown forward with terrific force, his head striking the pole.

Gratz is related to the wealthy Gratz family of St. Louis, Mo., the Clays, and other noted Southern families.

STOLE CHILD AS SHE SLEPT.

Sister Was in Bed with Her—Bloodhounds Hunt Abductors.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 6.—Anna Lemberger, the 7-year-old daughter of Martin Lemberger, a German living in the midst of the local Italian colony, disappeared from the bed in which she was sleeping with an older sister some time during last night, and the whole country has been raised to assist in the search for her.

The theory that she had run away in a childish desire to prolong her vacation from school is hampered by the fact that a pane of glass in the bedroom window was broken and the screen removed, and also that her clothes were left on a chair by the side of the bed.

The only clew so far is the passing of a band of gypsies through Madison yesterday.

Annie went to bed with a sister just a little older than she is at about 9 o'clock last night. At 5:30 o'clock this morning she was missing. It was discovered that the window of the child's sleeping room had been opened in the night. The parents at once notified the police and sought the assistance of the neighbors in making a systematic search for Annie and her abductors.

Bloodhounds are being sent to Madison from Libertyville, Ill., and a purse is being raised for retaining detectives to assist in the hunt.

THREATEN TO STRIKE AT ONCE ON COAST

Acute Situation at Sacramento Calls Union Presidents to Scene of Disturbance.

CHICAGO MEN CANNOT AGREE

Federation Heads Urge Immediate Strike, While Other Leaders Seek Delay and Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 6.—The five international Presidents of railroad shopmen's unions left this afternoon for Sacramento, where an acute situation has developed, and where it is rumored local leaders are determined to call a strike on their division at once. The heads of the unions deprecate any attempt to force their hands at this stage of the game and went to the State capital to advise that action be delayed at least until after the conference here on Friday, for which they will return.

The largest railroad shops on the coast are at Sacramento, and the men there who are leaders of the shop employes are extremely radical in their views. They wished to call a strike before Kruttschnitt came out here.

Word was received to-day by Kline that thirty-five members of the General Committee of the Harriman system federation left Los Angeles this morning for a conference called by Kline, following the failure of the interview in which he and his associates, last Friday, demanded recognition for the federation from Kruttschnitt.

Kline and four other international Presidents expect to return here to-morrow night so as to be ready for the conference on Friday, at which it will be decided whether a strike shall be called on the entire Harriman system.

Refusal of the officials of the Illinois Central to recognize the Federation of Shopmen of that system will not affect the situation on the Harriman system, according to a statement made by J. W. Kline, President of the Blacksmiths' Union, who is Chairman of the Shopmen's Committee now in this city. Kline said he had been in telegraphic communication with Secretary W. F. Kramer of the Blacksmiths' Union in Chicago and that the Illinois Central situation remained unchanged.

"If there is any likelihood of a strike being called there, it does not mean that such action will be taken here," said Kline. "There is not necessarily any connection between that affair and the one in San Francisco. The only bond is a sympathetic one.

"The situation here remains unchanged. We shall go ahead with our arrangements, and there will be a conference with the General Committee just as soon as the members of that body arrive here."

When asked whether there was any truth in the rumor that the shopmen of the Illinois Central were only waiting for the sanction of the international officers in San Francisco before declaring a strike, Kline replied that the officers in Chicago were authorized to handle the situation there as they saw best. When pressed for a more definite answer he said: "Naturally, the officers there being subordinate officials would apply to their superiors for advice."

No message had been received from the East to-day, he added, with the assurance that none had been sent out from here.

ILLINOIS MEN DIVIDED.

Another Day's Conference Fails to Settle the Strike Question.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 6.—The possibilities for a peaceful settlement of the labor difficulties on the Illinois Central lines were the brightest to-night that they have been since the shop system federation made its demand for recognition. The international officers of the nine shop crafts involved held a series of conferences. Leaks from the conference room indicated that the international officers would refuse to sanction a strike.

President J. F. McCreary and Secretary Bowen, who are the only two executives of the shop federation in the city, said that they were being swamped with telegrams from their locals in the thirty-eight shops along the line which indicated that unless a strike sanction was granted the men might take matters into their own hands and walk out to-morrow morning without waiting for word from the international officers.

The international officers are said to have pointed out to McCreery and others to-day that a strike at this time would be inexpedient and costly, while the men by observing the technical point in their contracts might be in better shape to take such action later if their demands were refused.

On the Harriman lines of the West the strike situation was said to be unchanged. Julius Kruttschnitt, Director of Maintenance of Way and Operation of the Harriman system, arrived from the Pacific Coast to-day and said there were no indications of a strike at present. He also stated that he would take no part whatever in the situation on the Illinois Central lines.

Although Mr. Kruttschnitt did not say so in that many words, he gave the impression that the information he had collected on his trip went to show that the shop federation was in no position to call a strike, that the men of the road were divided in their sentiments toward the new federation, and that if a strike were called it would be unsuccessful.

"My decision made in San Francisco last Friday remains unchanged," he said. "Of course, I do not know what the men intend to do. The Harriman lines have decided on their course of action, and so far as I know the situation remains unchanged.

"I have no more to do with the situation on the Illinois Central than one of you reporters. Mr. Lovett, of course, is a Director of that road, but I am ignorant of his intentions, if he has any.

"The rank and file of the men on the Harriman lines other than the Illinois Central know that we have for years made it a point to treat them fairly, give them the best wages paid, provide a pension system out of the road's treasury without a cent of expense to them, and provide protection on the merit and seniority basis. Then the Southern Pacific for example, sets aside each year $8,000 for each of its 700 pensioners, yielding a revenue of $320 a year in each case. This gives them enough to live on, and it is a good deal more than they could have saved for themselves if they had spent their lives working as clerks in a store.

"The older men realize if they walk out, no matter what the result of a strike may be, they lose their sequence to seniority and pension claims.

"But there are always some young fellows on the road who like to take the rôle of leaders and agitate matters.

"They stir up the men who are otherwise contented by alluring pictures of what they might get by some new scheme. Of course the bulk of them say at once: 'Sure we want that.' You can't blame the men much for it, they are all children. We are all just overgrown children. They are just like a small boy without a thought of candy in his head. You take him into a candy shop and point out the loaded shelves and ask how he would like to have some of that and you are in trouble at once."

Mr. Kruttschnitt made it clear that any action calling a strike must be decided by the international officers of the shop crafts now in San Francisco. The Harriman line officials will adhere to their original position that they will not recognize the shop federation.

GROCER A SUICIDE IN THE GRAND UNION

Went to Hotel Prepared to Die by Gas or Hanging and Found Gas Turned Off.

HITCHED ROPE TO WATER PIPE

Then Stepped Off Edge of the Bathtub and Strangled to Death—Member of Two Newburgh Firms.

J. E. Bowman, a wholesale grocer of Newburgh, N. Y., registered at the Grand Union, Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, yesterday morning. He was assigned to a room with a bath on the second floor.

Patrick Collins, an employe of the hotel, looked into Bowman's room at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and noticed that the bed had not been disturbed. He looked into the bathroom and found Bowman's body hanging from a rope attached to a hot water pipe that crossed the room just below the ceiling. The body was fully clothed. From the manner in which it swung from the water pipe it seemed that Bowman had stepped on the edge of the bathtub, attached the rope to his neck and to the pipe, and had then stepped off, holding his feet up from the floor until he was unconscious.

In the room was found an outfit of toilet articles such as a man much given to traveling might be expected to possess. There was also a fountain pen, $9 in bills, a tan raincoat, a number of shirts and collars, and a gold watch and chain. In addition there was the clothesline and three yards of rubber tubing, which Bowman had brought to the hotel in his suitcase.

Coroner Hellenstein, upon finding the tubing, looked about to see why it had not been used in preference to the rope. He found that the room was one in which electric lights only were used, the gas having been disconnected.

Notice to the police that there had been a suicide in the hotel was not sent until 5:30 o'clock, over an hour after the body had been discovered, and Coroner Hellenstein had been notified. Policeman James Farrell then visited the hotel, where he found Undertaker Leon T. Stowe in charge, the custody of the body having been turned over to him by the Coroner.

Bowman was about 40 years old. His clothes were well made. There was nothing to indicate his motive for taking his own life.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 6.—James E. Bowman was a member of the Leonard-Bowman Company, wholesale grocers, recently incorporated at Albany with a capital of $100,000. He was also a member of the firm of Westcott & Bowman, tire dealers, with an office in this city, and was engaged in the real estate business. The Leonard-Bowman Company was soon to take over the interests of the firm of Doyle & Leonard, wholesale grocers. Meanwhile Mr. Bowman was acting as salesman for Doyle & Leonard. He left the office of the company last Saturday, and had planned to go to Port Jervis yesterday. His business associates in this city can give no motive for his act, and were shocked to hear of his death. So far as they know he had suffered no business reverses and was in good health.

Mr. Bowman lived at 235 Third Street, this city, with his wife and one son. He left home Monday morning, ostensibly to go to New York City on business. He gave no intimation that he was planning to end his life.

CUTS HIS THROAT IN STREET.

Falls Under Arc Light in Broadway Theatre Crowds.

Ernest Winzer, a middle-aged German, in poor circumstances, attempted suicide last night at the junction of Broadway and Seventh Avenue, at Forty-seventh Street. For the hour he selected 11 o'clock, when upper Times Square is alive with the theatre crowds, scattering to the different restaurants. Standing there under the arc light, Winzer cut his throat with a baker's knife.

Many people in and out of passing automobiles saw him do it, and hundreds of others heard the immediate commotion and began to jam their way toward the centre of excitement. The traffic policemen, always heavily taxed at that hour, had all they could do to manage the crowds, and it was with difficulty that a circle around the wounded man was maintained until the arrival of an ambulance from Flower Hospital. Later he was removed to Bellevue, and it was said that there was a fair chance for his recovery.

Winzer lives at First Avenue and Fifth Street. He said he had no occupation, and it was understood that he was despondent over his affairs.

SAVED HIS YOUNG BROTHER.

Seven-Year-Old Lad, While Fishing with an Old Nail, Fell Into the Hudson.

Charlie Burroughs, 7 years old, while fishing yesterday with a string and an old nail off the float of Cleveland H. Dodge's boathouse on the Hudson River, a mile above Spuyten Duyvil, leaned over too far and fell in. Mrs. Dillon, wife of the boathouse keeper, who saw the accident, appealed to several youths who were near, but none of them would dive for the boy, who had disappeared.

Just then she saw his brother, John Burroughs, 15 years old, on a bridge over the railway tracks connecting the river front with Mr. Dodge's grounds. She shouted to him what had happened, and he ran down to the float and jumped in. He seized the small boy as he came up the second time. John is a good swimmer, and had no difficulty in bringing his brother to shore, and the latter was soon revived.

The boys belong to a family of ten children. Their father, Henry Burroughs, is Mr. Dodge's gardener.

RECOVERS COST OF BAGGAGE.

Supreme Court of Bay State Decides Road Must Pay Full Value.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—Apparently there is no limit to the liability of a railroad for the loss or destruction of a passenger's baggage under a decision handed down to-day by the Supreme Court in the suit brought by Katharine Hooker of Los Angeles, Cal., against the Boston & Maine Railroad.

In the decision the full court holds that, notwithstanding the provision in the inter-State commerce regulations that a railroad may not be liable for more than $100 in case of loss of a passenger's baggage, the railroad may still be liable for the full value of the baggage when the passenger knew nothing of the regulation, and did not assent to it.

The plaintiff passenger in this case left Boston on Sept. 16, 1908, to go to Lake Sunapee, N. H. Her baggage was handled by the agents of the hotel at which she was stopping in Boston, and she did not receive her checks for her two trunks and a suitcase until the day after her arrival at Lake Sunapee.

On Sept. 17 the station at Lake Sunapee was burned, and the plaintiff's baggage was destroyed. She sued the Boston & Maine Road for the loss of two trunks and a suitcase. The contents of the three were worth $1,004.50. In the trial court Judge Harris awarded $2,133.04, and the railroad took exceptions. The Supreme Court to-day ocerruled the exceptions.

Woman Killed at Grade Crossing.

Mrs. Margaret Carey, 51 years old, was killed last night by a Long Island Railroad freight train at the Bushwick Avenue-Aberdeen Street crossing while on her way to her home, 77 Aberdeen Street.

DR. ABBOTT ANSWERS MAYOR

Would Have Representatives of New York's Interests Make a Charter.

Dr. Lyman Abbott has written a second open letter to Mayor Gaynor on the city charter in which he takes up the following suggestions of the Mayor:

"I should be most glad to have you read the present charter and the proposed new charter and advise me."

Dr. Abbott puts himself in Mr. Gaynor's place and tells what he would do if he were Mayor.

After again advocating a small unpaid Board of Education as opposed to the paid board of the proposed charter, Dr. Abbott says:

> I should do what I could to correct the undemocratic blunder of the Legislature in framing a charter first and discussing it afterward. That there was some apparent precedents for this course may be admitted; but bad precedents should never be followed. If I were the Mayor, I should ask the committee to put the charter over indefinitely, and should make it clear that if it came before me I would veto it.
>
> Then, at the earliest practicable opportunity, I would create, perhaps acting alone, perhaps in conference with the Governor, a large committee, composed wholly or almost wholly of citizens of New York City, including men who have their business interests here; and by obtaining nominations from the different civic associations, I would make sure that it really represented the different geographical sections, different races, different religions, and different vocations in the city.
>
> I would reserve the right to attend and participate in the deliberations of the committee. I would ask it to appoint sections or sub-committees of expert educators to draft the educational provisions, expert lawyers to draft the legal provisions, expert financiers to draft the financial provisions, and so on.

The charter, Dr. Abbott goes on to say, should not be longer than the Constitution of the United States and all the details of the making should be left to the legislative bodies created by the charter. When completed, the charter should not be imposed on the city, but a special election should be held to vote on it. In this way, concludes Dr. Abbott, New York might be made an example to all the other cities of the country in the fundamentals of charter-making.

GRIGSBY GEMS REGISTERED.

That $800,000 Valuation Their Owners, but Inspectors Thought It Correct.

There was much unofficial speculation yesterday at the Custom House as to the actual value of the jewelry brought in by Miss Emilie Grigsby, ward of the late Charles T. Yerkes, when she arrived on Tuesday night on the Olympic. The discussion brought out that the value of $800,000 was placed upon the jewels by Miss Grigsby herself. The men who examined the gems on the pier said, however, that in their opinion this estimate was not excessive, but some of the officials higher up were inclined to smile over the valuation of the Grigsby collection. One prominent official said frankly that in his opinion if one cipher was struck off the given valuation the amount would be nearer the true value.

The Grigsby baggage consisted of 14 trunks and 11 small pieces of baggage. Besides the jewels the friend of former governess of little Princess Mary of England brought in 60 handsome gowns. The duty she paid was less than $150.

When Miss Grigsby sailed from here she declared she was going to leave the country for good. She took the precaution, however, of registering her jewels at the Custom House, and for this reason she had no trouble upon her arrival. There are about 50 pieces of jewelry in her possession, each of which is listed. The question of valuation was therefore of no concern to those who examined the collection on the pier. The collection includes three magnificent pearl strings, one having nearly 100 individual pearls. These were estimated at $200,000.

The registration of articles of value at the Custom House before taking them abroad is not encouraged as a rule, as too much opportunity is offered to smugglers by the system. A person having articles of worth to take abroad can go to the Custom House, have the articles examined and registered as having been taken out of the country, and therefore not subject to duty. There is no way subsequently of checking the actual departure of such articles or assurance that those returned are not duplicates of the registered articles.

CLUE TO CHAUFFEUR MURDER

Detectives Watching Three Men, One a Safe Blower, Near Fox Lake.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Three men living in a small house near Fox Lake were placed under watch to-night by detectives following the discovery of a supposed clue in the murder of Frederick Wennerstrom, the chauffeur whose body was found in the Fox River at Gary, Ill. The leader of the trio, according to the detectives, is a Chicago safe blower.

A clue given by Marshal "Jack" Walsh of McHenry, Ill., the last man to see the Wennerstrom car, so far as is known, led the detectives to Fox Lake. Walsh said the car passed through McHenry on the road to the lake early Thursday morning.

Aside from the fact that the trio suspected have surrounded their movements with much mystery, and that in a general way they answer the descriptions of the men who are thought to have killed Wennerstrom, the detectives say there is no direct evidence on which to make an arrest. State's Attorney David Joslyn of McHenry County will advise with the detectives to-morrow on the advisability of taking the suspects into custody.

RELEASES PRIEST'S PRISONER

Magistrate Rebukes a Blow for an Alleged Insult.

A man attired as a clergyman, who said he was William Smith, pastor of a Catholic church in New Jersey, appeared in the Men's Night Court before Magistrate Breen last night as complainant against Harry Michaels, a public porter, living in the Mills Hotel, Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue. Michaels was arrested in front of the Pennsylvania station after he had received chastisement at the hands of the complainant.

Michaels declared that he had merely asked the priest if he wanted his baggage carried into the station. He told the court that he was beaten without provocation. Patrolman Maacum, who made the arrest, was called upon to testify. The policeman denied that he had heard the prisoner address insulting remarks to the complainant.

"Father, what were you doing at the Pennsylvania station?" asked Magistrate Breen.

The priest explained that he had just come from Philadelphia.

"A man is not warranted in striking another without sufficient cause," said the court, "and I hardly believe you were justified in striking the defendant, as both his and the patrolman's testimony tend to show that he was merely plying his livelihood."

"I was justified," exclaimed Smith, "and I will do it again," he added, "if the occasion presents itself."

"You are in a court of justice," admonished Magistrate Breen, "and I'm here to administer justice."

"You are discharged," said the Magistrate to the defendant.

TWO CLERGYMEN ARRESTED.

Charged with Marrying People Who Had Not Procured Licenses.

Two Brooklyn clergymen, the Rev. Kalle Markinen and the Rev. H. Dlugotch, of 84 Siegel Street, were arraigned yesterday in the Adams Street Court, charged with having married couples who had not complied with the law by obtaining marriage licenses. The Rev. Mr. Markinen is the pastor of the Finnish Seamen's Mission, 529 Clinton Street. Dr. Dlugotch is a rabbi.

Two marriage certificates were filed in the Health Department this week by the prisoners, and upon investigation Deputy Clerk Scully of the Marriage License Bureau in Brooklyn found that in neither case had a license been procured. The names of Frank Hamburg and Elmi Blumberg were on the marriage certificate filed by Pastor Markinen. The couple married by the Rabbi were Samuel Weissman and Ida Leben.

Both clergymen said that they had understood that the candidates for marriage had obtained licenses in other boroughs. They were paroled for examination to-morrow.

FATHER A SUICIDE AFTER WIFE'S DEATH

Two Children Left by the Weinholds Now Cared For by Kind Neighbors.

COAT FOUND ON FERRYBOAT

Tells of Man's Decision to Die—Note to His Children in the Pocket Gives Clue to Identity.

Twelve-year-old Alfred Weinhold and his four-year-old sister, Helen, who used to live with their parents at Avenue A and Fifteenth Street, lost their mother about two months ago. She had throat trouble. One night she choked to death before a doctor could arrive.

The father, Arthur Weinhold, a cigar-maker, grieved sorely. For days he wept and would see no one except his children. Then he suddenly packed up his few household things and took his children to 506 East Sixteenth Street, where he rented a two-room rear apartment on the ground floor. When not at work he closeted himself in his dingy room.

Alfred and Helen were his housekeepers, and they did the best they could. Alfred learned to cook a little, and Helen wiped the dishes, but after a few weeks the father saw that the work was too much for the children. The neighbors took turns and brought the family things to eat, but Arthur Weirhold's pride was touched and he begged them to let him and his children alone.

A few weeks ago a sister of Arthur Weinhold came over from New Jersey and said that she would take care of little Helen until she grew up. That pleased the father, who said that he would take his son to work with him, so that he might be able to teach him a trade as soon as possible. It was the first ray of sunshine that had come into the little two-room apartment in six weeks. It was arranged that Helen should go with her aunt as soon as school opened.

Last week the aunt was suddenly taken ill. Within a few days she was taken to an asylum and it was said that she might not be out again for years. The news reached Arthur Weinhold's apartment last Sunday.

That night there was a smell of gas from the rear apartment on the ground floor. One of the neighbors detected it and found Weinhold almost senseless on his bed. Gas was streaming from several jets. He was revived.

Tuesday morning Alfred and Helen were up bright and early and their father helped to get breakfast. After the meal he took his children on his knees and told them about their mother. He told Helen she must grow up to be a lady like her mother, and he told Alfred that he must take care of his sister, no matter what happened. Then he kissed them goodbye and said that he was going away to his work.

He did not return Tuesday night. The children cried, and the neighbors took care of them. When he had not returned yesterday morning the neighbors told them that he had gone to another town, and that he would come back soon to take them to a house in the country.

Early yesterday morning a deckhand on the ferryboat Oregon, plying between Williamsburg and Roosevelt Street, Manhatian, found a blue serge coat and a straw hat on a seat in the women's cabin, directly below an open window. He turned the coat and hat over to the police of the Bedford Avenue Station and inside the coat a letter, written in German and addressed to Alfred Weinhold, 506 East Seventeenth Street, was found. It read:

> Dearest Alfred and Helen: Go to my place of business where I worked and there you will get $7 or $8. Kisses for both of you. I think this will be the last. It can't be helped. ARTHUR.
>
> P. S.—You know where to find everything, Helen.

A policeman appeared at the tenement, 506 East Seventeenth Street, about 10 o'clock yesterday morning and asked for Alfred Weinhold.

"Has anything happened?" asked the neighbors.

"Yes, I think some one is dead. Does Alfred Woinhold live here?"

"Sh-sh," whispered the neighbors. "Don't let the children know."

Kind friends in East Sixteenth Street took Alfred and Helen away and told them their father would call for them when he came back from the other town.

THAT CAT IS RESCUED.

The Lady of the Flat Returned and Ended the Beast's Loneliness.

The marooned Forty-fifth Street cat was rescued at noon yesterday. All Tuesday night the cat rested on the window ledge of No. 146, and for a large part of the evening the lady in blue next door made overtures without avail. Yesterday morning members of the Friars' Club up the street went down in a body and tried their arts of persuasion to make the cat cross the bookshelf bridge to the window of No. 148. They, being mostly actors and agents, are skilled in the arts of persuasion. But they did not succeed.

At a few minutes of 12, however, something happened to relieve the tension that was beginning to be felt from Broadway to Sixth Avenue. A taxicab whirled up to the curb and stopped in front of 146. A woman in a light tan gown and large hat alighted, glanced at the Friars across the street and at the group of small boys staring at the third floor window, then looked at the window and saw the cat. Her face did not blanch, exactly, but it took on a pained expression. It was not her cat, but the house, the window ledge and the appurtenances belonged to her, and she was disturbed.

She was Mrs. Wexler, who has an establishment in the lower part of the building and a dwelling place upstairs. She does not like cats. She whispered to the chauffeur of her taxicab, and he turned his machine in a short circle and hurried toward Sixth Avenue. Before he was fairly out of sight it was learned that Mrs. Wexler had been in the country over Labor Day, and that she had no knowledge of the small tragedy that was being enacted at her residence until she saw a copy of yesterday's paper. Then she hurried back to town.

By the time this information, and some remarks regarding the nature and habits of domestic cats had been imparted, the taxicab returned. It contained a large man of determined mien, who was identified as an animal trainer from a nearby playhouse. Mrs. Wexler gave him the keys of her residence, and held her breath while he mounted the stairs and appeared at the third floor window. He unfastened the lock and raised the sash. Without a sign of fear or even of hesitation, he picked up the now famous cat by the back of his or her neck and hauled the beast into the third floor front room.

The cat proved on examination to be a maltese and not a tabby. Evidence was offered that he belonged to a lady in No. 148, who may or may not have been the lady in blue who tried to fish the beast into her room on Tuesday night. Anyhow, the cat has been rescued, and there is no longer any unusual attraction in West Forty-fifth Street.

HOE EXECUTORS RESIST SUIT

Answer to Maria McShane's Claim to Curios, Antiques and Art Works.

Another step toward the settlement of the Robert Hoe estate was taken yesterday when counsel for Frederick W. Crane and Phineas P. Chew, executors, filed in the Supreme Court an answer to a complaint entered by Maria McShane. Curios, works of art, pieces of furniture, and antiques are involved in the suit.

Counsel for the executors deny that Maria McShane is the owner of these objects, though they admit that on Dec. 7, 1910, Frederick J. Libbie, an auctioneer, of 397 Washington Street, Boston, contracted to receive from Margaret Johnson Johns, articles of furniture, curios, and antiques, to be auctioned by him.

Notice was given by the executors to Libbie that the goods were the property of the Hoe estate, and they say that he thereupon refused to carry out the auction, although he retained the goods as security for advances made on them.

GONE TO FIGHT CHARTER.

City Club and Other Civic Bodies to be Heard by Governor To-day.

More than one hundred citizens, representing nearly all the leading public organizations of the city, will leave the City Club this morning for Albany on a special train and call upon Gov. Dix and make a united protest against the passage of the new Charter. The delegation will meet the Governor at noon and will urge particularly that the Governor repeat his action of July 10, when he advised the Legislature against sending to him for his signature the draft of the Charter before the close of the regular session. Among the organizations represented on the delegation are:

City Club of New York, Brooklyn League with twenty-five affiliated organizations, Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, Chamber of Commerce of Staten Island, Allied Boards of Trade of Brooklyn with about twenty affiliated organizations, Allied Real Estate Interests of Manhattan, Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, Public Education Association, Civil Service Reform Association, Citizens' Union of New York, Bureau of Municipal Research, German-American Alliance of Brooklyn, representing eighty-five affiliated societies; Brooklyn Central Labor Union, Brooklyn Charter Conference, including, besides the Brooklyn League, various other organizations opposed to the new Charter; Allied Civics of South Brooklyn, United Civics of Queens, with about thirty affiliated organizations; Allied Improvement Associations of South Queens, representing about twenty affiliated organizations, and the Eastern District Charter Conference. Addresses to the Governor, Alfred E. Marling will reflect the conviction of the delegation that the Charter in the form in which it will reach the Legislature, with many radical amendments incorporated in the ten days since the close of the public hearings, will be as little known to the people of the city as was the previous draft at the time the Governor issued his earlier statement.

Raymond V. Ingersoll, it is expected, will argue that independent Democrats elected to office on the regular ticket will be deprived of powers they were chosen to exercise, and that the results of the election of 1909 will be largely nullified if the proposed Charter becomes a law. Russell Benedict is scheduled to speak on the rapid transit situation, and will argue that the unqualified power of disapproval given to the Mayor with respect to any matter coming before the Board of Estimate under the Rapid Transit Act is wholly novel and filled with danger.

BEGIN ALBANY INQUIRY TO-DAY

James W. Osborne, Attorney for Senate Committee, Goes to Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The Senate committee appointed to probe the conduct of the administration of the City and County of Albany will probably organize here to-morrow. Senator Howard R. Bayne of Richmond, who will be Chairman of the committee, reached the Capitol to-night. He announced that former Assistant District Attorney James W. Osborne of New York, who will act as inquisitor in chief of the committee, is on his way here, and plans to begin the investigation at once.

"While I know nothing of the affairs of the Albany City Government," said Senator Bayne, "I will say that the committee will thoroughly investigate all charges that may be presented. If these charges affect gambling or other conditions not sanctioned by law they will receive the attention of the committee. As soon as counsel is selected the work of the investigators will be outlined. We intend to finish up the inquiry as quickly as possible, though nothing will be slighted."

Senator George B. Burd of Buffalo and Felix J. Sanner of Brooklyn, members of the committee, who were absent to-night, were notified by telegraph to attend a meeting to-morrow.

James W. Osborne, who has been chosen by the legislative committee as attorney to investigate the city and county government of Albany, left town yesterday afternoon, and it is understood that he went to Albany to begin the inquiry. Before leaving Mr. Osborne said to a reporter that he was anxious to get busy, as he realized that he had a great deal of hard work before him, and he wanted to begin at once.

"I don't know very much about Albany," said Mr. Osborne, "and I am going up there to look the situation over. I can't very well talk about this investigation at this time, because I know so very little about conditions. You can say this, however: I intend to make the fur fly if there is any fur to get at. Albany is almost a sealed book to me. It is true that I was there for a considerable time during the Allds investigation, but I had no time for anything but that investigation. All I saw of Albany was what I obtained in the glimpses I caught as I passed to and from my rooms at the hotel and the Capitol. I seldom or never went out at night and I was busy all day, so you see that I know nothing from first-hand knowledge.

"I am going to start right in, however, and I will know a whole lot more in a few days than I do now."

COURT FINDS FRAUD IN BANKRUPT'S CASE

Judge Holt Refuses to Grant Discharge to Morris Cohen, Though Referee Recommends It.

A SWINDLE ON HIS CREDITORS

Assets Shrink $25,000 and Transfers of Property Held Not to Have Been Made in Good Faith.

The determination of the Federal authorities to check fraudulent proceedings in bankruptcy was evidenced yesterday by a memorandum filed by Judge Holt in explanation of his refusal to accept the recommendation of Seaman Miller, the referee, that a discharge be granted to Morris Cohen, a member of the wholesale clothing firm of Cohen & Herbert, 17 Waverley Place. The reports of trustees, receivers, and referees are now being closely scrutinized, and where they don't agree with the facts in the case they are no longer assumed to be correct.

A creditor's petition was filed against Cohen and his partner, Elias P. Herbert, on Oct. 31, 1908. Creditors objected to their discharge and Miller was appointed referee to investigate. A question was raised as to an alleged preferential, if not fraudulent, transfer of Cohen's house, 646 Second Avenue, to his wife on the anniversary of their wedding. Miller reported that the testimony was not clear that this transfer was in fraud of the rights of the creditors or that Cohen was bankrupt at the time it was made.

There was a shrinkage in the assets of $25,000 in the light of statements made by the bankrupts to commercial agencies. Again Miller declared the testimony was not clear that there had been fraud. A complaint that certain sums of money had not been turned over to the receiver was met by Miller with the opinion that this was not so much a wilful diversion of the funds as it was a misapprehension on the part of the bankrupts' attorney as to the legal right of the bankrupts to make such a disposition of their estate at that time.

In his memorandum Judge Holt swept all these opinions of the referee aside, saying:

"The testimony of Cohen throughout is evasive and in parts untruthful. I think that his conveyance of his house to his wife was a mere form, the real ownership remaining in him; that the alleged sale of the $9,000 mortgage and the subsequent transactions concerning it was all done to defraud creditors; that his payment of the $900 to Tillie Cohen was another fraud; that his delay in returning the $600 was a refusal to obey the order of the court; that he omitted to enter various transactions in his books with intent to conceal his financial condition, and that there has been a large disappearance of assets unexplained by any credible evidence."

KEIRAN FREED OF DEBTS.

Gets Bankruptcy Discharge of Liabilities of Almost a Million.

Patrick J. Keiran, church builder and formerly head of the Fidelity Funding Company, which went into the hands of a receiver about three years ago, received a discharge in bankruptcy yesterday from Judge Hough. A petition was filed against him on Dec. 15, 198, which had been pending ever since before a referee. On April 13, 1911, he filed schedules showing liabilities of $921,150, and nominal assets of $123,681. He stated that the liabilities were incurred as indorser on notes discounted in various banks by the Fidelity Funding Company.

Keiran came into prominence about three years ago, when he interested hundreds of Catholic churches and organizations in the church building boom he engineered, and inspired such confidence that hundreds of priests, nuns, and officers of the Catholic Church gave him notes, mortgages, and even blank checks for loans he made on prospective church buildings. The condition of the loans was always that the construction should be done by the Columbia Construction Company, one of Keiran's five concerns. In this way he got $350,000 in cash from Sister Mary, the Superior of a convent at Nauvoo, Ill., and notes of $20,000 and more from many priests who received $5,000 or less in return. Leslie M. Shaw, President of the Carnegie Trust Company at the time, and former Secretary of the Treasury, took $10,000 of the stock of the Fidelity Company, and advanced Keiran $90,000. Bishop Spalding gave him blank authorization.

Keiran was believed to be worth millions. When the crash came on Dec. 8, 1908, he was found to have debts amounting to $6,174,805 and assets of $25,000. That same night Keiran and his wife escaped from Washington. A world-wide search was instituted for him, and several warrants were issued for his arrest. On Dec. 16, 1908, Judge Holt in the United States District Court appointed Robert C. Morris receiver of Keiran's personal estate. Subsequently it was found that he had a deficit of $800,000 with assets of about $24,000.

Keiran surrendered in Pittsburgh on Jan. 18, 1909, saying that he could pay his debts. Peter B. Olney, who was appointed a referee to hear the case, later held that the Fidelity Company, not being a mercantile concern, was not amenable to the Bankruptcy law, and the case was then brought again before Judge Holt. On March 12, 1909, Keiran was indicted for embezzlement in Pittsburgh, and later, on April 21, 1911, on two other counts of grand larceny in Norwich, N. Y. At the time of the Carnegie Trust Company investigation it was found that the company held as part of its assets stock of the defunct Fidelity Funding Company amounting to $400,000.

RESTORES BANK'S FUNDS.

Ex-President Mills of the Audubon Then Enters Plea of Not Guilty.

Davis S. Mills, ex-President of the Audubon National Bank, Broadway and 143d Street, appeared yesterday in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court before Judge Hough and entered a tentative plea of not guilty to the charge of misapplying $49,298 of the banks funds. His counsel informed the court that the bank has sustained no loss, as the funds which it is alleged were misapplied have been returned.

Assistant United States Attorney Smith replied that he had no knowledge of the restitution, but will inform himself of the matter before Sept. 21, when Mr. Mills returns to enter his final plea.

SQUATTER'S HOME GONE.

Shack in Which He Lived 28 Years Carted Off in His Absence.

Robert Mitchell, known as "Red" Mitchell in the neighborhood of Rochester Avenue and Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, where he has lived the life of a squatter, was evicted yesterday from the one-story shack of rough boards that he has called his home for twenty-eight years. The eviction was managed by two City Marshals under direction of a real estate company that owned the land.

Mitchell was away when all this happened. He left his dog Spot at home to guard his belongings. When he returned he found his household effects piled on the sidewalk with the dog guarding them, and the shack that was his home demolished. The land was cleared in short time and the material carted away.

The real estate company had to go to the courts before it succeeded in ousting Mitchell. He refused to move at first, saying that as he had lived there so long he was entitled to remain. The courts ordered him evicted.

Mayor May Speak at Syracuse.

Mayor Gaynor and Police Commissioner Waldo will go to Syracuse next Monday to visit the State fair there. The Mayor, it is understood, will deliver an address at the fair grounds.

TELL OF DUMMY LOANS.

One Witness at Union Bank Inquiry Got $5 for Use of His Name.

James C. Cropsey, assistant inquisitor in the Brooklyn Union Bank inquiry, had George Tonkogogy, a Brownsville lawyer, on the witness stand yesterday when the hearings were resumed before Deputy Bank Supt. Edward Lane Dodge. Tonkogogy told how his brother-in-law, George Wiener, 21 years old, managed to engage in a building venture involving an outlay of $84,000 on $3,000 capital.

Wiener got the money for his building operations from the Atlantic branch of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank on notes and mortgages. Arrangements were made for a $60,000 loan in the name of Raymond McArdle, a clerk in the bank.

"Did you suggest the use of a dummy?" Mr. Cropsey asked the witness.

"I suggested nothing," answered Tonkogogy. "I obeyed orders and did as I was told."

"Was the use of dummies common?"

"Yes, I believe it was. Dummies were used in all building loans, mortgages, assignments of mortgages, and contracts."

Tonkogogy said his first interest in the property was when he was asked by Cashier Brooks of the Atlantic branch of the bank to arrange a contract for the sale of it to Joseph D. Hildreth, a brother-in-law of David A. Sullivan, the bank President, now under indictment for forgery in the third degree. The witness did not remember how this property passed from Hildreth to Paul Grout, and later was transferred to Charles F. Donnelly, another relative of Sullivan. He said he knew that Donnelly was acting as a "dummy" for the bank.

Mr. Cropsey asked the witness why he never presented a bill for services to the bank from the time he was engaged in 1902 until after the bank closed the second time. He admitted that he owed the bank $20,000 when it closed the first time. He said he regarded the bank as a rich client, and he did not worry about pay for his services.

George B. Haggerty, a former clerk in the bank, testified that he signed a dummy note for $125,728.10, and that he later received $5 for doing it. He was told, he said, that there was no legal or moral responsibility involved in signing the note.

The hearing will be resumed to-morrow.

FLIES FAST WITH PASSENGER.

Grahame-White Goes 33 Miles Over Water in 27 Minutes 35 1-5 Seconds.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—The remarkable speed of 27 minutes 35 1-5 seconds for 33 miles over water, carrying a passenger, was made by Claude Grahame-White, the Englishman, in winning the Boston Light race in his Nieuport monoplane on the closing day of the second Boston-Harvard aero meet to-day. Tom Sopwith, with another Englishman, was second in his Blériot, in 30 minutes and 5 seconds, without a passenger.

Grahame-White, in landing, ditched his car. He was thrown to the forward rim of the chassis and received a cut on the lip.

Later in the day Grahame-White again showed his superiority, making three laps of the mile and a half course in 4 minutes 32 3-5 seconds.

The two Englishmen entered for the altitude climb, and Grahame-White, soaring to 3,000 feet in exactly 4 minutes, won in the best time of the meet. Sopwith required 6 minutes 45 seconds.

Lieut. T. D. Milling of the United States Army, flying a Burgess-Wright biplane, won the figure eight speed event, and then took the accuracy in landing test with a mark of 50.3 feet.

The closing hours of the meet found all the machines in the air carrying passengers in exhibition flights for a general offer from the management of $4 a minute.

Earl L. Ovington, Blériot, won $11,782 in prize money; Tom Sopwith, Blériot-Wright, $6,022; Lieut. T. D. Milling, Burgess-Wright, $3,008, and Claude Grahame-White, Nieuport, $5,224.

WOMEN ATTACK PLUMBERS.

Flatirons and Rolling Pins Put Some to Flight; Another Much Mauled.

Brownsville women resented the shutting off of the water supply in their homes by plumbers who were repairing a main in front of 335 Saratoga Avenue, yesterday, by attacking them with flatirons, brooms, and rolling pins. Men urged them on. All but one of the plumbers fled. He tried to defend himself.

Police sent to the scene from the Brownsville Station found this man lying unconscious in the six-foot ditch which had been dug by the repair gang alongside the main. He had been thrown in by his infuriated assailants. He is Michael Lyons of 615 Sutter Avenue. At St. Mary's Hospital it was necessary to close lacerated wounds in his head with eighteen stitches. He had been hit on the head with a flatiron.

Harry Feldwon, 19 years old, 335 Saratoga Avenue, was arrested on a charge of assault. His mother, Mrs. Lena Feldwon, and Mrs. Dan Greenberg were also held, charged with being disorderly.

Police Relieved of Book of Rules.

After repeated complaints had been received by Police Commissioner Waldo from patrolmen about the uselessness of carrying the police manual, known as the book of rules, the Commissioner in special order No. 70, issued last night, does away with this requirement. The policemen complained that it was altogether unnecessary to carry the book, and that it took up too much space in their pockets.

SURE THEY'VE CAUGHT BLACK HAND CHIEF

Police Confident That the Arrest of Costabile Hits the Bomb-Throwers a Hard Blow.

MORE ARRESTS TO BE MADE

Bomb the Prisoner Was Carrying When Captured Was Filled with High Explosives.

With the terror of Giuseppe Costabile, as Black Hand chief, locked up with Giuseppe Costabile in the Tombs Prison yesterday, the tradesmen of the Italian quarter slept easy for the first time in many nights, and for the first time in many days thirty-six whole hours passed without the receipt of a single Black Hand letter or the explosion of a Black Hand bomb.

Meanwhile the police began their search for the remaining members of Costabile's gang of alleged bomb-setting bullies, and, working on clues furnished by the list of names they found in Costabile's possession, got so close on the trail of their quarry that five of the hunted criminals took Italian leave on Tuesday night. The trail of the remaining members of the gang, however, the police say, is warm, and several arrests are expected in the next day or two.

Costabile himself in the meantime, looking at life more soberly in the cool, gray dawn of the "morning after" in the Tombs, repented him of the show of temper he had given way to after his arrest on Tuesday, when, according to the police, he turned to Detective Corrao, who arrested him, and promised to see him speedily and painfully into another and warmer world as soon as he himself got out of the toils.

He authorized his lawyer, John Cardone, to deny that he had ever made any such threat; and after a conference with the prisoner, the lawyer announced the main lines of the defense he would offer, when Costabile is arraigned in the Tombs Court at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It was intimated that the defense would consist in the first place of a flat denial that Costabile ever had in his possession the deadly bomb the detectives say they found under his coat, and a counter-charge that the explosive was "planted" there by the detectives themselves.

Attacks the New Law.

In the second place, the lawyer said, he would attack the validity of the Sullivan law under which Costabile was arrested, on the ground that it discriminates between aliens and citizens, in violation of an existing treaty between this country and Italy, by making the carrying of weapons by an alien a felony, whereas the same provision does not apply to citizens. The lawyer said he would call on the Italian Consul to-day for a copy of the treaty, and confer with him as to whether the treaty was violated by the terms of the new law.

"Moreover," he said, "even under the Sullivan law, I shall try to show that a bomb cannot be classed as a dangerous weapon. It is a missile or an implement, not a weapon. The terms of the law referring to a revolver, pistol, gun, dagger, dirk, 'or other dangerous weapon,' must be interpreted to mean 'other dangerous weapons of like nature.'"

Despite this quibbling over words, however, neither Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel nor Inspector Hughes seemed to have the slightest doubt that under the present law, and especially under the amendment of the statute of 1897, making the carrying of weapons by a foreigner a felony, Costabile would be sent away speedily for a term of at least seven years. Both expressed the opinion that the provision in question would prove the chief means of solving the Black Hand problem in this city, by sending away for long vacations in Sing Sing every black hand that could be connected with a gun—and there are few, they say, that can't. The Sullivan law itself, one official declared contemptuously, "was drawn in a bowling alley in the eleventh frame." Costabile, he said, had been arrested purposely under the amendment of the old law, and would be sent away even if the Sullivan law should be proved unconstitutional.

Supt. Kelly of the Bureau of Combustibles, to whom the bomb found next to Costabile's midriff had been sent for examination, opened it yesterday and found it to contain enough explosive material to kill several persons, tear down the walls and ceiling of a room, or wreck the front of a building.

He reported to Inspector Hughes that he had found the bomb similar to the ones used in all the recent bomb explosions, where the "implement or missile" had done those same pleasant things that this one would have done. In order to get expert testimony in court to-day, however, to corroborate his own, Superintendent Kelly sent the bomb to Dr. Joseph A. Deghuee, a specialist in the Lederle laboratories, for chemical analysis. The specialist, too, according to the police, found that there was enough explosive material in Costabile's little toy "implement" to send several of his countrymen quickly and assuredly to Kingdom Come. The bomb, he said, could be exploded either by concussion, percussion, or ignition.

Merchants Expected to Accuse Him.

The police say they can subpoena before the grand jury at least twenty Italian tradesmen who have been mulcted regularly by Costabile and paid blackmail to his gang, but they doubt whether a single one of them can be prevailed upon to testify in open court. All of them fear that the "high sign" will be passed to them by some countryman in the rear of the courtroom, as has been done frequently in former trials against Black Hand suspects, and that their testimony will net them one good bomb and a badly wrecked tenement, if not actual death, a few nights after they open their lips in court.

Nevertheless, there were unmistakable signs of a bullish rise of confidence in the Italian sections yesterday, as a result of the laying by the heels of Costabile, dealer in oil and "implements." The Italian papers featured his arrest in big type, and gloated over the capture of "the chief of the Black Hand."

In the cafés and wine cellars of Prince and Elizabeth and Mulberry Streets, where Costabile, according to the police, planned with his brothers in oil and "implements" the details of prospective blow-ups, small groups sat soberly around the liquor-stained tables and discussed the arrest, without mentioning names. Costabile's own friends, however, the police could not find.

One of the detectives who arrested Costabile declared yesterday that the list of names found in Costabile's possession at the time had contained at least ten names of men believed to have belonged to his gang. Five of these, however, he said, skipped out of town within a few hours after their chief's arrest. The rest, the police say, will be kept under close surveillance, but no arrest will be attempted until sufficient evidence against them has been gathered to insure their being held in court.

Other evidence of a damaging nature, according to the police, was found in a search of Costabile's two rooms on the third floor of 136 Chrystie Street. Just what this evidence consisted of Inspector Hughes was unwilling yesterday to divulge, but he said the police are working on it and consider it important.

At that house yesterday there was a sullen family gathering around Costabile's wife and her three children. Mrs. Costabile, who had been operated on only the day before for a growth in her throat, insisted that her husband was only going to a Spring Street drug store at the time of his arrest with a prescription he wanted filled for her.

Innocent, Says His Wife.

"That detective, the one who comes so often around and bothers him," she cried shrilly, "Carrao, meets him and asks him what he has in his pocket, tapping it with his hand. A minute later the other detectives run up and arrest him. He knows of the bomb only when he sees it at Police Headquarters. The doctor's prescription—the one for me," she screamed, tearing at the bandages at her throat, "that they take away from him and tear up. He is as innocent of bomb-setting as the child," she cried, holding aloft angrily the smallest and most bomb-like of her three small children.

Mrs. Costabile said her husband used to have a store in the basement of his home. That was three years ago. She did not know exactly what sort of business he carried on since then, except that he sold oil. That used to carry him out of town sometimes, he said, often as far as Pennsylvania.

It was this hint, coming on top of other evidence yesterday, that led the police to suspect that Costabile's Black Hand activities had extended to the neighboring State, where much trouble of the sort has been experienced lately in the neighborhood of Wilkesbarre, Scranton, and Reading. Two of his close associates, the police say, were killed in Pennsylvania only a month ago, and it is believed that there, too, a profitable branch of the local trade in oil and "implements" was carried on.

TO BARE MORE OHIO BRIBERY.

Hogan Charges That Investigators Are Shielding Corrupt Legislators.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 6.—Rodney J. Diegel, the convicted Sergeant at Arms of the State Senate, will be sentenced on Saturday. This announcement was made by Judge Kinkead, who returned from his vacation to-day. The State's attorneys have given up hope that Diegel will tell all he knows, and declare they will not recommend clemency for him.

Attorney General Hogan is much incensed over the actions of the Ohio Manufacturers' Association. He complains that the association, which was instrumental in bringing the Burns detectives here to investigate corruption in the Legislature, has not played fair, and has been holding back a great deal of information of an incriminating character against various members of the Legislature.

Wayne B. Wheeler, Superintendent of the Anti-saloon League, to-day put the State's attorney in possession of a mass of criminating evidence against many Senators and Representatives. The evidence dates back to the fight on the Rose option bill three years ago, and also has to do with the two Dean liquor bills which were defeated at the last session.

It is well known that the liquor interests spent many thousands of dollars in an attempt to defeat the local option bill and pass the Dean bills, and Wheeler's evidence details the manner in which much money is said to have been used. The State prosecutors for some time have had evidence of bribery against five members of the Legislature in connection with the Dean liquor bills at the last session.

WOMAN IN PASTOR'S REMOVAL

Minister Owns to Writing an "Injudicious" Letter to Her.

CLARENCE, Mo., Sept. 6.—A letter written by the Rev. H. Horwood Johnson to a young woman of his congregation and a letter written to the minister by Oscar Callison, an official of the church, are now believed to have been the cause of the pastor's sudden withdrawal from the Southern Methodist ministry and his departure from Clarence.

"God knows my sin," was the only explanation in Mr. Johnson's message to the Missouri Methodist Conference. In a letter to Presiding Elder Lehnhoff at Macon he wrote: "I have not been guilty of immorality, but of injudicious conduct through correspondence."

It became known that Pastor Johnson's "injudicious" letter was written to a young woman who had shown marked admiration for him and had been a frequent caller at his home. The letter was found by the woman's sister, and was shown to Mr. Callison. He wrote the minister a letter, but denies warning Mr. Johnson not to return to Clarence. He said the letter was written in a friendly spirit and he would welcome the pastor back.

MOVING TIME FOR FISHES.

Bass and Pike in Kensico Lake, Westchester, to be Transplanted.

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Practically all the potable water in Kensico Lake will be drawn out within a day or so and preparations are now under way to transfer from the lake all the game fish, especially pike and bass. These are to be transported to Rye Lake, Byram Lake, Wampus Lake, and other bodies of water. The Supervisors and the fishing clubs are bearing the expense.

Fishermen from the Hudson with nets will be on hand to undertake the task on Friday or Saturday. Tanks are on hand for the transportation of the fish from the lake to their new homes. The transfer will be under the supervision of Game Warden George E. Sutton of this place. Only the game fish will be taken.

A moving-picture machine concern has arranged to picture the work. Just as soon as the fish are removed the lake will be turned over to the contractor so that the dam building can proceed.

OHIO PRIMARY VOTE LIGHT.

"Dries" Defeated in Toledo—Newark Repudiates ex-Mayor Atherton.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 6.—The vote in Ohio at the primary elections yesterday was unusually light, due in part to weather conditions, but the rain did not completely cause a collapse of the fight over the liquor question.

In Toledo, on the Republican side, the "dries" were defeated, State Senator Carl Keller, a Liberal, having been nominated for Mayor. Alvin C. Jones, a church worker and Anti-saloon League candidate, was about 400 votes behind Keller. The vote did not exceed 6,000.

The Socialist vote in Columbus and Toledo, where the party has large memberships, was also light.

In Newark, the scene of the lynching of Carl Etherington a year ago, former Mayor Herbert Atherton failed to get vindication, having been defeated in the Democratic primaries.

BRIDE DRESSED IN BANDAGES

Burned When Wedding Gown Caught Fire, but the Ceremony Went On.

VINELAND, N. J., Sept. 6.—Miss Emma Goodell, with head, arms, and shoulders swarthed in bandages, became Mrs. Edward Vinyard last night. The ceremony was performed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Goodell. Last evening was the date set for the wedding, and it was intended that it should be something of an elaborate nature.

On Monday, while she was working on her wedding dress, putting on the finishing touches, the garment caught fire. In her effort to save it the bride-to-be was badly burned, and a large part of her hair was burned off. Although unable to dress, she insisted there be no postponement of the wedding.

Rumored Jersey Trolley Absorption.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 6.—Although no one will either affirm or deny the reports, there are many rumors that the Johnson trolley systems in Bucks County, Penn., and Mercer County, this State, are to be absorbed by the Trenton and Mercer County Traction Company. The latter concern was badly hampered last week when its power house was flooded by the overflowing of a nearby creek. If this deal is made it will acquire a fine plant at Yardley, Penn., which would provide sufficient current for all its cars.

Boy Shoots His Sister at Play.

While playing with a breech-loading Flobert rifle yesterday afternoon James Badger, 8 years old, of 40 James Street, Cedar Manor, Queens, accidentally shot his twelve-year-old sister Lillian. The mother of the children went shopping, leaving them alone. James aimed the rifle at his sister and pulled the trigger. The ball struck her in the mouth, breaking three of her teeth and shattered the upper jaw. She was removed to the Jamaica Hospital and will recover.

TAFT TO BE GUEST AT HARTFORD FAIR

Gov. Baldwin Will Receive the President and Give Luncheon in Memorial Hall.

GOLFS AND WRITES SPEECH

President Sees Harold H. Hilton, British Champion, Play 18-Hole Course in 79.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 6.—President Taft leaves to-morrow morning for Hartford, where he will be the central figure at the State Fair to be held in the Capital City, and will make his last set speech before leaving on his Western trip.

Plans as arranged to-night will allow the President to leave Beverly soon after 7 o'clock and travel into Boston in his new automobile, arriving in time to take the special in which he leaves the South Station soon after 9 o'clock. All arrangements have been made for giving the President's special a clear track, and the run will be made in about three hours.

The President plans to leave about 5 o'clock for Boston, where he is due about 8 o'clock. His automobile will be at the South Station to meet him and he will motor back to Beverly.

Attorney General Wickersham will make the trip from Boston to Hartford and will return with the President, and at Boston plans to meet Secretary of Commerce and Labor Charles Nagel, who is at his Summer place at Marion, and will join him for a short inspection tour of some of the lighthouse districts.

Dr. E. A. Baker of Ohio, who has been active in the Maine campaign for the retention of the prohibition clause in the Constitution, called at the executive offices to-day, but was unable to obtain an interview with the President. Ohio is having about the same trouble as Maine, and the Ohio man thought he could obtain the President's views on the situation.

Golf, as usual, was the morning programme of the President. It rained hard in the morning, but the President followed his Myopia plans, and drove over with Major Butt. The President saw Harold H. Hilton, the British amateur champion, play the 18-hole course in 79. Hilton went out in 39 and came home in 40, and the President watched his play for a number of holes.

The President worked on his speech to be delivered at Hartford, during the late afternoon.

He also put in some time drafting the speech devoted to the peace pact, and in which he will amplify the remarks he made at Hamilton on the adoption of the peace pact by the Senate.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 6.—This city will be in gala attire to-morrow when President Taft arrives. The attitude of the Connecticut grange on the question of reciprocity and the withholding of a welcome to the President has only served to intensify the interest of the people in general.

The Governor and his party with his military family will gather at the Capitol at noon, and outside will be drawn up the Governor's footguard and the second division of the Naval Militia as an escort.

There will be a short parade through the city to the State Library and Memorial Building on Capitol Hill just south of the Capitol. In Memorial Hall at 1 o'clock will be served a state luncheon, to which the Governor has extended 85 invitations, the guests being a number of State officers, the Justices of the Supreme Court, the officers of the State Fair Association, the United States Senators, members of Congress, and the most prominent men of the State. Among them will be former Ambassador Lloyd C. Griscom.

From the luncheon the President, the Governor, and the entire party will be taken to Charter Oak Park, where from the grand stand on the enclosure both the President and the Governor will speak.

FIND A RARE ABORIGINE.

Scientists Obtain Valuable Tribal Lore from Southern Yahi Indian.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—Anthropologists of the University of California announce that they have found "the most uncontaminated aborigine in the known world." They have obtained from him, on phonographic records, over 300 words of his language, and expect to exhaust his scanty vocabulary within a week or so. The tribal and folk lore obtained from him thus far is considered of great value.

The man, driven from the mountains by forest fires, was caught near Oroville, a few days ago while attempting to steal meat. "Ishi," as the anthropologists call him, means "man" in the tongue of the Southern Yahi Indians, his tribe.

His theory of the origin of fire connects intimately with the mythology of other California tribes and tribes east of the Sierras, and with that of the Greeks and Romans. It involves a superior or supreme being (the coyote) who stole the fire and transmitted it to the Yahis either voluntarily or because he had to do so.

Prof. Waterman offered him a bow and arrow. The old man—Ishi is over 60—brightened up and walked outside. A hat was put on a post 100 feet away, and Ishi sped his first arrow through the centre of its crown. His method of handling the bow is said to be different from that found among any other tribes.

A BRYANT POEM FOUND.

Four Autograph Lines in Letter Written to Mrs. Elizabeth Mumford.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 6.—An unpublished poem of William Cullen Bryant came to light yesterday when Mrs. Elizabeth Mumford presented twenty autographed letters to the South Pasadena public library. The verse, which was found in a letter sent by the poet to Mrs. Mumford more than twenty-five years ago, is as follows:

There's a dance of the leaves in the poplar boughs,
There's a flutter of wind in the beechen tree,
There's a smile on the fruit and a smile on the flower,
And a laugh from the brook as it runs to me.

JEWISH HOSPITAL SHORTAGE.

Misappropriation of $100,000 to be Charged at Denver Institution.

DENVER, Sept. 6.—Informations charging misappropriation of funds of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, amounting to $100,000, will shortly be filed by District Attorney Eliot, that official said last night. It is the first official suggestion as to the amount of the shortage.

The statement followed the filing of two informations charging forgery against Bruno Grosser, Assistant Secretary of the hospital, arrested following disclosures made after the recent death of Alfred Muller, late Secretary of the institution. Grosser's bond was fixed at $10,000, which was furnished.

Many Killed at Grade Crossings.

Fourteen persons were killed and twenty-one injured in grade crossing accidents in New York and New Jersey in August, according to the announcement yesterday of the National Highways Protective Society. Of this number thirteen were killed and sixteen injured in New York State. This showing is particularly heavy, because the roads are used more in the Summer months than at any other time of the year. More than $4,000,000 has recently been appropriated for the elimination of grade crossings in New York and New Jersey.

SOLE PANAMA MAIL BIDDER.

New $15,000,000 Steamship Company May Have Rivals, Though.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The Post Office Department has been informed of the incorporation at Trenton, N. J., of the Atlantic & Pacific Transport Company, with a capital of $15,000,000, for the purpose, it is believed, of bidding for the mail service to and from the Panama Canal on both coasts. Mr. Hitchcock advertised for bids on July 20, but he realized at the time that there were no ships available with the specifications required by the terms of the bid. It was understood unofficially then that interests were at work preparing themselves to bid for the work.

The importance of the contract is indicated in the following schedule of service that must be observed by the successful bidder:

For ocean mail service from Seattle—with right of call at Astoria—to Panama once every two weeks, twenty-six trips a year, calling at San Francisco and alternately at San Pedro and San Diego, Cal., and from San Francisco to Panama once every two weeks, twenty-six trips a year, calling alternately at San Pedro and San Diego, Cal. Time from Seattle to Panama, sixteen days, and from San Francisco to Panama, ten days. Contract for ten years. Bond required with bid, $200,000.

From New York to Colon, calling at Charleston and Savannah, once each week, fifty-two trips a year. Time to Colon, six days. Contract for ten years. Bond required with bid, $100,000.

From New Orleans to Colon, once each week, fifty-two trips a year. Time to Colon, four days. Contract for ten years. Bond required with bid, $75,000.

So far this is the only company known to contemplate bidding for the service, though bids will not be opened until Nov. 25. Under the terms already set forth the service on each route must begin not later than Oct. 18, 1914.

The company's headquarters will be at Baltimore, with branch offices at the principal seaboard cities on the Atlantic, Pacific, and Gulf Coasts. The company is backed by Washington and Baltimore capital. Bernard N. Baker is President of the company, and Adrian H. Boole of this city is Vice President.

BORDER WATER WAYS PLANS.

Canadian-American Joint Commission Soon to Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A meeting will soon be called by representatives of the Canadian and American Governments for considering questions in regard to the use and development of waterways along our northern frontier. The British Ambassador has informed the State Department of the appointment of the three Canadian members of the joint commission—Sir George Gibbons of Toronto, A. P. Barnhill of St. Johns, and Aime Geoffrion of Montreal.

The American Commissioners were appointed several months ago. They are ex-Senator Carter of Montana, ex-Representative Tawney of Minnesota, and Frank S. Streeter of New Hampshire. L. W. White Busby, former private secretary to Speaker Cannon, is secretary for the American half of the commission. The American contingent has opened headquarters here, though meetings may be held anywhere along the border, according to circumstances and the particular question at issue.

Awaiting sanction are plans for developing water power in the St. John's River; for the development of the Richelieu River, the outlet of Lake Chambplain; for the development of water power in the St. Lawrence River between New York and Ontario; for a sanitary canal around Niagara Falls on the American side; for the development of water power in the Rainy River, between Minnesota and Canada; for the development of water power in the Lake of the Woods and the use of waters in Saskatchewan and Montana for irrigation.

The creation of the commission provides for direct negotiations between Canada and the United States, avoiding the delays consequent upon diplomatic communications between Washington and London, and thence back to Ottawa.

OPPOSES 'MARRYING PARSON'

Supreme Court Asked to Revoke Hunnicutt's License in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—An odd question was raised before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to-day when the Rev. William I. McKenney, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, laid a formal complaint before the Chief Justice and asked that the license of G. J. S. Hunnicutt, known locally as "the Marrying Parson," to perform the marriage service, be canceled.

Mr. Hunnicutt declares himself head of the People's Non-Sectarian Church, but the Methodist minister charges that he has never been ordained, has no church, and never had a congregation, and that his sole clerical function is reading the marriage service. According to Mr. McKenney, Mr. Hunnicutt has a widespread system for advertising his services, railroad employes, cabmen and others being used to "steer" couples to his door.

Between ceremonies Mr. Hunnicutt is a printer and keeps a small shop at Seventh and D Streets, N. W. His home office, however, is directly opposite the City Hall, where marriage licenses are obtained and most of the ceremonies are performed in his office. As to the non-sectarian church, Mr. McKenney in his complaint declares:

"This consisted when organized of three other men, and then he secured a lawyer to get the license to perform marriage ceremonies."

The license was obtained about a year ago, and since then Mr. Hunnicutt has married many couples.

TAFT PARDONS SCHOENBRUN

Former Post Office Clerk Now in Elmira to Go Back to School.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—President Taft has ordered the immediate release of Isidore Schoenbrun, formerly a postal clerk in the Hudson Terminal Postal Station in New York, who is now serving a sentence of one year in Elmira Reformatory for stealing letters.

Schoenbrun would have been released in November. He was not eligible for parole, and asked to have his sentence commuted that he might go back to school.

COURT WON'T HELP AUTOISTS

Refuses to Interfere with the Brooklyn Park Commissioner's Speedway Order.

Justice Putnam of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday denied the application of Miss Beatrice Schwalbach for a temporary injunction restraining Park Commissioner Kennedy from closing the Speedway on the Ocean Boulevard to automobiles. Several automobilists were interested in the proceedings. Justice Putnam suggests that the complainant seek a remedy through the Park Commissioner himself, or, if necessary, appeal to the Mayor. He contended that this question cannot be decided by the courts.

An act of the Legislature gave the Park Commissioner authority to use his discretion in regulating traffic on the Speedway, and he issued an order directing that automobiles and heavy vehicles should use the roadways on either side of the Boulevard between Twenty-second Avenue and Kings Highway. Miss Schwalbach asked for an injunction against the Park Commissioner's ruling on the ground that a great danger was incurred in forcing motor vehicles to use the narrow highways.

Mortgage for St. Vincent de Paul.

Supreme Court Justice Goff granted permission yesterday to the Church of St. Vincent de Paul to mortgage its property in Twenty-third Street for $95,000. The money is to be used in remodeling the church to conform to the widening of Twenty-third Street, and some of it also will be employed in enlarging a chapel and home for immigrant girls which is maintained by the parish.

RAIDERS CLEAR FORTY-SECOND ST.

All Sidewalk Stands and Showcases, as Well as Projecting Signs, Seized by City's Men.

HEAPED HIGH IN RED WAGONS

Fruits and Candies Suddenly Intrusted to Gluttonous Crowd Mostly Disappear—False Teeth Rescued.

Axes and crowbars and strong-armed men had a part in a daylight raid along Forty-second Street yesterday afternoon in which glass showcases, fruit stands, and theatre signs were seized. Large crowds were amused, and the surface transit lines were tied up for almost half an hour.

Supt. Broderick of the Bureau of Incumbrances led the raid. He divided his force into two divisions, each comprising a gang of seven strong men and a big red wagon.

One wagon crew started east on Forty-second Street at Eighth Avenue and confined its work of confiscation to fruit stands and theatre signs. All projecting signs between Seventh and Eighth Avenues which were not nailed tightly to the walls were hustled into the red wagon. A mounted policeman and a Sergeant, with a half-dozen reserves, followed in the wake of the raiders, but no resistance was met.

The first real smashup was at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Forty-second Street. The enterprising Greeks who owned a fruit and candy stand there had driven stakes into the pavement to make it more secure. When an Inspector of the Bureau of Incumbrances told the proprietor to get all his merchandise removed in ten minutes there was a scramble in Times Square. Newsboys, bootblacks, and corner loafers were pressed into service. They were directed to carry the candy and fruit into a cellar near by, but few of the gumdrops and peaches reached their destination.

When all the fruits and candies had been removed, Supt. Broderick's men attacked the stand with their axes and bars, and there was little of it left but splinters when the job was finished.

In the meantime the other red wagon, starting at Third Avenue, was proceeding west on Forty-second Street, and its crew limited itself to showcases. Every case standing outside the building line was unscrewed from its mooring, stripped of its contents, and thrust into the wagon.

Alf, elevator boy at 101 West Forty-second Street, ran his car swiftly to the second floor of the building, rushed breathlessly into the offices of F. C. & J. C. Fanell, dentists, shouting:

"They're raiding the place. Men downstairs stealing all your teeth."

Neither of the Fanell brothers was in, but an assistant, Louis H. Eck, forsaking his patient, rushed downstairs to save the false teeth. A photographer in the same building, named Reynolds, saw his showcase rifled of photographs of pretty actresses and bundled into the red wagon. To a shoe merchant a little further down ten minutes was given in which to carry away all the shoes in his projecting show window. Next came Benson & Co., clothiers, where shirts and suits made a hasty exit. One of the glass cases was smashed while being hoisted upon the wagon.

"Who pays for that?" asked a bystander.

"Not us," said the smasher. "This is confiscated goods, and everything goes."

No attempt was made anywhere to interfere with the raiders. They had the authority to take what they wanted, and it was said that the owners of the showcases had been repeatedly informed that these would be seized if they were not immediately moved inside the building line. The wholesale clearance was in conformity with the widening of the street and the consequent narrowing of the sidewalks, and had long been expected.

A man who lost an exceptionally fine-looking showcase near Sixth Avenue said: "It served me right. I got two notices. I admit I wasn't paying for the sidewalk space, and I have no grudge against the city or the raiders. Now it will cost me $7.50 to haul the stuff back from the junkpile. It was not like this in the old days. All we had to do then was to see the right man and give him his, and then we weren't molested for a year."

The proceeds of yesterday's raid netted five theatre signs, two fruit stands, and thirteen showcases. All the spoils were taken to the corporation yards, and if unclaimed will be sold at public auction on Sept. 15.

WALDO SILENT ON WALSH.

Won't Discuss Inspector's Plan to Sue for Reinstatement.

Police Commissioner Waldo declined yesterday to be interviewed on the subject of Inspector Walsh's warning that he would sue for reinstatement on the police force, from which he was recently removed on the ground of physical disability.

What was said to be the Commissioner's version of the parting with Walsh was conveyed to the reporters. It was to the effect that Walsh asked for three or four months' leave without pay on the ground that he was not feeling well, and the examination by the Board of Surgeons which followed revealed the fact that his spinal cord was so affected as to interfere with locomotion. The story further pictured the Commissioner's surprise at learning of Walsh's dissatisfaction, considering the fact that the retired Inspector had gone to the trouble of thanking him. In behalf of the Commissioner an emphatic denial was made that Walsh is the first of several old timers to be retired under the present administration, which, it was declared, has no such programme.

According to Walsh's original story, he did not start things by asking for leave of absence, but merely suggested that when his retirement was discussed. He said, too, that the thanks he communicated to the Commissioner were inspired not by his retirement but by the cordial note with which the latter accompanied the official notice.

TRAPPED BY FIRE IN A LOFT.

Police Rescue Two Women and Two Boys from an Eight-Story Building.

A fire in the eighth story of a loft building at 215 and 217 Grand Street and 97 Elizabeth Street last evening trapped four employes of Rosenberg & Daniels, a jewelry firm, with salesrooms at 49 Maiden Lane. Most of the employes had gone home, but Miss A. C. Myers of Corona, L. I.; Miss S. Freedman of 1,567 Sixty-third Street, Borough Park, and two office boys were looking jewelry in a safe.

They smelled smoke and telephoned to Police Headquarters. Policemen rescued them.

It took the Fire Department three-quarters of an hour to extinguish the flames. Meanwhile cars on the Grand Street and Madison Avenue lines were halted. The fire did $1,500 damage to the clothing factory of J. Simon, on the eighth floor.

Throng at Miss Van Wyck's Funeral.

A funeral service was held yesterday afternoon over the body of Miss Katherine L. Van Wyck, who was murdered at Quogue, L. I., Monday evening. Many curious persons were present in the Church of the Atonement at Quogue. So great was the throng that all could not gain admittance. The Rev. Frederick Carter, the pastor, was assisted by the Rev. Robert Bachman of Grace Church, Manhattan. The pallbearers were Erastus Post, Abraham Post, Bert Pierson, and Seldon Hallock. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery. On the way to the church the cortège passed close to the spot where Miss Van Wyck was shot and killed by William A. Childs, Jr.

BIG COLUMBUS CELEBRATION

Scores of Decorative Floats and Many Children and Soldiers to be In Parade.

The committee of one hundred citizens appointed by Mayor Gaynor to perfect plans for an elaborate celebration of Columbus Day reported yesterday that all the necessary sub-committees had been selected. There will be committees on finance, parade, banquet, invitations, &c. According to plans already made the celebration will be one of the largest ever held in the city. In the parade will be scores of decorative floats depicting the various stages of progress in the new world since its discovery by Columbus. Thousands of public school children as well as State and Federal troops will take part. All the municipal structures are to be decorated and at night there will be a great banquet with speeches by distinguished men from various parts of the country. Fireworks and concerts will end the festivities.

Those who have already accepted membership on the finance committee are:

August Belmont, Chairman; A. Lincoln Seligman, Arthur E. Stillwell, Robert W. de Forest, Jacob A. Schiff, George W. Perkins, William J. Schieffelin, Col. Robert Means Thompson, James Butler, Herman A. Metz, William Salomon, Frank Dowling, Frank W. Smith, Bird S. Coler, Luigi Solari, Cesare Conti, Rocco M. Marasco, Henry Morgenthau, Gen. Cleveland H. Dodge, Benjamin J. Greenhut, Samuel Untermyer, Isidor Straus, Henry Phipps, Cornelius N. Bliss, J. P. Allen, Joseph P. Day, Archer N. Huntington, and George Gordon Battle.

On the banquet committee are:

John P. O'Brien, Chairman; Henry W. Taft, Isaac N. Seligman, John D. Crimmins, Alton B. Parker, Isidor Straus, William C. Muschenheim, William G. McAdoo, George Gordon Battle, J. R. Haas, Capt. William J. Costigan, Daniel J. Griffin, James P. Mulhern, Luigi Solari, and F. W. Woolworth.

Frank W. Smith is Chairman of the parade committee. Other members of it are Gen. Frederick D. Grant, Herman Ridder, Lewis Nixon, Alan A. Ryan, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

HIT BY FLYING CHISEL.

Contractor Receives Mortal Wound at Hands of a Carpenter.

John Leonardi of Hillside Avenue and Ray Street, Jamaica, a wealthy builder, was mortally injured yesterday by Conrad Muller, one of his workmen, who threw a chisel at him with unerring aim because Leonardi knocked a can of beer out of his hand. Leonardi is in St. Mary's Hospital with a fractured skull.

Leonardi does not permit his men to drink while at work. Muller, a carpenter, feeling the heat of the day, procured a can of beer and was drinking it when Leonardi ordered him to lay the can down.

Muller ran into the uncompleted building, reappearing a moment later with a sharp lather's hatchet in one hand and a long, sharp chisel in the other. Leonardi saw him and started to run. Muller threw his chisel and Leonardi fell senseless.

Muller ran to a boarding house in which he lived at Frost and Liberty Avenues, two blocks away. William Brooks, a painter, who was in pursuit, grabbed at him as he mounted the steps, and Muller swung at him viciously with the hatchet. Then he held his pursuers at bay on the front porch, using the same weapon, which he swung in wide circles.

With drawn revolvers half a dozen policemen entered the house, which, meanwhile, had been surrounded by watchers, who told them Muller had not gone out. Nevertheless, a search of several hours did not result in his discovery.

RAILWAY TRACKMEN CONFER.

Meet Lackawanna Officials and Hear Why One of Them Was Discharged.

A conference between representatives of the trackmen of the Scranton Division of the Lackawanna Railroad and officials of the railroad company was held yesterday at the offices of the company in Hoboken. The company was represented by Chief Engineer Ray and Assistant Chief Engineer Neasle. The matter discussed was the dismissal of Matthew Foley, Chairman of the Trackmen's Union at Scranton.

It was asserted by the trackmen that Foley was discharged because of his connection with the union. Both the chief engineer and his assistant went into the details of the case and explained that Foley had been dismissed for insubordination. They said he asked for a furlough of two days so that he could discuss labor questions with the railroad officials in Hoboken. This was granted, they said, but five days afterward he was found distributing circulars in a Pennsylvania town. He was ordered to return to work at once by Roadmaster Cummings of Scranton, but failed to do so, according to the officials, and when he did go back he found his place filled.

CONFESSES TO THE MAYOR,

Who Tells Perjurer He Must Make Restitution Before Seeking Forgiveness.

Mayor Gaynor received a letter yesterday from a Los Angeles man who used to live in New York and who confesses that he perjured himself in a lawsuit before the Mayor when he was a Judge. The Mayor sent him this letter:

Sept. 6, 1911.

Dear Sir: Your letter is at hand. You state that some years ago you were a witness before me when I was a Judge, and a false witness, and deceived me, so that I decided the case wrongly, and that you make this confession to me because you have become a Christian and want forgiveness. According to my views, you have to do more than this to be forgiven. You have to make amends. Mere talk does not purchase forgiveness. Where anything is stolen or got unjustly it must be refunded before forgiveness can be expected, if the sinner be able to refund. That is the way I understand it. So you had better tell me what the case was so that I may look it up and see what loss the defeated party sustained; and then you must restore his money to him or make good his loss. If this be not your view I fear you are in error in supposing that you have got religion and are a Christian.

Yours very truly,
W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

20,000 AT DOOLING OUTING.

Women and Children Go in 150 Surface Cars—Political Leaders Attend.

Several estimates gave 20,000 as the number of persons who participated in the annual outing given by Peter J. Dooling, Democratic leader of the Ninth District, at Manhattan Casino yesterday afternoon and night. The first detachment of the guests were women and children, who came to the Casino in 150 surface cars.

After the women and children went home at about 6:30 the young people of the district and the politicians began to arrive, and the merrymakers occupied three dancing halls, while the remainder of the crowd availed themselves of the numerous amusements provided at the Manhattan Gardens.

Among the politicians present were representative Republican leaders as well as every Democratic leader in Greater New York associated with Tammany Hall. Leader Charles F. Murphy was not present, but sent a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Dooling. Fourteen Judges, representing every court in the city, were present.

Report To-night on the Borough Bank.

A meeting of the depositors of the Borough Bank of Brooklyn will be held this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the clubhouse of the Democratic organization of the Ninth Assembly District, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. The committee of the depositors will meet the Superintendent of Banks before this meeting and will have a report on the affairs of the Borough Bank ready for reading at the meeting.

COAL BARGE MEN YIELD.

Berwind-White Co. Say Tie-Up of Atlantic Liners Has Been Averted.

A strike which threatened for a time to tie up the transatlantic liners at this port was reported checked yesterday by the Berwind-White Coal Mining Company of 1 Broadway. The company has the contract for coaling most of the transatlantic liners. It has headquarters at the foot of Sixth Street, Jersey City.

Late on Saturday the 300 bargemen employed on the 200 coal barges of the concern went on strike. They are known as "lower men," as they work on the barges. Those who work on the platforms suspended on the steamer's sides and dump the coal into the bunkers are known as "upper men." The lower men on Sunday persuaded the upper men to join them in striking. A representative of the Berwinds went to the Sixth Street coal pocket and after a conference with them obtained the consent of the lower men to go back to work.

Their action prevented a detention in port of the steamships which were then coaling. It was said yesterday at the Broadway office of the company that about 150 men were still out on strike. Their places are being filled, it was added, the barges being handled without trouble, and there would be no delay in coaling the week-end fleet. A difference over the question of wages is said to have caused the strike.

Fifty men were landed from a tug at the foot of Sixth Street, Jersey City, yesterday morning, and put to work by the Berwind-White Coal Mining Company in place of the men who struck on Tuesday for an advance of wages. Capt. Joseph Richards sent a detail of policemen to keep order. Adolph Blaskie, 25 years old, of Bridgeport, Conn., was assaulted on Tuesday evening at Ninth and

BURGESS SWIMS ENGLISH CHANNEL

Yorkshireman Duplicates Capt. Webb's Feat After Fifteen Unsuccessful Attempts.

22½ HOURS IN WATER

Distance Covered, Owing to Zig-Zag Course, Estimated at Sixty Miles—King Congratulates Swimmer.

Special Cables to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 7.—After thirty-six years, in which numberless unsuccessful attempts have been made, Capt. Webb's feat of swimming across the English Channel has at last been duplicated by William T. Burgess, a Yorkshireman, who carries on a blacksmith's business in Paris. Burgess was twenty-two and a half hours in the water, forty minutes more than Webb.

Mr. Burgess was lying in bed when a correspondent of The Daily Mail saw him yesterday afternoon. "It was the hardest fight I ever had all through," were his first words, and this was his sixteenth attempt, "but after the first twelve hours I was determined to stay in for thirty hours if I had to. The first thing I did when I got to land at Gris Nez was to have a jolly good cry. It relieved me. I could not stand up at all at first, after being tossed up and down for so many hours, but I quickly recovered and walked up the beach.

"I ate nothing for eight hours after arriving because I would have been ill. Of course, they made me have a glass of champagne, but that did not agree with me.

"When I got home I had a dinner of lamb, vegetables, and blackberry tart, which I had told my mother to have ready for me. I enjoyed it, too, and now I feel as fit as anything. I don't want to go to sleep. I should like to have a walk this evening."

Describing his experiences from the start, Mr. Burgess said:

"I began with a good old English breakfast at home an hour before I started. Ham and eggs are splendid to swim on, and I can always start off soon after a meal. I have had practically no training for this—only eighteen hours' swimming, and the longest swim was six miles.

"It was during the first half of the swim that I had the worst time. From the third to the fifth hours it was quite rough, and I got very much knocked about and was seasick, though I am a good sailor. During the first twelve hours I determined several times to give up and go back and start again when conditions were better, but I am glad I did not.

"I used the overarm side stroke practically all the way, except for a time, when my heart gave me trouble with contraction, and then I turned over and swam on my back. An expert swimmer friend told me the overarm side stroke was the ugliest stroke, and that I was the ugliest swimmer he knew. I think he must acknowledge himself wrong.

"I was never unconscious on the way, though I sometimes go to sleep in the water, but I had hallucinations and saw all sorts of horrible things—too horrible to describe to you. When I was very groggy and very miserable they all sang me anything they could think of as loud as they could, and that helped immensely.

"Then I was stung thousands of times by jellyfish, particularly by big purple ones, but I swim flatter than most men and a great many of them slid away from under me.

"The boys in the boat were splendid. After the first six hours I found the motor boat was making too much spray and wash, and three of them got a little rowing boat and towed the motor boat, with eight other men in it, for seventeen hours. They never stopped.

"Eat and drink? I had patent food, chicken, chocolate, and some tea, which last, however, was not for food, but to curb indigestion.

"The last five miles, the 'swimmer's mile,' as they call it, took me seven and a half hours to do, but I never gave in, and when I had got so far I never had a thought of coming out. I would have gone on another seven hours if necessary.

"I have already had several flattering offers for the future, but I must first think of my business in Paris, where I have lived for many years with my wife, who is French. I shall not neglect my business. I am Yorkshire born and bred. People say I am French. I am not."

PARIS, Sept. 6.—A great impression has been made in sporting circles and among the general public here by Mr. Burgess's swim across the Channel.

Burgess, who came to France in 1888, married a Frenchwoman and made Paris his home. His numerous attempts to swim the Channel made him a favorite among Parisians, who were especially attracted by his faith in his overarm stroke, which he still employs steadily and with the greatest ease.

Although in the course of the last fifteen years he took part in almost all the big competitions, luck seemed always to be against him and he generally finished second by about half a length. His only victory was in 1906, when he finished alone in the twenty-four-hour race organized by the newspaper Auto at Joinville. This achievement was the more remarkable as his competitors were the best swimmers of Europe.

Parisians who were preparing an enthusiastic welcome were much disappointed when they received news that Mr. Burgess had crossed back to England.

Mrs. Burgess could not be reached today, as she left her house, giving no address, in order to avoid reporters. The Paris newspapers will give several columns apiece to Burgess's feat tomorrow.

DEAL, Sept. 6.—Capt. Webb's feat of swimming the English Channel was duplicated to-day by William T. Burgess, a Yorkshire man by birth and a naturalized Frenchman. It was Burgess's sixteenth attempt, he having first essayed the task in 1904.

King George to-day sent a telegram of hearty congratulation to the swimmer.

Burgess started from the South Foreland, Dover, at 11:15 A. M. yesterday. He landed at Le Châtelet, a little village two miles east of Cape Gris Nez, at 9:00 this morning. A motorboat accompanied the swimmer and it is estimated that Burgess, owing to the zigzag course he was compelled to take because of baffling tides, covered sixty miles.

Soon after the sturt a dense fog settled down over the Channel, and no further tidings of the swimmer's progress were received until the announcement was made that he had successfully accomplished the task and landed on the French side.

A strong tide was running and a severe strain was put on the swimmer to get past the Goodwin Sands. Twice he was attacked by sickness, and several times was only held to his task by the strongest will power and the encouraging words of the men in the boat. He remained on French soil just long enough to telegraph word of his success to his wife and partake of refreshments in a bathing box. Then he returned by motorboat, in order to rest and sleep.

When he landed at Deal this evening Burgess received a tremendous ovation, and with difficulty made his way through the cheering throng to a hotel.

It was 7 o'clock in the morning when the swimmer sighted the Gris Nez semaphore. He was then two miles to the west-southwest. In these two miles it was a battle with the currents, but when Burgess got within the shelter of the cape he swam easily ashore. He stumbled for two or three steps, then walked steadily without assistance. He looked remarkably fresh considering his long immersion.

The keeper of the lighthouse first caught sight of two boats approaching the shore—a motor boat and a Deal pilot boat. He then made out a figure in the water about half a mile away struggling against the fierce cross-currents. He saw Burgess, with a last great effort, reach the beach at Le Châtelet.

At the same time the bathers also caught sight of the swimmer, and word was passed rapidly that it was Burgess finishing his long swim. A large throng soon assembled at the water's edge, and many persons plunged in and convoyed the plucky swimmer ashore, encouraging him with cheers. When Burgess regained his feet he was seized, raised shoulder high, and carried to a bathhouse to the strains of the "Marseillaise," sung wildly by the excited crowd.

After a rub-down and the administration of stimulants Burgess did not appear much the worse for the ordeal.

For the trip across the Channel Burgess was well greased. He wore a pair of goggles and a rubber bathing cap. Soon after the start the wind freshened and for a time the swimmer had a bad experience in a lumpy sea. The water penetrated his goggles and especially affected the right eye, a small pool collecting in the eyepiece and necessitating a change in the goggles many times.

Finally both eyes became badly inflamed. Altogether, said Burgess, he never before suffered so much from salt water, and during the first few hours the chances of a successful issue seemed remote.

The end of flood tide, on which he started, found the swimmer three miles north of the South Sands Head Lightship. The ebb tide was tremendously strong, but the weather rapidly improved. Burgess's spirits revived, and after seven hours he was three miles south of Varne Buoy, or, roughly speaking, half way across.

By nightfall the wind had subsided, and there was an oily calm on the water. Burgess had completely recovered and was swimming powerfully. He was bright and cheery, and from time to time chatted with his companions in the boat.

The next flood tide set him right toward England over the dreaded Ridge Shoal, where he noticed the chill of shallow water. He asked that soundings be taken, and, being informed that the depth was twenty-one fathoms, he concluded that he was nearer England than France.

The swimmer Weidman dived in and accompanied Burgess from 9 o'clock until after midnight. The night was ideal, with a bright moon, but there was a haze on the water.

At 4:20 A. M. the dawning light showed Sangatte three miles distant. Burgess had an attack of muscular cramps in the region of the heart, which he attributed to the exertions of the overarm action, but he continued swimming wearily, with frequent inquiries as to his position, until nearly 8 o'clock. Then, thinking that he was still many miles off, he asked for twenty drops of champagne every hour, and "not another drop—if I go down on my knees for it."

Very soon afterward another attack of stomach cramp weakened him. He made no headway, and the situation became critical. The westward tide was sweeping him off shore, and he decided to change his course and make a dash for Gris Nez.

He followed this determination and made better progress, but was greatly handicapped by illness. At 8:30 o'clock the point of the Cape was straight ahead, but he had missed it by a quarter of a mile. He pluckily persevered, saying he felt bad, but woud make a dash for the shore.

Burgess fought his way inch by inch into the bay east of Gris Nez. It was a dramatic race with the tide. Excitement on the boat was intense as Burgess forced himself into slack water, and another fifteen minutes of painful but plucky swimming brought his gigantic task to a conclusion.

Keene's Condition Continues Good.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The attending surgeon announced to-night that J. R. Keene's condition continues to be satisfactory. Mr. Keene shows no febrile symptoms, his pulse is normal, and no complications are looked for.

CARMANIA DISABLED WHILE AT HALIFAX

Cunarder, Stopping for Coal, Breaks Engine and Canadian Passengers Are Landed.

NOW ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Voyage Across Was Long and Stormy—Americans Wanted to Land, but Waited for Repairs.

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 6.—The Cunard liner Carmania, which arrived here this morning, short of coal, sailed to-night for New York. Soon after the turbiner entered port and as anchor was being dropped one of the engines became disabled, and the break was so serious that it was thought the steamer would be detained here several days.

The Carminia has a large number of passengers aboard, and when notices posted in the cabins that the ship might be delayed here for several days owing to an accident to the machinery there was much consternation in the first cabin.

The Canadian passengers demanded that they be landed, and the immigration authorities acceded to the request and the Canadians left on the afternoon train.

The American passengers also requested that they be landed, but the officers of the ship thought it advisable for them to remain aboard. The steamer's force of engineers and helpers worked double shifts to repair the break, and this evening the work was completed and to the delight of the passengers the Carmania resumed her voyage.

Capt. Dow attributes the break in the machinery to the poor quality of coal taken on board at Plymouth, and he expressed himself pleased that the break had not occurred in midocean.

The trip of the Carminia was a long and stormy one, and the passengers are tired of ship life. The steamer did not sustain any damage, but the engineers and firemen were worked over time.

Among the passengers on board is Miss Marie Doro, who is billed to open in "The Butterfly and The Wheel" in New York.

The Carminia took 400 tons of coal.

NACHOD MUST PAY GIRL.

Banker's Son Defendant in Breach of Promise Suit in England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Walter Nachod, son of the international banker whose firm has branches in New York and London, was mulcted to-day in £350 ($1,750) damages in a breach of promise action brought by an English girl named Carless.

Nachod broke off the engagement by a letter in which he said:

"You would have to live in Germany, and I feel sure you would never get accustomed to German life, and especially German culture."

Miss Carless said Nachod told her he would probably go to New York to become a member of his father's firm there.

AGED BROTHER VISITS POPE.

Pontiff Does Not Permit Angelo Sarto to Kneel, but Embraces Him.

ROME, Sept. 6.—The meeting to-day between Pope Pius and his brother, Angelo Sarto, who brought his nephew from their home in Grazie to be confirmed by his Holiness, was touching.

Angelo, although two years older, on being ushered into the apartments of the Pontiff, was about to kneel and kiss his brother's hand, but the Pope prevented him and instead embraced him tenderly.

The brothers remained together for about an hour. On leaving the Pope's room, Signor Sarto said that he had found the Pontiff in a most satisfactory condition of health, adding that they both were fast becoming octogenarians.

The Pope to-day ratified the decision of the Consistorial Congregation, appointing the Right Rev. Joseph M. Koudelka of Cleveland as Auxiliary Bishop of Milwaukee. The appointment of the Right Rev. Mgr. J. M. Laval, Vicar General of the Archdiocese of New Orleans, to be Auxiliary Bishop of New Orleans, was also ratified by the Pontiff.

PRUSSIAN CROPS VERY POOR.

Drought Caused Disaster—Cattle Sold Owing to Lack of Pasturage.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The official crop report, made public to-day, describes conditions throughout Prussia in gloomy terms. The prolonged drought not only burned the crops, but also caused such a plague of field mice, larvae, and other crop destroyers that great fears are entertained for the Winter.

The crops of potatoes and sugar beets are very small. Fodder crops suffered so severely that owners are selling off their cattle, despairing of keeping them through the Winter. Pastrage has already partly or wholly given out.

Little progress has been made toward Winter crops. The soil is baked so hard that ploywing is difficult and sowing impossible.

Earthquake in Germany.

STUTTGART, Sept. 6.—A moderate but prolonged earth shock was felt in this vicinity last night.

Orientals

The Largest Specialty Rug House in America.

The Day of Confusion

It has come, in the world of Oriental rugs.

Weaves are confused — colors are confused — names and values are confused.

Rugs which came in their original purity from one rug district in Persia and achieved world-wide reputation are now woven in other districts.

Rugs from the original district maintain their integrity, their beauty, their unique value.

The others—they, too, come to America and are sold.

In the trade they both pass by the same name.

Unless one is REALLY AN EXPERT the difference between the two is not readily distinguished.

It is well to remember there are TWO SIDES to an Oriental rug, though it is woven only on one side:

There's the seems-to-be-true side and the actually-true side.

If you get the actually-true side of a good Oriental rug, you get the finest floor covering in the world.

So, also, there are TWO WAYS to tell which you are getting:

One is to put the rug on the floor and subject it to wear.

If it is the actually-true kind it will demonstrate its splendid quality by years of wear.

If it is the seems-to-be-true kind, it will demonstrate its lack of quality in a few months—or a year.

The other way is to purchase your rug from a house that has established its position.

One that has religiously refused to offer CHEAP ORIENTAL RUGS—that has demonstrated its ability to judge.

WILD'S ORIENTALS are the regularly selected examples of the very best weaves and colors and designs coming out of the Orient to-day.

They have the reputation of Joseph Wild & Co., and many years of careful study and experience back of them.

Not CHEAP, but always REASONABLY PRICED.

For instance, a splendid carpet-size rug—one of several good, authenticated weaves, suited in color and texture to the room it is intended for, at $100 to $150.

Smaller rugs in proportion—or rarer ones up to $25,000.

HOTEL OWNER SHOT DEAD IN HIS CAFE

Bartender of The Charles in Seventh Avenue Flees After the Murder.

NO ONE SAW HIM FIRE

Victim's Body Falls Back from Bar Entrance Into Cafe Where He Had Been Drinking with Two Women.

While two women and half a dozen men were drinking in the backroom of the café of the Hotel Charles, at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Charles Ruhbish, one of the proprietors of the hotel, was shot at the door leading into the bar. He fell back into the little room and died in the arms of his partner, Charles Thomas, and two women who frequented the hotel. One bullet went through his brain and another through his body. His body was stretched out on the tile floor beside the small red table where a few moments before he had been talking with one of the women.

Detectives are sure that the shots were fired by the barkeeper, Thomas Trimp, though no one was in the barroom at the time and a swinging door cut off the sight of the bar from the back room. Trimp was seen to run from the saloon and to throw his apron into Seventh Avenue as he ran up the street. The explanation of the murder, the police say, is that Trimp, who had been drinking, quarreled with Ruhbish, who had the name of being a hard man among his employes, and shot him in a fit of rage.

Thomas, who was sitting in the back room when he heard the shots, ran into the street, and afterward said he thought the shots were meant for him. Three weeks ago James Boylan, a well-known character in that neighborhood, was shot in another saloon owned by Thomas, at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, and ever since then Boylan's gang has been making threats against Thomas, who is thought to have done that shooting. He is now out on bail and will be tried for it when Boylan gets out of the New York Hospital. Thomas, the detectives found, was sitting at a table with Elsie Fitzgerald, who at one time collected a large sum from a Broadway hotel for the loss of her right arm when she was working as a laundress. Ruhbish was at a table near by with May Evans of 229 West Thirtieth Street. He got up saying he would be back in a few minutes, and invited the Evans woman to sit with his partner and the Fitzgerald woman until he came back. He stepped toward the barroom, and then the shots were heard. Ruhbish gasped: "Don't let him shoot again!" and died.

Elsie Fitzgerald and May Evans were taken to the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, and Capt. Funston of Headquarters, in charge of the Third Inspection District, examined them. Neither is thought to have any connection with the murder, though jealousy over attentions to Elsie Fitzgerald was first taken as a motive for the crime. She said she had gone to the saloon to pay Thomas $100 that she owed him.

Later there came to the police station a woman who said she was Ruhbish's wife and lived at 116 West Forty-ninth Street. But Thomas said that Ruhbish was not married and was engaged to a vaudeville actress by the name of Ida Barr, now on the road.

Ruhbish and Thomas have run the Hotel Charles together for eighteen months, and half of that time Trimp has been employed as a bartender. The latter is described as being about 23 years old and very strong. A guest at the hotel, who saw him at noon yesterday, two hours before the shooting and just before he went on duty, said that he was very drunk. For any shortcoming of an employe Ruhbish was known to have been accustomed to give harsh reprimand. This is what is thought to have occurred yesterday.

Detectives were searching for Trimp yesterday afternoon

REJECT CITIZEN ARMY PLAN.

English Trades Unionists Attack Will Thorne for Advocating It.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Sept. 6.—By 500,000 votes to 96,000, the Trades Union Congress, now in session here, to-day rejected the proposal for the organization of a citizen army. The subject was introduced by the London Glass Blowers' Society in the form of a resolution, as follows:

> This congress, realising that militarism and the existence of a regular standing army constitute a menace to popular liberty, is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the institution of a real citizen army, free entirely from military law during times of peace, officered entirely by the selection of the rank and file, such citizen army to be used for defensive purposes only.

Will Thorne, labor member of Parliament for West Ham, was the principal advocate of the proposition. He declared that if the principles of the right to work bill were granted, it must be accompanied either by conscription or by a citizen army; otherwise, if work were assured to every one there would be no army.

Opponents of the measure twitted Mr. Thorne with being a "comrade" of Lord Roberts, who is an ardent conscriptionist.

PORTUGUESE REVOLT RIPE.

Monarchists Consider the Present Favorable for Invading Republic.

LISBON, Sept. 6.—A semi-official note just issued, says that apparently the Portuguese Monarchist plotters in Galicia have considered the present moment favorable for their projective invasion, but that the Government has taken all necessary measures to repel attack and insure the integrity of the republic.

Premier Chagas has received detailed information from the Portuguese Consuls at various towns along the Galician frontier, confirming the report that an attack by the Royalists is probable. A special council of the Ministers was held last night to consider the situation.

DIRIGIBLE'S LONG VOYAGE.

The Schwaben Reaches Gotha on Way from Baden-Baden to Berlin.

BADEN-BADEN, Sept. 6.—The Zeppelin dirigible balloon Schwaben left this city with seven passengers at 6:05 A. M. on a voyage to Berlin. The airship is scheduled to make a stop to-day at Gotha, about half way between Baden-Baden and the German capital.

The distance of the proposed flight is approximately 350 miles.

GOTHA, Sept. 6.—The Schwaben arrived here at 12:30 P. M., by way of Frankfort.

The passengers were landed successfully.

BOLIVIAN INSULT TO PERU.

Mob Attacks Peruvian Legation at La Paz and Pulls Down Shield.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A Bolivian mob attacked the Peruvian Legation at La Paz on Monday, pulled down the shield, and shattered the windows of the building, according to a telegram received today from American Minister Knowles.

The rioting seems to have been caused by an unconfirmed rumor that there had been a conflict on the frontier between the forces of Bolivia and Peru. The fact that the report was unofficially denied did not lessen the fury of the mob.

The ill feeling is believed to be due to the boundary disbute between the two countries.

500 Negro Seamen Destitute.

CARDIFF, Wales, Sept. 6.—Five hundred negro seamen are destitute here and are subsisting on free meals. The increase in wages due to the strike will enable ship owners to man their ships with whites, and they refuse to employ colored seamen.

PRINCESS OF THIEVES JAILED.

Annie Grant and Russian Prince Sentenced for Shoplifting.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Mary Fergusson, an American described as an actress, and a Russian Prince named Alexander Ivanovitch, were sentenced at the Old Bailey to-day to five years' imprisonment on the charge of shoplifting. The prisoners also were condemned to deportation following the expiration of their terms in jail.

A statement forwarded here by the New York police, and placed in evidence by the prosecution, charges the woman's associate with being a notorious bank thief.

The Fergusson woman is a native of Detroit, and, according to the police, was known by the name of Annie Grant and Annie Gleeson in America, where, it is alleged, she is wanted by the authorities for absconding while under bail.

Mrs. Annie Gleason, which is the real name of the woman convicted in London, is a thief of international reputation, for the police of several countries have long known her as a badger, a shoplifter, a pickpocket, and a pennyweighter. Her desire to be known as an actress is probably based on the fact that years ago she did a "turn" in a Chicago music hall. In the interval she has lived by her wits and lived conspicuously well, for her hats and gowns were always impressively elegant, especially when she appeared at the race tracks in Paris.

Inspector Drew of Scotland Yard long had her on his list. In 1905 she was caught in the act of getting away with a costly string of pearls from Christie's auction rooms in London. They were worth $10,000. She visited the rooms as a richly-gowned woman of apparent good position and studied the necklace, and at her third appearance deftly substituted an imitation string.

The only easily detected difference was in the color of the tags attached, and this led to her being captured before she got into her cab. Three years was the penalty. On another occasion Inspector Drew found her settling as a quiet-mannered, charitable and hospitable householder in the suburbs of London, and descended on her just as she was entrenching herself in the confidence of the community.

Mrs. Gleason sailed from these shores in 1904, when she was wanted here on a shoplifting charge, and her sudden departure compelled her to forfeit two bail bonds. Her husband, "Mickey" Gleason, is in the same line of business, but he specializes as a professional bank sneak thief. He is now doing time in a Munich prison. His wife, however, does her work on a higher plane, and has pursued her career with so much dash and style that she has been called the "Princess of thieves."

MISSIONARY WAS POISONED.

Rev. O. E. Davis's Campaign Against Polygamy Angered Guianans.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Sept. 6.—The Rev. O. E. Davis, Superintendent of the British Guiana Mission of the Seventh Day Adventists, whose death at the hands of natives in the interior was announced yesterday, was poisoned.

Letters left by the missionary give in detail the circumstances of the crime. It is understood that his campaign against the practice of polygamy exasperated the natives.

Honorary Degrees for Americans.

CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 6.—The celebration in connection with the centenary of the University of Christiania continued today. Honorary degrees were conferred upon the following Americans: John Bates Clark of New York, political economist; Frederick Jackson Turner of Madison, Wis.; William Morris Davis of Cambridge, Mass., geographer and geologist; William Lewis Elkin of New Haven, astronomer; Albert Abraham Michelson of Chicago, scientist; Henry Fairfield Osborn of New York, paleontologist; Theodore William Richards of Cambridge, Mass., chemist; Charles Doolittle Walcott of Washington, D. C., scientist; Ludvig Hektoen of Chicago, pathologist, and Marcus O. Bockman of St. Paul, Minn., theologian.

Russian Princess Married.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 6.—Another imperial wedding took place here to-day, when Princess Tatiana Constantinova, daughter of Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch, was married to Prince Constantine Bagration-Mukhransky, a cornet in the Horse Guards. The Emperor blessed the bridal pair. There is a bill pending in the Duma to appropriate $500,000 to the benefit of Prince Bagration-Mukhransky, whose ancestors left unliquidated claims against the Russian Treasury for surrendering the throne of a minor Caucasian principality. An imperial ukase was issued recently granting to all but grand ducal members of the imperial family the privilege of contracting marriages outside the reigning houses.

Persian Rebel Leader Executed.

TEHERAN, Sept. 6.—The defeated rebel leader, Arshad ed Dowleh, was executed in camp this morning. He protested his loyalty to the deposed Shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, to the last.

SUES SAGE ESTATE TO SELL COLLATERAL

John C. Eno Wants Stocks Pledged with Late Financier Disposed Of.

WERE HELD TO SECURE LOAN

Suit Recalls Financial Methods Common in Past Years — Stocks Now of Greater Value Than Amount of Loan.

Stocks and bonds pledged to Russell Sage as collateral for al oan in the days when he was a financial power in Wall Street figure in a suit brought in the Supreme Court yesterday, in which Margaret Olivia Sage, wife of Russell Sage, is the defendant.

The suit is brought by John C. Eno, an uncle of Gifford Pinchot, and a son of Amos R. Eno, owner of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. Mr. Eno demands that Mrs. Sage and other executors of the Russell Sage estate be compelled to offer for sale certain collateral pledged to Russell Sage in December, 1896, as security for a loan which, with interest, now amounts to $42,000.

The members of the firm, which negotiated the loan, have died, with one exception, and the firm itself, like Russell Sage, has passed out of existence, but the securities pledged have remained at or above par through the intervening years.

Eno's interest in the securitse came about through one of those financial deals which were common a decade ago. The old brokerage firm of Decker, Howell & Co. found itself hard pressed for cash in 1896 and went to Russell Sage. One after another they put up blocks of stocks in their possession, including first mortgage bonds of the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad to the value of $15,000 at par.

In 1897 the firm reached a point where it was without funds, and at the same time was out of collateral with which to obtain credit. Russell Sage took an assignment and found himself possessing as collateral first mortgage bonds of the South Yuba Water and Mining Company, worth at par $30,000; terminal mortgage bonds of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad to the amount of $5,000; Long Island Railroad general mortgage bonds to the amount of $5,000; City of Houston bonds worth $8,000, and first mortgage bonds of the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad worth $15,000.

The latter block of securities brought instant trouble upon Mr. Sage and the members of the assigning firm of Decker, Howell & Co. William J. Fliess appeared, alleging that he was the owner of the bonds, and that Decker, Howell & Co. had pledged them without his knowledge or consent, and with intent to defraud him out of their value. He threatened to bring a criminal action against the members of the dissolved firm.

To assist Mr. Howell, who is the only member of the firm still alive, John C. Eno came forward with cash enough to satisfy the claim of Fleiss. He obtained in return an assignment of the securities, but as Russell Sage never sold out his securities to satisfy his loan this block remained with the rest in the Russell Sage estate.

Mr. Eno now holds that the sale of the securities would much more than satisfy the Sage loan. He believes that the proceeds from the water company's bonds with that which can be derived with the remaining securities, other than his own, will satisfy the Sage loan. Mr. Eno is represented by the law firm of Hitchings & Dow, at 100 Williams Street.

GEIDEL TO SING SING.

Large Crowd to See the Murderer of Broker Jackson Taken from Tombs.

After being in the Tombs for a little more than a month and a half, Paul Geidel, convicted of the murder of William H. Jackson in the Hotel Iroquois, was taken to Sing Sing yesterday to serve his term of imprisonment, which will be not shorter than twenty years and may be for the rest of his life.

He left the Tombs shortly after 9 o'clock, shaking hands with all the keepers with whom he had become acquainted, and then, joining Deputy Sheriffs Britenbach and Spellman, was driven to Police Headquarters, where his measurements were taken according to the Bertillion system.

There a large crowd gathered around the prison van and the police were obliged to clear a path for him when he was led out of the building.

RAIDS WITH FOREWARNING.

Much Gambling Paraphernalia Seized, but No Prisoners Taken.

Four gambling raids made by Inspector Hayes after 2 o'clock yesterday morning netted much araphernalia, but nothing more, for the word had gone ahead, and when the police arrived at the house chosen for attack they found that all the people, employes and patrons, had had time for a discreet retreat. It seemed reasonably probable yesterday that there had been no leak from the inside, and the manner in which the preliminaries were arranged would account for the fact that not a prisoner was taken.

These raids were the first essayed by Hayes since he moved to the Fourth Inspection District and the place left vacant by the retirement of "Smiling Dick" Walsh. The evening before Commissioner Waldo was his guest in a general tour of the district, and such a tour cannot be conducted without being carefully noted among the hangers-on in the theatre and restaurant section, which makes up so large and lively a part of Hayes's new territory. The arrangement was that Sergeant Giblin, Sergeant Ray, and some sixteen detectives should meet the Inspector at the West Sixty-eighth Street Station at 1 o'clock. The warrants had been issued late that afternoon by Magistrate Krotel.

When the detectives reached the scene of their labors they found their arrival greeted with unconcealed amusement. If the first blow of the axes found any people in the three gambling houses in West Forty-third Street they had gone when the doors gave way. In one house a cripple was found, and he was allowed to go. At the house near Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street, which Ray was assigned to raid, the doors were opened by the caretaker, and the whole business was done neatly and without disorder.

Commissioner Waldo declined yesterday to discuss the raids.

WIFE MAY RECOVER PROPERTY

Demurrer Overruled by Justice Page in Favor of Baroness Graffenried.

The Baroness de Graffenried, who was Miss Gertrude Van Cortlandt, won yesterday what may prove to be the last step in her efforts to compel her former husband, Baron Raoul de Graffenried, from whom she got a divorce, to return to her a half interest in the Empire Court apartment souse, which she deeded to him after their marriage. Supreme Court Justice Page overruled a demurrer submitted by the Baron against his wife's complaint. Baron de Graffenried has the privilege of opposing his wife's suit, but it is believed that the Baron will carry the contest no further.

The couple were married in Paris in 1901, and it was two years later that the Baroness deeded half of her apartment house property to her husband. In 1908 they separated and soon afterward Baron de Graffenried sought a divorce on the ground of desertion. The former Miss Van Cortlandt brought a counter-suit and won a decree. Since then she has been trying to regain the half interest in Empire Court, which she deeded to her husband.

Under the laws of France, where they were married, and those of Switzerland, where the divorce was granted, the Baron was compelled to return the property. He sought to have the laws of this State made effective, which would have enabled him to keep the property. Justice Page refused to authorize this.

BETTS MAY BE PUNISHED.

Court Orders Him to Explain Why He Has Not Paid Alimony.

Supreme Court Justice Goff granted an order yesterday directing "Lou" Betts to show cause why he should not be punished for failure to pay back alimony and counsel fees from last July 23 at the rate of $600 a month alimony and $750 counsel fees. Counsel for Mrs. Anna R. Betts said in Court:

"Betts has no real or personal property that is leviable, all his property being in the names of various dummies."

SULLIVAN WANTS GUN LAW TO STAND

Declares It Was Drawn Carefully to Check Crime Here and Needs No Tinkering.

TEST IN COURT TO-DAY

Pawnbroker Will Contest Provision Putting Him in Class of Dealers and Under Restriction.

Before leaving yesterday for Albany, Senator Timothy D. Sullivan announced that he would oppose any attempt in the Legislature to weaken the force of the statute fathered by him penalizing the unlicensed possession and promiscuous sale of firearms. Senator Sullivan stoutly asserted that the statute is constitutional, and added that if any section should be upset in the courts, he would offer amendments so that its original purposes would not be defeated.

Many of the provisions of the law which have been criticised as harsh, Senator Sullivan pointed out, have been on the statute books for many years, notably the provisions prohibiting minors and foreigners from carrying arms for hunting.

Senator Sullivan said that householders and business men who desired to keep weapons in their homes and places of business as a measure of protection would not be inconvenienced by the new law. Plans had been made not only for the issuance of licenses by the police, but by the city Magistrates, whose courts are convenient to all sections of the city. Chief Magistrate McAdoo has given the matter his attention already.

Senator Sullivan said his confidence in the constitutionality of the law is based on the fact that he consulted a Supreme Court Justice in preparing it. He declared the law was carefully drawn, and did not need amendment or modification.

A test case of the new Sullivan law, so far as it affects pawnbrokers, will be argued to-day before Supreme Court Justice Goff on a writ of habeas corpus for Ivan Prince. Prince is a Seventh Avenue pawnbroker who was arrested for displaying five revolvers in his show window on Sept. 2, the day after the Sullivan law went into effect. He is represented by Michael J. Sweeney, attorney for the Pawnbrokers' Association, which is opposing the provision of the law which classes pawnbrokers as sellers of firearms and compels them to keep a record of all sales, which are restricted to those having permits.

W. R. Ruhl, a clerk in a banking office at 60 Wall Street, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate O'Connor, in the Tombs Police Court, on the charge of violating the new Sullivan law. Ruhl was arrested Tuesday after accidentally shooting a friend to whom he was explaining an automatic pistol. Ruhl denied the ownership of the gun, and declared that it had been in the office of the banking firm for some time. It was carried, he said, by messengers when carrying large amounts of money from bank to bank. He was discharged.

JURY IS REBUKED AND LAWYER FINED

Witnesses Accused of Perjury, and Burglar with a Record Goes Free in General Sessions.

JUDGE SWANN SURPRISED

"This Man May Be in Your Home Next," He Tells Jurors Who Defend Their Verdict—Costs Lawyer $50.

Alexander Karlin of the law firm of Karlin & Busch, 320 Broadway, was fined $50 for contempt of court yesterday by Judge Swann in General Sessions during a trial which brought out admissions that two witnesses had committed perjury, and resulted in an unexpected acquittal of the prisoner, William Fisher of 221 Chrystie Street, who has served seven terms in Sing Sing for burglary. He was on trial yesterday for carrying burglar's tools. Fisher was arrested on a Third Avenue car on June 19 by Detective Alexander Cohen. He was taken to Police Headquarters, where a jimmy was found on him. Later he was indicted.

Fisher was called to the stand and explained that a bunch of keys, one a skeleton key, found on him belonged to Mrs. Mary Lang of 221 Chrystie Street, where he lived. Mrs. Lang took the stand and corroborated Fisher, saying that she had left the keys with him on the night of his arrest.

Assistant District Attorney Wilmont called Mrs. Deveria Nelson, who runs a furnished room house at 672 Second Avenue, in rebuttal. She testified that Fisher formerly lived with her, and that the keys belonged to her.

Mr. Karlin then arose and admitted that it seemed certain that both Fisher and Mrs. Lang had committed perjury.

The jury then retired to consider the case, and Judge Swann called the Lang woman up to the bar, and said:

"Mrs. Lang, you have committed perjury before me, and I am at a loss to know just what to do with you. If it were not for your sex, I would commit you to the Tombs at once."

"If you do," shouted Mr. Karlin, springing to his feet, "I'll have her out in just five minutes on a habeas corpus."

"Are you the counsel for this woman?" demanded Judge Swann angrily.

"I am not," promptly replied Karlin.

"Then," said Judge Swann, "the court adjudges you guilty of contempt and fines you $50. If this fine is not paid I will commit you to the Tombs for ten days."

Judge Swann was about to say more, but a court attendant came in and announced that the jury had agreed. Judge Swann then instructed Mr. Karlin to consider himself under arrest and said he would finish his case after the jury had brought in its verdict. The jury had taken their places in the jury box by this time and the Court Clerk asked the foreman what verdict they had reached.

"Not guilty," replied the foreman.

Judge Swann was surprised.

"Gentlemen of the jury, will you kindly tell me by what process of reasoning you reached this verdict?" he asked.

"Certainly," replied the foreman. "By the evidence."

Juror No. 7 added: "We gave him the benefit of a reasonable doubt." Juror No. 8 said: "We didn't believe the policeman and couldn't see how the prisoner could commit burglary in a street car with a jimmy."

"I tell you what," said Tracy Allen, Juror No. 4. "This man has been persecuted, not prosecuted. He has been arrested twelve times since he left Sing Sing. I believe he owned those keys all right. In regard to the cold chisel he was carrying, he might have intended to use it in his trade. I think he will leave New York right away."

"Well, gentlemen, this is your verdict," replied Judge Swann. "I have no complaint to make; only, don't blame the officers. They do their best. You seem to be undoing their work. The law stands just as you make it stand."

"Your Honor seems a bit sarcastic," replied Mr. Allen, who had remained standing.

"You might see this man in your own home next," replied Judge Swann, adding to the Court Clerk: "You may now return to the gentleman the implements of his trade."

"I protest, your Honor," said Karlin. "He will be arrested the moment he leaves this building, if he does, on the same charge he has been acquitted of."

Fisher refused to take back the exhibits which had been used against him and Judge Swann dismissed the jury. Then turning to Karlin he said:

"You intended to insult the court, Mr. Karlin. You turned half way around to the audience and, in a loud voice said that the court had no jurisdiction to commit Mrs. Lang to the Tombs."

"I felt hurt by your Honor's imputation that I had committed subornation of perjury," said the lawyer. "I ask for a parole in order that I may go to the Supreme Court and get a writ of habeas corpus. I don't feel like paying a fine of $50. I have been working for two days for nothing and $50 don't grow on trees in every law office in this city."

"You will pay $50 fine or go to the Tombs," replied Judge Swann.

"As an officer of the court," protested Karlin hotly, "I am getting less courteous treatment than the meanest menial."

"If you don't want to aggravate your offense I advise you to stop," replied Judge Swann. "Mayor Gaynor has chided the Judges of this community because perjury is rampant in the courts. You intended to insult the court openly and you are in contempt."

Karlin then reached into his pocket, pulled out a roll of bills, and paid his fine. Judge Swann then adjourned court until to-day.

'UNCLE JOE' NO REAL GOLFER

Just "Led Into It," He Says, and Played Only Five Holes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—On his way home to-day from a vacation in New England "Uncle Joe" Cannon tried to minimize the charge that he had taken to golf since Congress adjourned. He was "led into it," he said, by his friend, Representative Weeks, and he implied that he would never do it again. Incidentally he said that he was going home to look after crops and to let politics alone—for a while. Mr. Cannon said he was feeling younger than he has since he was a boy—and he looked as if he meant it, but reference to the golfing habit made him quail.

"Now, I will tell you all about that," he said, confidentially. "You see, I was spending some time with John Weeks, and one day they wanted to play golf, so I grabbed a stick and went around five holes. So help me, I didn't go any further than that," he concluded, with an "I'll-never-do-it-again" expression.

"How about politics out your way?"

"There ain't going to be any politics, so far as I am concerned. I am going back to Danville, sit me down, and be just a plain Republican. Do you understand that—plain Republican, without any adjective or qualification."

"Do you think the pendulum will swing back for the Republicans?" he was asked.

"It won't swing back," snapped Uncle Joe, with the light of battle in his eye, "until some organization is formed of Republicans who are willing to stand up and fight for old-time principles; who would rather be licked, so long as they are right, than to mollycoddle around."

IN NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.—Frank J. Higgins, a lawyer and ex-Police Court Justice, while driving his automobile down Montgomery Street yesterday morning ran down Peter S. Jeffers, a negro, 50 years old, of 64 Sussex Street. The victim is suffering from concussion of the brain, several fractures of the ribs, and lacerations of the face. It is expected that he will recover. Higgins was paroled for appearance this morning, charged with atrocious assault and battery.

NEWARK.—Eugene Snyder of 195 Maple Avenue, Irvington, and Alfred Baldeschwellet of 721 Market Street, Philadelphia, who were arrested in Philadelphia and waived extradition proceedings, were brought to Newark yesterday. They are charged with having robbed George A. Scheller, a jeweler of this city, by whom they were formerly employed. About $700 worth of jewelry is alleged to have been stolen.

NEWARK.—The triennial conclave of the General Chapter of the American Congregation of the Benedictine Order in the United States and Canada was formally opened with a solemn high mass in St. Mary's Church yesterday. It will last three days. Among those present are Bishop Lee Haid of Belmont Abbey, North Carolina; the Right Rev. Peter Enge of Collegeville, Wis., head of the order in this country; Arch Abbott Leander of Beatty, Penn.; Abbot Innocent of Atchinson, Kan.; the Right Rev. Bernard Menges, Alabama; the Right Rev. Nopemucone, Chicago; the Right Rev. Charles Moore, Florida; the Right Rev. Vincent Huber, Illinois; Priors Bruno of Canada and Justin of Lacey, Wash.

NEWARK.—Miss Tessie Fernicola of 213 Jefferson Street, asked Judge Hahan in the Third Precinct Police Court yesterday if he would not forgive Presco Pecoraro, a barber, who slashed her with a razor several weeks ago, marring her face, it being her intention to be married to him. The complaint made against Pecoraro by Miss Fernicola was dropped, but the Judge held Pecoraro in $2,500 bail on the complaint of Prosecutor Mott. After bail was produced, Pecoraro and Miss Fernicola were married at the City Hall.

NEWARK.—Two laborers were injured yesterday at Rowland Street and Bloomfield Avenue by the fall of several tons of earth and Belgian blocks. They are Frank Siro, 173 Belmont Avenue, and John Canes, a negro, of 60 Stone Street. Both are in the City Hospital.

NEWARK.—George Wilson, 19 years old of Passaic, is locked up at Newark Police Headquarters, charged with having stolen a horse and carriage from the livery stable of Abram Berman, at 275 Passaic Street, Passaic. He offered the horse and carriage for sale at a stable in Newark yesterday.

PASSAIC.—For fifteen minutes Detective Sergeant Henry Crawbuck, yesterday afternoon secretly watched eight men in the Summer garden, owned by Edward Steiner at 89 Second Street while they were engaged in playing cards for money. One of their number was Sandor Weiss, a Deputy Sheriff. Crawbuck knew all the men and he wrote down their names. Then suddenly he scaled a six-foot fence and landed in the midst of them. He took the money and cards that lay before them and then telephoned for the patrol wagon, holding his prisoners single handed meanwhile. All were held for a hearing this morning, but were later released after giving cash bail.

PATERSON.—Three persons are in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from injuries received in an explosion of dynamite on Stony Road. One of the injured, Patrick Enrico of 32 Marshall Street, is likely to die. A piece of the blasted rock struck him full in the abdomen.

POINT PLEASANT.—Irene Ordley, 14 years old, was run down by a train on the New York & Long Branch Railroad yesterday and one leg was cut off and the other so badly shattered that amputation will probably be necessary. There is slight hope of her recovery. Miss Ordley is the daughter of Theodore Ordley, a coal dealer. She was taken to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital.

TRENTON.—Their presence made known by the ringing of a burglar alarm, Henry Miller, Alfred Jaeger, and Frederick Becker, each of them about 19 years old, were caught early yesterday in the act of robbing the Post Office at Robbinsville. A posse of citizens brought them to the Mercer County jail.

INDICT RICH MEN ON MRS. JENKINS'S STORY

Allen and Collins Must Answer Smuggling Charges on Her Information to the Government.

BENCH WARRANTS NOT ISSUED

Federal Authorities Expect the Leather Manufacturer and Coal Magnate to Appear Voluntarily.

Indictments charging smuggling and conspiracy to defraud the United States Government have been found by a Federal Grand Jury against Nathan Allen, a large leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., and John R. Collins of Memphis, Tenn., President of the Southern Coal Company. The accusations made against them depend on the revelations made to the customs authorities by Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, who was returning with the defendants from a trip through Europe when the alleged smuggling occurred. Allen is said to have presented her with large quantities of jewelry, but a misunderstanding arose between them.

These indictments were found against Allen and Collins on Aug. 23 by the August Grand Jury, but were then sealed by the court and were not opened till yesterday. Each of them contains three counts. In the indictment against Allen, it is alleged, that he landed at this port from the Lusitania on June 25, 1909, and that he then informed Acting Deputy Surveyor Joseph Sulzbach that he had nothing dutiable, although he at that time had concealed on his person a pearl necklace of the value of $10,000. The second count charges him with smuggling as well a bracelet of the value of $1,800.

The third count alleges that he also smuggled divers articles of jewelry and wearing apparel, the value of which is not estimated, and that he conspired to defraud the United States. The overt action charged against him is that he "subscribed, declared, and delivered to the Collector of Customs a certain baggage declaration and entry" which he was fully aware was "false and fraudulent."

One of the counts found against Collins charges that on the same occasion he smuggled a necklace consisting of five strands of pearls, with a diamond and ruby clasp, and one pearl and diamond bracelet. The value of these articles is not given, but it is also charged that Collins conspired with "divers persons" to defraud the Government out of the lawful customs duties. No statement is contained in the indictments as to the total value of the jewelry that it is alleged thus escaped paying duty, but it is understood on good authority that the pearl necklace described was of the value of $70,200, while the rest of the gems amounted to $150,000.

Allen, Collins, and Mrs. Jenkins had been touring the Continent together in Mrs. Jenkins's automobile. They returned on the same steamer with Mrs. Jenkins's maid and had in all sixteen trunks. Mrs. Jenkins is believed to have given much valuable information as to the way in which the customs authorities could be hoodwinked out of the duties on such a large amount of baggage, but nothing in the indictment explains the methods employed. Among the other things that she told the authorities after her quarrel with Allen was that she had selected in London a necklace of fifty-eight pearls worth $100,000, and also two large pearls, which were to be set as earrings.

Assistant United States District Attorney Carl E. Whitney, who has been in charge of the preparation of the Government's case, said yesterday that he had no idea where Allen and Collins are at present, but that he has no doubt that they will appear to plead to the indictment.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—John R. Collins is President of the Southern Coal Company, with offices in this city. When shown a dispatch from New York stating that he had been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of smuggling he declined to discuss it.

Special to The New York Times.

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 6.—W. S. Forrest of Chicago, attorney for Nathan Allen, the Kenosha tanner and Director in the Central Leather Trust, will reach here to-morrow from the Far West and will start at once for New York to contest charges of smuggling brought against Allen and J. E. Collins of Tennessee.

Allen, his wife and children, and the Chicago lawyer and his wife are due here to-morrow from their ranch near Kalispel, Mont. Preparations have long been completed for the presentation of the Allen side of the case in case indictments were issued.

The details of the defense are not known, but an effort will be made to show that Allen was in no way a smuggler by intent, if he was even guilty of any part in the smuggling, but was the victim of a blackmailing scheme.

As soon as the party arrives here Mr. Forrest will go East to arrange for the appearance of Allen, avoiding the service of a warrant and the giving of bail. Allen will then go East to save the officers the trouble of coming West to serve the warrant.

LAW BARS OUT A CANDIDATE.

New Jersey Statute Violated by Felix E. Tumulty, Would-Be Sheriff.

County Clerk John F. Crosby of Hudson County, N. J., informed Felix E. Tumulty, one of the candidates for the Democratic Shrievalty nomination this Fall, that his name cannot go on the primary ticket. Tumulty filed his petition with the County Clerk on Aug. 31, but failed to name his finance or campaign committee when he did so. He understood that he had until yesterday to make known the personnel of the men who were to supervise the expenditures of his campaign funds, and did not do so until yesterday, when he sent the list to the County Clerk's office to be filed with his petition.

The new Geran election law bars him from becoming a candidate at the primaries. Under it every candidate desiring to have his name placed on the primary ballot must file with the County Clerk a statement naming not less than one or more than five persons to receive and disburse all money donated or subscribed to his campaign fund. This statement must be filed within five days after filing his nominating petition.

Tumulty was regarded as a dangerous candidate. He was one of the instigators of the investigation into the cost of the new $3,000,000 Hudson County Court House, where graft was charged. It is understood now that he will run as an independent candidate.

TRAIN KILLS AGED WOMAN.

Mrs. King of Rutherford Run Over on Erie at Carlton Hill.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dunlap King, a widow, 67 years old, was struck by an Erie passenger train at the Carlton Hill Station yesterday and was instantly killed. She was on her way to St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, to visit her daughter, who is to undergo an operation there to-day.

Mrs. King lived with a married daughter, Mrs. Harry E. Oliver, at 11 Myrtle Street, Rutherford. As their home is nearer the Carlton Hill Station Mrs. King went there to take a train to Passaic. The aged woman had poor eyesight.

ACCUSE DRUMMOND OF FRAUDULENT DEAL

Charities Commissioner Made Co-Defendant in a Suit to Recover Alleged Overcharges.

$10,000 THE SUM INVOLVED

Water Supply Company Asserts That It Was Made to Pay Too Much for Materials.

Commissioner of Charities Michael F. Drummond was made co-defendant yesterday in a suit for $10,000 which has been brought against him and Walter J. Drummond, composing the firm of M. J. Drummond & Co., 182 Broadway. The suit was brought by the Jamaica Water Supply Company of Jamaica, L. I., and is to recover what are alleged to have been overcharges by the Drummond firm on materials supplied by it to the water company.

The complaint states that Commissioner Drummond and Walter J. Drummond, together with Warren Leslie, now President of the Water Supply Company, acquired prior to June 28, 1909, 1,507 shares of the stock of the Jamaica concern, thereby acquiring a majority of the stock and control of the company.

At a meeting of the stockholders on June 28, 1909, it is alleged that Michael J. Drummond and Leslie were elected to the Board of Directors, and that immediately afterward Leslie was elected to the Presidency.

It was while Mr. Drummond was still a member of the Board of Directors, the complaint states, that his company represented to Leslie that the Drummond firm was in a position to purchase water pipes and flanges required in the business of the water company much lower than the water company could, and the proposal was made that for such articles the Drummond firm should make purchases for the water company.

Leslie, for the water company, entered into an arrangement whereby the Drummond firm did make purchases for the water company, to which bills were rendered and paid, according to the complaint. Afterward, it is alleged, the discovery was made that the purchases made through the Drummond firm had been listed to the water company at something more than the prevailing market rate.

It is alleged that the sum in excess of the market rate which was paid by the water supply company to the Drummond firm on all purchases made through the latter was in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Henry Oppenheimer Estate, $453,673.

The appraiser's report of the estate of Henry Oppenheimer, filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office, puts its gross value at $480,566, and the net sum at $453,673. By the will Mrs. Oppenheimer, four sons, a daughter, and a grandson each receive equal shares of $64,810.

BAILEY NOT TO SEEK SENATE RE-ELECTION

Makes Announcement on Return to Texas and Candidates Spring Up Like Mushrooms.

TO JOIN LAW FIRM HERE

Made Name as Orator When Leader in the House—Lost Prestige in Senate by Espousing Unpopular Issues.

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Sept. 6.—Senator Bailey, who reached home yesterday, was busy shaking hands with his neighbors the greater part of the day. In the afternoon he gave the following statement to the reporters:

"You can say for me that I will not be a candidate for re-election to the Senate next year, and you can also say that this decision is irrevocable. I know that the State cannot find a successor who will be more faithful to the honor and welfare of these people than I have been, but I sincerely hope that she will find one who can represent her in the Senate with greater ability than I have done."

Senator Bailey has been in the foremost ranks of his party for fifteen years. He first came to the House in 1891, when 28 years old. At that time, it is related, he went to the late David B. Culberson, father of Senator Culberson, who was then a veteran member of the House. He asked "Dave" Culberson what he considered the best way to rise to distinction in public life.

"Young man," said the elder Culberson, "study the Constitution."

The young Congressman proceeded to analyze the venerable document, and much of his present-day reputation as a Constitutional authority is due to his early studies.

Bailey rose rapidly. In the Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Congresses, while still in his early thirties, he was the minority leader of the House. As the Democratic spokesman in the House, his ability as an orator spread over the country.

Bailey was first elected to the Senate from Texas in 1901, and during the first years of his service in that body he bade fair to become the Democratic leader there. But the assault made in Texas on his political integrity, growing out of his relation to the reincorporation of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in Texas after it had been ousted from that State, injured his prestige in Washington.

Recently his influence has declined to a still greater extent because of his remarkably enthusiastic espousal of Senator Lorimer's interests, and because he has put himself in opposition to the principal measures and policies adopted by a large majority of his Democratic colleagues in both Houses.

His aspirations to leadership also have failed, because of his desire to dictate to his colleagues rather than to co-operate with them. Outbreaks of his hot temper have been numerous, leading at one time to an exchange of blows with Senator Beveridge on the floor of the Senate, and more recently to a dramatic play of resigning when the Democratic side, in the closing days of the Sixty-first Congress, last March, refused to follow him in voting for the ratification of the Arizona Constitution.

While Senator Bailey was a member of the House and for some years after he was elected to the Senate, he refused to wear evening clothes, but has since acquired the habit.

The Senator's term will expire March 3, 1913. The term of his colleague, Charles A. Culberson of Dallas, will expire March 3, 1917.

It is understood that Mr. Bailey will go to New York when his time expires, and will become identified with a leading law firm of that city.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 6.—Announcement of United States Senator Bailey's intention to retire to private life forecasts an important political change in Texas. This is the elimination of an issue which has appeared in practically every important political agitation in this State for about six years. So numerous and so loyal were the Senator's friends that repeatedly the alignments of Bailey and of anti-Bailey men have been a large factor in the voting at the State Legislature and sometimes at the polls on purely State issues.

A successor to Senator Bailey will be selected at a primary next July. Those mentioned as candidates include Gov. O. B. Colquitt, ex-Gov. Thomas M. Campbell, Col. Jake Wolters, leader of the anti-Prohibitionists in the recent State-wide election; Thomas Ball, leader of the "drys" in the same election; Congressman Randall, Cone Johnson, and Judge William Poindexter. The latter two were candidates for Governor at the last election.

RIVAL DEMOCRATS IN QUEENS

Each Faction Meets and Adopts Its Own Harmony Plans.

Rival meetings, which continued until the early hours of yesterday morning, were held by rival members of the Queens County Democratic Committee, at which both sides passed harmony resolutions. As chairman of the Democratic Committee, Joseph Cassidy and his faction held their meeting in the Democratic clubhouse in Court Square, Long Island City. Cassidy's committee also passed a resolution making the county the unit of representation, which means that new members to the County Committee and delegates to the forthcoming County Committee will be elected by voters in the county at large.

Convinced that certain Assembly districts will probably vote against him, by this plan of making the total vote in county necessary to the election of the new County Committee and of delegates, Cassidy still hopes to score heavily enough in other districts to win the county.

Nineteen members of the County Committee who have repudiated Cassidy held their meeting in the Shinnecock Clubhouse in Flushing, where, among other things, they passed a resolution favoring the passage of the Direct Primaries act. They also declared in favor of establishing the election district as the unit of representation in the county.

ARRESTED FOR SPITTING.

Jacob B. Esselstyn, Insurance Manager, Accused Under Sanitary Law.

Jacob B. Esselstyn of 18 East Forty-third Street, New York manager of the Union Central Life Insurance Company at 1 Madison Avenue, was arrested last night for spitting on a window ledge. The complainants were Marcus Saul, who has a tailoring establishment at 825 Madison Avenue, near Forty-second Street, and Dennis Ryan, a night watchman employed by Saul.

For some time Saul has complained to the police of the East Fifty-first Street Station of persons who spit on the ledge and bay window of his store. The ledge is probably a foot from the sidewalk, all of the stores along that part of Madison Avenue being so constructed. Saul says that every morning when he opens his store the ledge and window are spotted by expectorations. The policemen along that part of Madison Avenue were instructed some time ago to watch out for the culprit.

The nuisance continued, however, and Saul stationed Ryan, the watchman in his store, when he went home last night to watch for the person responsible for the nuisance. About 10 o'clock Ryan told the police he saw Esselstyn come along and spit on the ledge.

To Organize Pure Food Campaign.

Seth Low, President of the National Civic Federation, issued a call yesterday for the first meeting of its pure food and drugs department, recently formed, to be held on Sept. 27 in the rooms of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, 308 Broadway. The department will then be formally organized and the plan and scope of its work mapped out.

BUDGET EXHIBIT OPENS OCT. 2

Municipal Show Will Be Bigger This Year Than Before.

Preparations for the second budget exhibit are well under way. The arrangements are in charge of Robert McIntyre of the Bureau of Investigation and Statistics in the Controller's office, Chairman of the Exhibit Committee. Francis J. Oppenheimer will manage the exhibit, which will open Oct. 2.

The success of the exhibition last year has led Chicago to arrange for a similar one this year. New York will send a carload of exhibits to the Chicago exhibition, and in return Chicago will send a selected lot of foreign and American city planning exhibits to the New York exhibit.

Early next week three signs, each 75 feet long and 17 feet high, will be hung on the face of the new Municipal Building, at Chambers and Centre Streets. In huge red and black letters these will announce the opening. Police Commissioner Waldo, who, as head of the Fire Department last year, prepared an exhibit which eclipsed that of the Police Department, will make a special police exhibit, and has asked for more space. Deputy Commissioner Douglas I. MacKay has charge of the preparations. The entire basement of the Tefft-Weller Building, at 330 Broadway, will be given over to the Police Department.

The committee has planned to do away with congestion about certain exhibits. Last year the exhibit of the Bureau of Weights and Measures obstructed the entrance. A larger space will be allowed this year. At the first exhibit the voices of the demonstrators were drowned by the sound of shuffling feet on the wooden floor. This will be overcome this year by the use of rubber matting. By the new arrangements it is expected that more than 800,000 persons can be accommodated. The Board of Education has been asked to let the school children attend by districts at hours when it is not patronized extensively by other visitors. Stereopticon views which proved popular last year will be used more extensively this year. There will be moving pictures showing for the first time some municipal activities.

Among the remarkable things which will be shown graphically by charts and illustrations, Mr. Oppenheimer said, will be the 1,800,000 increase in population in this city in the last ten years, an increase equal to the combined populations of Boston, Kansas City, and San Francisco, giving the city a population larger than any State in the Union except New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois. Bells will be rung and lights flashed to show that in New York there is a birth every four minutes, a death every seven minutes, and a marriage every eleven minutes.

Visualization of the immensity of the city's expenditures will be shown by each, representing $10,000. The cubes will be piled into large, hollow cubes to show the relation of expenditures in each department to the total budget of $174,000,000, the relation of separate items in each department to the total appropriation for each department, the relation of each department to the total budget. The items in each department will be massed to show what New York pays each year for separate items in all departments, such as horse hire, automobile maintenance, telephone service, salaries, and wages, supplies, and interest on the city debt.

INTERBORO REJECTS THIRD TRACK OFFER

Terms Too Onerous, President Shonts Tells the Public Service Commission.

NO RELIEF FOR QUEENS

Residents of That Borough Must Wait for Completion of Subway, Five Years Hence.

Formal notice was received yesterday by the Public Service Commission that the Interborough would not accept the terms offered to it for the third tracking of the Second, Third, and Ninth Avenue Elevated lines, and for the elevated extensions through White Plains Road and Jerome Avenue in the Bronx and over the Queensboro Bridge. This is the communication of T. P. Shonts, President of the Interborough:

New York, Sept. 6, 1911.

Dear Sir: The first quorum of the Directors of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at which it was possible to consider the certificates tendered by your honorable commission to the Manhattan Railway Company and the Interborough Company for completing the third track upon the elevated system, and to the Interborough Company for building elevated extensions through the White Plains Road and Jerome Avenue, in the Bronx, and over the Queensboro Bridge, was held today. The certificates, together with an analysis thereof by counsel, were laid before the board.

After careful consideration I regret to have to say that the Directors were of opinion that the terms of the certificates were too onerous for acceptance by the Interborough Company.

The Directors likewise were officially advised to-day for the first time by the Manhattan Company that after further consideration that company was not willing to apply for a certificate for third tracking the elevated lines under conditions which would make the third tracking improvements subject to recapture by the city at the end of ten years.

I have the honor to remain very respectfully, T. P. SHONTS, President.

Hon. William R. Willcox, Chairman Public Service Commission for the First District, State of New York.

The effect of this decision is to prevent for the present the extension of the present Third Avenue line up Webster Avenue and White Plains Road to 241st Street and the postponement of the use of the Jerome Avenue route till the Lexington Avenue Subway has been constructed to make it effective. The Webster Avenue route was not included in those lines which have been tentatively promised to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company by the Board of Estimate, but the Jerome Avenue line as far as the Jerome Park Reservoir was, and its continuation from the reservoir to Woodlawn Cemetery was regarded as one of the extensions to be constructed in connection with the new subway at some future time.

The desire of the Interborough to utilize the Jerome Avenue route as a continuation of its Ninth Avenue line had led to the suggestion that both the operators of the Lexington Avenue road and the Interborough might run over it by the grant of trackage rights. It had also been pointed out that, as it would be possible to construct the Jerome Avenue elevated structure in two years, and there is no hope of the Lexington Avenue subway being completed inside of five, by making a connection between the Jerome Avenue line and the Ninth Avenue elevated, relief would be brought to the residents of this section of the Bronx far more quickly than by waiting the completion of the new subway system. Now, however, it appears that they can hope for no improvement in conditions for at least five years.

In much the same way the building of a connection between the Second Avenue Elevated and the Queensboro Bridge would have led to the joint use by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Interborough of that structure. The connection would have been of particular value to the Interborough as giving access to its elevated lines to persons living in Queens. If Mayor Gaynor recedes from his expressed determination to veto the route, tentatively promised to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company along Fifty-ninth Street from Seventh Avenue across the Queensboro Bridge, the refusal of the Interborough to build the extension will in the end be of little importance, as the B. R. T. or whatever company operates the Triborough system will supply all the connection needed between the Astoria and Corona branches and this section of Manhattan.

If this Fifty-ninth Street route is held up, however, the people of Queens will find that their only means of rapid transit at a single fare to Manhattan will be by a roundabout route to the lower sections, over the Williamsburg, Manhattan, or Brooklyn Bridges. It will be many years before the triborough system will be so advanced as to make use of the Queensboro Bridge.

It also appears that, even if the trolley lines in Queens get the right to run over the bridge, the same unsatisfactory state of affairs will ensue as has been so often deplored in connection with the Brooklyn and Williamsburg Bridges. Cars running over them arrive at nowhere the passengers wish to go, and instead of the bridges being links in a comprehensive plan they are simply loose ends, causing, as soon as travel becomes heavy, congestion and delay.

The objection of the Manhattan Company, to which Mr. Shonts refers, is based on the fact that the elevated railroads now existing have perpetual franchises, while the Public Service Commission contends that the franchise for the third tracks should be granted for only ten years and would then have to be renewed. The Manhattan Company considers that as no one could possibly use the third tracks except itself the franchises for them should be placed on the same basis as its other rights. The commission takes the position that it is impossible in the present state of public feeling to issue any more franchises in perpetuity.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

J. CHARLES FOOTE.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of J. Charles Foote, dealer in grain and fruit at Catskill, with creditors at 20 cents on the dollar, cash.

JOSEPH HIRSCHHAUT.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Joseph Hirschhaut, dealer in furniture at 226 Rivington Street with creditors at 33 1-3 cents on the dollar, payable 13 1-3 cents cash and the balance in four notes of 5 cents each. The liabilities were $18,391 and nominal assets $21,010.

A1 MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Judge Hough his dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Aug. 10 against the A1 Manufacturing Company, plumbers' specialties, at 2,025 Lexington Avenue, on application of A. H. Skillin, attorney for the company, who says it is solvent, and will pay creditors 100 cents on the dollar.

BETSY ALEXANDER.—Betsy Alexander of 312 Broome Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy to get rid of a deficiency judgment for $4,688, obtained against her on Nov. 11, 1910, by Walter Reid on the foreclosure of 165 Chrystie Street. The judgment was also docketed against Julius Alexander, a barkeeper, and he filed a petition in bankruptcy on Jan. 21 last and received a discharge.

MAX WEISER.—Max Weiser, contractor for flooring at 146 East Eighty-fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $42,884 and assets of $6,400, consisting of outstanding accounts, $6,000, and office furniture and machines $400. Of the liabilities $25,000 is a suit for damages by Isidor Weiser for personal injuries. Among the creditors are the petitioner's wife, Beatrice R. Weiser, $3,450; S. Margolies, $2,690; Herman Voesnack, $2,173, and Harry Sauer, $2,700.

AUDUBON IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.—Judge Hough has appointed Saul S. Myers receiver in bankruptcy for the Audubon Improvement Comapny of 31 Nassau Street and 156th Street and Amsterdam Avenue on application of J. Charles Weschler on the request of thirteen creditors, with claims of $28,000 out of total liabilities of $35,000. It was stated that at a meeting of creditors on Tuesday they almost unanimously voted to accept a settlement of 33 1-3 cents on the dollar, and it would probably have gone thorugh had not the bankruptcy petition been filed.

SOLOMON MELNICK.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Solomon Melnick, Samuel Ehrlich, and Nathan Melcher, who compose the firm of Melnick, Ehrlich & Melcher, jobbers in woolens and dress goods at 131 Essex Street, by these creditors: H. B. Claflin Company, $320; Karl Hershon, $200, and Benjamin Frank, $100. Liabilities are $6,000 and assets $2,000. It is said they recently asked creditors for an extension because they had been robbed last week of $1,600 worth of goods and had lost $3,000 in bad accounts, but the creditors did not grant it. Judge Hough appointed Clifford G. Ludvigh receiver.

MRS. ELDER DENIES DISCORD.

Explains Why She Won't Again Be Chairman of Brooklyn Suffrage Party.

Mrs. Robert H. Elder, wife of Assistant District Attorney Elder, of Brooklyn announced yesterday that she would not be a candidate for re-election to the Chairmanship of the Woman Suffrage Party of Brooklyn. Mrs. Elder, however, wanted it understood that her retirement was not due to any discord between her and the suffrage leaders. She is President of the Kings County Suffrage Association, and she wants to devote all her energies to the work of that organization.

Mrs. Grace Wolterbeek has been mentioned as the probable successor to Mrs. Elder.

Little Journeys Through Macy's Store

To-day, a trip into the Foreign Office, where numerous tables stand laden with the rich harvest of our Buyers' pilgrimages abroad.

Huge crates are filled with mysterious packages. As wrapping after wrapping is undone, the most delightful novelties procurable are disclosed—such, for instance, as Reindeer Hide Card Cases and Bill Folds, velvety black, lined with moire antique and bordered with flexible solid gold edge and corners.

FRENCH SAFFIAN HANDBAGS, with corners and clasp of exquisite Butterfly wings—they are real—under flawless crystal.

MOIRE HANDBAGS, in costume colors—frames and cordelieres hand-crocheted.

REINDEER HANDBAGS—very wide and shallow, gathered into gold-plated frame with shell clasp.

MOUSQUETAIRE AND AUMONNIERE BAGS—suggesting the grandeur of the Middle Ages in their metallic embroideries and meshings on delicate suedes and rich velvets.

GENUINE GUN METAL MESHBAGS—some enormously large—the mesh shirred, pleated and scalloped into new beauties—the silk cordeliere with gun metal slides also a new development.

LORGNETTE CHAINS—in all favorite combinations of metal links with simile jewels, the new combinations including gun metal with baroque pearls; gun metal with faceted crystals; sterling silver with rhinestone dewdrops. These last looking like platinum with diamonds to all but a practiced eye.

JET BRACELETS, COMBS, NECKLACES AND LAVALLIERES—effective for relieving the flatness of a black costume, yet quite inexpensive.

PINK SIMILE PEARLS—indestructible—in graduated necklaces—the sheen and slight irregularity in shape so perfectly reproduced from their priceless originals that even an expert might well be deceived in their genuineness.

HAND-CROCHETED WOOL FLOWERS—brilliant-colored—in wreaths, garlands, clusters. This is another Poiret idea, and one of the season's most successful productions.

NO END OF MARVELOUS FEATHER NOVELTIES that will throw into obscurity the "Willow" and curled plumes of previous seasons. There are Branched Clusters in ombre shades, ruge Rosettes, with uncurled plumes to cover the entire hat; Crowns of single-stemmed ostrich, needing only a velvet brim for completion; Wreaths, Cocardes and Clusters of Aigrette; Motoring Toques—the smartest in Paris—of merle, coque, or pheasant.

SILK MALTESE LACES—hand-made, of course; both black and white in collars, berthas and flouncings.

MADEIRA HAND-EMBROIDERIES—lovelier, if possible, than previous shipments. Having our own organization in Madeira means (1) that these designs are practically exclusive with us. (2) Considerable price economy. Collars, Coat Sets, Flouncings, Toilet Cases—the distinguishing feature about Madeira hand-embroideries being that the edge is invariably either scalloped or eyeletted.

All the above items now on sale on our first floor.

Equally fine merchandise received by almost every incoming steamer, all to be sold at the unapproachably low prices for which Macy's is famous.

First Autumn Importation of Women's TOPCOATS

Has Brought Some Very Unusual Styles

When the coat chief returned from Europe the other day we asked him "What is the Coat situation abroad?" And he emphatically replied "Materials."

When we saw the new Coats that are just off the steamer we understood why he summed up the foreign situation in this word.

Undoubtedly the fabrics of these imported Coats are the most beautiful that have ever been produced on any loom. Magnificent camel's hair weaves, reversible vicunas and soft fleecy woolens that are only made in Rubaix, France, peau de laine, also rich velours and velvets. These Coats are the creations of the foremost Paris tailors.

Although it seems quite unjust to describe just one of these Coats we cannot refrain from telling about one of Bernard's models. While the style of the coat is very charming, it is the fabric that makes it so unusual; it is the most wonderful creation of cloth one can imagine, for it resembles a deerskin, striped in white.

These models are exclusive and prices are conservative.

American-made Coats of English woolens—double-faced fabrics—at $14.75 to $70 are also noteworthy. Third floor

"I Never Saw Such Elegant China In a Special Sale Before"

No, certainly not---for this is a DIFFERENT assemblage of China and Glass from any known before. It was planned on an entirely different policy. The usual way is to accumulate vast stocks of "cheap" goods, at the lowest possible prices. The Gimbel idea is to assemble the finest, most wanted wares---in the high-class grades that the Gimbel clientele requires---and sell these usually held-for-high-profit kinds for the lowest prices they have ever known.

Hundreds of fore-handed people are picking out exquisite anniversary and holiday gifts while they are enabled to get double the value that the money will buy later on.

This September Sale Presents the Fine KITCHEN FURNISHINGS That Delight the Careful, Tasteful Housekeepers

A visit to the Gimbel Housewares Store is like a walk through a world's exposition of the inventions and handiwork of skill and labor for the betterment of housekeeping. It is very different from the usual "Sale." The trashy things, for mere cheapness, are not here. Our effort has been to secure THE BEST WARES PRODUCED and then sell them at THE LOWEST PRICES FOR WHICH THEY HAVE EVER BEEN OBTAINABLE. The public response has been so tremendous and enthusiastic that it proves again that New York matrons (careful shoppers though they are) are eager to always have BEST things.

If You Enjoy Coffee

Why Not Have It Made in the Best Way Known?

People who boil coffee in a pot simply don't know what GOOD Coffee is. When you get a "dem tasse" at some famous cafe, you probably say, "I wish I could have coffee like that at home," but you don't do the one thing necessary to have it.

NOT "PROGRESSIVE."

Senator CUMMINS cudgels President TAFT stoutly and spares not. There are eight counts in his indictment, eight deeds of omission or commission cited in proof of the charge that the President is not a "progressive" Republican. We observe with satisfaction, however, that Senator CUMMINS brings against the President no charge of insincerity, no imputation of those failings or derelictions which involve reproach on moral grounds. The sum of the matter is that Mr. TAFT's policies, being, in the judgment of Mr. CUMMINS, not progressive but reactionary, the policies of the older wing of the Republican Party, he chooses to withdraw from him and from them his favor, confidence, and support. The difference between these two eminent Republicans is one of opinion upon public questions and policies.

With some of Mr. CUMMINS's criticisms of the President it is easy to sympathize. Mr. TAFT did, in our judgment, make a mistake in accepting the Payne-Aldrich revision and a greater mistake in saying that it was the best tariff law ever passed. There may be, too, a cynical approval of the Senator's criticism of the President for putting forward the Corporation Tax bill to crowd the Income Tax bill off the boards. In the eastern part of these United States, at least, the public would have been much better satisfied had Senator CUMMINS been permitted to have his way. Then we should have had no corporation income tax, and we should have had an income tax law of the other kind, which would most assuredly have been unconstitutional. Senator CUMMINS's objections to Mr. TAFT's policies in respect to the peace treaties and to conservation are vaguely stated, and there he does not score heavily. The Roosevelt variety of conservation, which meant the sealing up of our natural resources as is the case now in Alaska, does not command throughout the country that degree of approval which it seems to receive from Senator CUMMINS.

But in the charges based upon Mr. TAFT's record in respect to reciprocity and in his veto of the Wool bill and the Free List bill, Senator CUMMINS fails altogether, and uses a double-edged weapon which does more damage to himself than to the President. The trade agreement with Canada was a step in tariff revision which commanded the practically unanimous support of all sincere advocates of lower duties. Senator CUMMINS, though he loudly proclaims himself a tariff reformer, opposed reciprocity, with the result that his sincerity was called in question. We agree with him that the President made a mistake in vetoing the Wool and Free List bills, but what does Senator CUMMINS mean when he predicts that "these bills gave the President the only chance he will ever have to sign acts of Congress reducing the iniquitous duties of the Payne-Aldrich law but preserving protection"? And, again, he says: "He is likely to close his Administration, so far as the tariff is concerned, with but two achievements—first, free farm products, and, second, free print paper." We think we can assure Senator CUMMINS that the Democrats of the House will do their utmost to put before the President bills reducing tariff duties, bills also embodying the principle of protection so far as protection to manufacturers of this country is either required or justifiable. The Democrats of the Senate, we are confident, will give their support to these bills. Who will prevent their passage in the Senate and their transmission to the President? Nobody, unless Senator CUMMINS and his associates among the Republican progressives vote against them. We cannot see in this part of the Senator's indictment of the President any other meaning than a declaration that the progressive Republicans will oppose the Democratic tariff measures. That would be perfectly characteristic of Senator CUMMINS of Iowa. He has for many years done lip service to the cause of tariff revision, but somehow, his votes are generally cast on the other side. If we rightly construe his present criticism of the President, and we cannot see how any other construction is possible, he is going to keep on voting against the lowering of duties. The excuse he will probably present, that Democratic bills will not be drawn "along Republican lines," that they will be bills for revenue and not for tariff, will serve him as well as any other. But that excuse will not be a good defense against the charge that his tariff reform professions are not sincere.

The fact that President TAFT has not presented credentials entitling him to admission in the ranks of the Republican progressives will doubtless do him a good deal of harm in the West. Among men who use their reason in considering political questions it will do him a less harm than it would if progressive Republicanism were a logical and definite body of principles, instead of a hash of raw, uncouth, untried fads, nostrums, and vain imaginings. No two progressives would altogether agree as to what progressiveness is. Perhaps the absurdity of their whole body of doctrine, if it can be called a body of doctrine, has been nowhere so completely demonstrated as by Senator BOURNE, when he invoked the support of the big business interests for the most advanced of all the progressives, Senator LA FOLLETTE. At present progressiveness in the Republican Party is simply a state of mind. The progressive mind is distinctly not in harmony with itself, and its state is subject to instantaneous changes without notice. A ferment of that kind may be lasting and violent enough to destroy a party, it can never bring one into being.

DR. COOK'S NEW BOOK.

Dr. FREDERICK A. COOK announces the publication in the near future of "a series of heart to heart talks, embodying psychological phases of the polar controversy and my own actions." It will contain fresh revelations. If he did not reach the pole, as he announced in his first "heart to heart talk" with the American people and with the world, this announcement was at any rate such a "near truth" that it may now be believed as gospel. Dr. COOK's confession, published recently in Hampton's Magazine, does not worry him any. True, he sold the articles to that magazine, which it published, but because it advertised them for what they were it "misrepresented me and hurt my cause irretrievably." The confession, it seems, is yet to come.

Certainly, we shall have a confession. Dr. COOK made a mint of money out of his announcement that startled the world and robbed an honest man, the real finder of the pole, of his due meed of praise. He made money on his country-wide tour, lecturing in defense of his fraudulent announcement. He made more money by the magazine articles that apologized for his fatal inconsistencies, not to say open and glaring deceptions. Taking his cue from the late P. T. BARNUM, who did give the American public its money's worth, notwithstanding his cynical apothegm, Dr. COOK evidently believes that he can humbug it out of some more money.

But he won't stop there. After his version of heaven's truth has been published about his détour in the arctic regions, and about his ascent of Mount McKinley, the volume of his "Authorized Confessions" may have a profitable sale. Dr. COOK has the audacities of J. Rufus Wallingford beat, not merely a mile, but thrice to the utmost pole.

TWO TARIFF BOARDS.

It is the habit of those who contend that Mr. TAFT's Tariff Board must be waited for to say the final word on the reduction of taxation to cite the excellent service of the German Board of Experts. The analogy limps. There are several points of difference which make the Taft board likely to be less efficient than the German one.

In the first place, our tariff is much more complicated. The German tariff system is not only simpler, but is devised rather to promote foreign trade than to suppress it. It is the system under which the remarkable expansion of commerce and of industries serving foreign markets has been carried on. It is true that the agrarian provisions of the tariff are oppressive to the public generally, and especially to the labor class, and undoubtedly hamper production by increasing the cost of living. But everything practicable has been done to offset the disadvantages from this source, and this is one of the chief functions of the German Tariff Board. Mr. TAFT's board has, of course, no such scope.

But the chief feature of difference lies in the fact that the German board is not hampered by directions to follow the absurd principle so ardently admired by Mr. TAFT, namely, to ascertain the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. That is a hopeless task. It might be possible to find approximately the actual cost of producing a yard of woolen goods in one factory in the United States and the approximate cost of producing the same quantity in one mill in Saxony. But the cost of production in another mill in the same town in this country would not be the same. It might be changed by each or all of a dozen elements—the free capital available, the skill of the supervision, the excellence of machinery, the avoidance of waste, and even, in very great degree, by the important but quite indefinite element of the good-will between employers and employed. Like differences exist in Germany. When you finally come to a statement of the difference in cost between German goods and American goods you can only say that one is greater or less than the other without any exact knowledge of either. You are lost in a maze of unknown quantities.

Again, one of the functions of the German experts is to study the relations of the tariff on foreign importations to all the elements of industrial and commercial legislation and to general conditions. This includes the constant study of transportation and its rates; of navigation by canal or ocean, its cost, its facilities, and its regulation; of premiums, rebates, subsidies; of combinations in every branch of activity where they exist; and of the extensive influence of Chambers of Commerce. It even extends indirectly to the elaborate system of vocational schools. The tariff experts are, indeed, but a part of the great system of expert investigation, supervision, and construction which first Prussia and now the Empire has developed. It may well be that, in time, the United States will evolve a like system; it has none now, nor anything remotely approaching it. It would be a costly error to submit our tariff legislation at this stage to the sole or controlling guidance of the gentlemen whom Mr. TAFT has employed as a Tariff Board.

GOV. BLEASE'S MOOD.

We print elsewhere, in full, the letter from the Hon. COLE L. BLEASE, Governor of the Commonwealth of South Carolina, in which he pays his respects to THE TIMES. Gov. BLEASE is moved to accuse us of "blacguardism," of corruption of heart, and of willingness to lie about or abuse him, all because we have treated him with what some of the other newspapers of the North have called courtesy and mildness in the following comment, printed Aug. 25:

> Gov. BLEASE of South Carolina means well. He is firm in his convictions. He will not disturb the amicable relations of the North and the South. He will not change the world's estimate of the personal character and military services of Gen. W. T. SHERMAN. We are not even sure that Gov. BLEASE is an anachronism. His temper and speech are, however, a trifle anachronistic. The Governor's energy and natural aggressiveness might better be devoted to purposes of present worth.
>
> Whether Gen. SHERMAN's army burned Columbia, S. C., or it was burned by the Confederates themselves, it was burned nearly half a century ago, has been rebuilt, and is now a thriving city of nearly 30,000 inhabitants, its population having increased about 25 per cent. in ten years, beating Charleston, Savannah, and Augusta in this respect. The material welfare of Columbia to-day should be a matter close to Gov. BLEASE's heart. We have no doubt it is. We do not believe he lives entirely in the past.

We have said no more than this with respect to Gov. BLEASE's speech before the State Convention of Confederate Veterans at Columbia. Our readers may judge whether we said that he hated "free niggers" or thirsted for "Yankee capital," or whether we heaped upon him terms of contumely. They may judge by his present letter whether our comment was just. They will judge, too, whether his characterization of THE TIMES becomes Mr. BLEASE as the head of a sovereign State. As for denouncing Senator HEYBURN for his attack upon the South—we did, we did.

MAINE'S PROHIBITION FIGHT.

Article V. of Maine's Constitution, which contains the prohibition clauses, is defended during the campaign which is to end next Tuesday by a curious alignment of forces. Not only the temperance people of Maine wish to keep the article intact, but the very worst and most pernicious of the liquor interests. There are the thousands of retail liquor dealers within the State doing an illicit but "protected" business. There are the express companies which, since 1884, have thriven on the transportation of spirits into the State from neighboring borders. There are many wholesale liquor dealers in Boston, especially, who would lose a chief part of their trade if a license law were substituted for the prohibitory amendment. And throughout the State of Maine the peddlers of poisonous "splits" and the keepers of "kitchen bars," from which spirits of the worst character are purveyed, are secretly working in aid of the consecrated efforts of the devout men and women who comprise the Anti-Saloon League, the Christian Civic League, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Maine Sunday School Association, and the boys and girls enlisted with the Young Campaigners for Prohibition. The meetings and the marchings under the "Vote No" banners win both a frank and a sinister approval.

But, while the local liquor interests are opposed to any disturbance of their business in Maine, the National organizations of the brewers and distillers seek to overthrow prohibition there as a matter of principle. If extended to all the States, prohibition would outlaw and destroy their manufactories of liquor. Whenever a new State is gained, while its inhabitants may become no more abstinent than they were and the sales of liquors in original packages or under corrupt protection may bulk as large, the property in breweries and distilleries within its confines is destroyed. Therefore, the great liquor interests are allied with bodies of respectable citizens who believe that, since prohibition fails to prohibit, the liquor traffic should be legalized in Maine under a heavily taxed system of licensing. It is a non-partisan campaign, since Republicans and Democrats favor one side or the other according to their personal convictions.

The plea that prohibition fails to prohibit would be quite valid if it could be shown that any license system succeeds better in regulating the liquor traffic. Police administrations fall down in the attempt to restrict illicit selling of liquors in any community where the traffic is licensed. Prohibition does throw the business into disrepute. It clears the main thoroughfares of the saloons, and removes them from the sight of the young, who are taught that the business is outlawed and disreputable. The drunkards for which it is incidentally responsible die off rapidly, for they are tempted to drink the worst and most powerful decoctions. Prohibition may kill the poor and miserable tipplers, but it tends to preserve the middle classes. Perhaps the interest of the middle classes of Maine will prevail in the coming election.

THE ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS.

Two Italian newspapers, the Araldo and the Giornale, have responded editorially to the strictures laid upon the Italian press of this city by their brother editor of the Cittadino, Mr. PECORINI. Far from seeking to prevent the hundreds of thousands of Italians in this city from becoming imbued with the American spirit and traditions, these two newspapers insist that they are teaching them good citizenship, and are combating the spirit of crime that finds expression in the exploits of the Black Hand.

To be sure, the Araldo warns THE TIMES against trusting the statements of a "hypocrite and mountebank" guilty of "sanctimonious buffooneries," and the Giornale can hardly express its loathing of "unfriendly half-breed tribesmen." Of course, they cannot refer to Mr. PECORINI. His character for frankness, uprightness, and fair dealing, and his honest efforts in behalf of his fellow-countrymen are well known. Such allusions applied to him would ill become newspapers of the pretensions of the Araldo and the Giornale. They would not look well, even, in those miserable foreign newspapers published in this city, which notoriously "sell out" to Tammany at every city election, and wield an influence for bad citizenship quite opposite to that professed by the Araldo and the Giornale.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Will Test the Italians.

By the arrest of GIUSEPPE COSTABILE, carrying in his pocket an explosive that by no possibility could have any other purpose than that of serving Black Hand ends, there is created a situation which will reveal exactly where the reputable members of the Italian colony in this city stand with respect to the crimes committed by members of it who live by blackmail extorted by threats—not infrequently executed—of assassination.

As the case now presents itself, COSTABILE will in all probability be convicted—of having a bomb in his possession. That is no slight offense, and the penalty will be imprisonment for several years, but should this be the extent of the results following the fortunate capture, and his only punishment that inflicted for what is a mere incident of his graver offendings, practically nothing will have been effected toward freeing the city of the organized brigandage which disgraces and endangers it.

It is a moral certainty that COSTABILE has for years been busily and successfully engaged in Black Hand plots. The police feel perfectly sure of this, but the reasons they give for their certainty, while leaving no real doubt as to the man's guilt, are hardly of a kind to be accepted in court as adequate basis for conviction of murder and arson. The testimony which alone can bring COSTABILE to justice and involve his associates and accomplices in a common fate must come from his victims—the tradesmen and property owners whom he has been exploiting.

According to perfectly credible report these victims are numbered, not by the score, but by the hundred. COSTABILE has moved among them openly enough, demanding and receiving tribute, and again and again its refusal has been punished by the blowing up of houses, the abduction of children, the use of shotgun, dagger, or pistol. If the people who have paid under this dreadful compulsion will now come forward and tell what and all they know, like the good citizens everybody tells us they are, they will strike at the Black Hand a blow from which it will never recover.

The old—and poor—excuse, that the "betrayal" of one brigand will be avenged by his companions, does not serve even cowards in this instance, for in numbers there is safety. The Black Hand cannot attempt a general massacre, the secret of its power being its direct exertion upon individuals alone. What the police know now about COSTABILE they have known for years. They need and should get the help that honest Italians can give if they will.

Commissioner Sullivan's Resignation.

In resigning from the ridiculous, and, from every decent point of view, useless Boxing Commission, which it was a mistake for him ever to have joined at all, Mr. SULLIVAN has taken great care not to embarrass the Governor or in any way to limit his freedom of action. It is perfectly evident, however, that, truthful as doubtless is what Mr. SULLIVAN says about the slowness of his recovery from his recent injuries, if he had chosen to do so he could have remained on the board, and, without too much difficulty or inconvenience, have done whatever the circumstances and purposes of its creation make it possible for a man of his character and reputation to do.

It will take, however, most strenuous and explicit denials on Mr. SULLIVAN's part to dissuade anybody from believing that among the reasons, if not the chief reason, for his resignation was a somewhat belated realization of the fact that he could devote his energies and his well-earned influence in sporting matters to a better end than guarding and furthering the interests of prizefight managers. What these managers want to do was revealed at the first exhibition of professional pugilists at Madison Square Garden. What is probably the best they will do under the immediate pressure of a momentarily aroused and indignant public sentiment was shown there Tuesday evening. Mitigated and sterilized as the thing was, it remained intolerable, not because there was anything very dreadful in the spectacle offered by the two negroes hammering each other with their fists, but because the spectacle had no relation to sports or athletics in any true sense of those words.

Of all those present in the Garden the two black men had probably least reason to be ashamed of themselves, for in a way they may have earned honestly whatever was paid them for their pains and labors, and they had cultivated in themselves strength and skill conceivably of legitimate use. But there was nothing in their combat to incite a like development on the part of the spectators, for the gratification of the latter was proportioned to the ferocity and brutality of what they saw, not to its redeeming features, and they were improved by it as little in health as in morals or manners.

The Frawley law legitimatizes, or, rather, legalizes, prizefighting. It has nothing to do with boxing as sport or exercise, and naturally Mr. SULLIVAN should have nothing to do with it. Our own nominee for succession to the place he abandons is Mr. PAT POWERS. That eminent and experienced promoter of money-making games would execute the law in exact accord with the desires and the intentions that were behind its passage—and so would be an efficient agent for securing its prompt repeal.

Eloquent and Appreciative.

Among the many testimonials to his character and efficiency which he has received, Dr. WILEY will doubtless guard with a special care as warranting honest pride in himself the one just presented to him by the South Platte Millers' Association, in convention at Lincoln, Neb.—where so many nuts of truth and wisdom come from.

The South Platte millers declared in formal resolutions—presumably to be engrossed later and sent to their subject—that Dr. WILEY is "an egotistic autocrat who has selfishly sought to build up his own power at the expense of the Nation's best interests."

That is really beautiful, both as language and as a tribute of respect. To catch all of its significance one must recall Dr. WILEY's energetic and successful efforts to prevent the bleaching of inferior grades of flour by the use of poisonous chemicals and the subsequent sale of those inferior grades at the higher prices commanded by the better grades.

This was, as the South Platte millers well say, at the expense of the country's best interests, and nobody but an egotistic autocrat hungry for power to attack more interests of the same kind would ever have done it.

WILD WEST SHOW PISTOLS.

Must Buffalo Bill's "Dead Shots" Be Licensed In This State?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although I have been keenly interested in everything that has been in The Times concerning this new firearms law, I do not know yet just what I must do to comply with it in my case.

As the owner of a small calibred revolver of the best make, is it "up to" me to go and tell the local Magistrate so? I bought it to take with me on vacation walking trips, and always carried it rolled up in my blanket, slung across my shoulders during the day. I have never found any use for it so far, and suppose the Magistrate refused me a permit to continue to keep it, could he demand that I bring it in to him to be destroyed without any return for its value?

Another thing, it is probably not so in New York City, but in these up-State towns during visitations of Buffalo Bill, California Frank, and all the other small fry wild West imitators, streets swarm with strutting and swaggering "cowboys" totin' hardware between performances. It seems to me they ought to be run in as "potential nuisances" much sooner than the poor foreigner who passes through New York carrying a shotgun or rifle as a present for a relative at home. If the authorities make an effort to enforce the law in all of its phases some ridiculous results may be looked for, especially up State here. To mention just one field for confiscations, automobile parties from other States on long tours.

WANT TO KNOW.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1911.

BRAND FOR CRIMINAL ALIENS.

The "U" for "Undesirable" Might Be Done In India Ink.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To put a stop to these Black Hand outrages would be exceedingly simple if we only had the courage of our convictions. Certain things, however, are absolutely necessary.

First—Every alien convicted of felony, after serving his sentence, should be deported, without exception and without fail, and his naturalization (if he be naturalized) canceled and revoked.

Second—Every alien convicted of felony, before serving his sentence, should be branded with a large U, (undesirable.)

Preferably a red-hot iron such as tender-hearted farmers apply to their beloved cattle should be gently but firmly held against the naked shoulder blade. In deference to the mawkish sentimentality with which the criminal is viewed in this land, whose door is open to the ruffians of the universe, I am willing to accept (as a substitute for branding) a letter U in india ink pricked into the upper arm on its inside. This mark would never be seen except by the authorities in search for it, and it would be quite effective without entailing the so-called humiliation of a scoundrel who deserves no sympathy. The measures suggested would give no worthy person a moment's uneasiness; indeed, they should be welcome to him as dividing the sheep from the goats. If the latter do not like them a virtuous life will spare them imprisonment, branding, and deportation. Better yet, they will be tempted to remain at home to play their brutal game.

As we have foolishly tied our own hands with laws for the encouragement of gentlemen of the Mano Nera stripe, the sooner we wake up to the necessity of legislating in favor of our own people the better.

We Americans are easy-going jackasses, and foreigners of the underworld, knowing it, rejoice thereat and flock to the harvest on our invitation.

New York's Italian Press.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Italian press in this city deserves to be criticised as it is by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Il Progresso is more un-American than the Staats-Zeitung, Las Novedades, and Le Courrier des Etats Unis. I read these papers oftener because they appeal more to me.

The publishers and editors of Italian newspapers must learn how to teach their hundred thousand readers to assimilate with the people they have chosen to live with. Unfortunately they do not understand our language. But they may become Americans, as good as any German-American or Franco-American, without forgetting their beautiful country and their musical language.

LOUIS WINDMUELLER.

"The Elevated Pillow."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One hears in the conversation of the average street New Yorker "bad grammar" enough to cause him to hail with joy any sign of improvement in language, but I must admit it sounded just a little too refined to hear a Sixth Avenue surface car conductor yesterday call to a passenger about to get off at Forty-seventh Street: "Look out for the elevated pillow." May be it is not as difficult for a Sixth Avenue street car conductor to get a pillow out of his mouth as a pillar—I can't say as to that; but to hear him do it is a bit jarring, so to say.

SHERMAN BURNED COLUMBIA

And He Can Prove It—Vindicates with Documents His Speech Before South Carolina's Veterans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some one has been kind enough to forward me your editorial article in reference to myself.

In reply, I beg to say that I very seldom notice newspaper articles, and particularly editorials, for the editors of my State, particularly of the daily press, are known among our people to be such liars, when it comes to political matters, that very little attention is paid to them—as was evidenced in my campaign last year; but, in this instance, I feel that it is due me that I make some reply.

Some time ago, in selecting books for the schools of this State, I requested that a statement in one of the histories, in regard to the burning of Columbia, be changed. I based my request upon the records in the case, and let me say that I have read many of the histories of this country, by authors from both sections, and claim to be as well posted upon the history of the United States and my State as any man in South Carolina, and those who know me, I think, will admit this fact. Now, did Sherman burn Columbia? It would take too much of your space for me to give all of the authorities in detail, hence I only furnish you a few; however, if you will publish it, I will send you proof positive that Sherman's men did burn Columbia:

Howard's report, official records, Series I., Vol. XLVII., page 199.
Logan's report, page 227.
Cox's, (March to the Sea,) page 174.
Slocum's, (Sherman's march from Savannah to Bentonville.)
"The Battles and Leaders of the Civil War," 4, page 686.
Rhodes', "Who Burned Columbia?" in American History Review, 7, page 485.

And, I think from these, you will admit that Sherman's Army burned Columbia.

In June, 1863, when Gen. Lee advanced on a war of invasion, he issued an order, a portion of which is as follows:

> No greater disgrace can befall the army, and through it our whole people, than the perpetration of barbarous outrages upon the innocent and defenseless. Such proceedings not only disgrace the perpetrators and all connected with them, but are subversive of the discipline and efficiency of the army, and destructive of the ends of our movement. It must be remembered that we make war only on armed men.

How different does this read from the order issued by Gen. Halleck, Chief of Staff and Military Adviser to President Lincoln, which said to Sherman:

> Should you capture Charleston, I hope that by some accident the place may be destroyed, and if a little salt should be sown upon its site it may prevent the growth of future crops of nullification and secession.

And Sherman's reply in his dispatch of Dec. 24, 1864:

> I will bear in mind your hint as to Charleston, and don't think salt will be necessary. When I move, the Fifteenth Corps will be on the right of the right wing, and their position will bring them, naturally, into Charleston first; and if you have watched the history of that corps, you will have remarked that they generally do their work up pretty well. The truth is the whole army is burning with an insatiable desire to wreak vengeance upon South Carolina.

And his further order to his Lieutenant, Hunter, in which he said:

> He (Grant) further says that he wants your troops to eat out Virginia clear and clean, as far as they go, so that crows flying over it for the balance of the season will have to carry their provender with them.

From the looks of these orders it would seem that Sherman and his men would not question the burning of Columbia. Furthermore, I cite you some authorities which, if you will look up, you will find that it is admitted and proved that Sherman did burn Columbia. Notably among them, I desire to quote from "Ohio in the War," by the Hon. Whitelaw Reid, in which he says:

> It was the most monstrous barbarity of this barbarous march. Before his movement began Gen. Sherman begged permission to turn his army loose in South Carolina and devastate it. He used this permission to the full. He protested that he did not wage war upon women and children. But, under the operations of his orders, the last morsel of food was taken from hundreds of destitute families that his soldiers might feast in needless and riotous abundance. Before his eyes rose, day after day, the mournful clouds of smoke on every side that told of old people and their grandchildren driven, in midwinter, from the only roofs there were to shelter them, by the flames which the wantonness of his soldiers had kindled. Yet, if a single soldier was punished for a single outrage or theft during that entire movement we have found no mention of it in all the voluminous records on the march.

If Sherman and his men did not burn Columbia, why was it that the home of Wade Hampton the second was burned, and for fear that they had not burned the proper place, they proceeded to the home of Wade Hampton the third, the then Confederate leader, and burned it?

Leaving Columbia, they went on through upper South Carolina, through Fairfield County, and other counties, burning and plundering as they went. Was this Hampton's men? There are living witnesses that it was the army of one W. T. Sherman. Why did Sherman say Hampton burned Columbia, and then afterward say that he did not do it, but that he (Sherman) said this to discredit Hampton? I said in my speech to the old veterans that a man who will burn your character is an infamous scoundrel and meaner than the man who burns your body or your property. I, repeat that, Sir; it is true.

Now, Sir, I shall not descend to your plane and engage in blackguardism as you have done toward me, much of which is false and comes from a heart which is corrupt and from a head which is willing to lie or abuse in order to carry a point or win a temporary victory. As to who I was or who I am, nearly 57,000 white voters of South Carolina answered that question a year ago and elected me Governor of their State over five opponents, notwithstanding a set of liars and character thieves editing certain newspapers of this State attempted to defeat me by publishing the most outrageous slanders about me. The people knew that they were lies and that the editors were liars, and so branded them by electing me Governor. Every daily and nearly every weekly newspaper in the State opposed me, and I beat them.

I have in the North some of the best friends I have in the United States; many relatives; some quite close, and I have not the slightest feeling against any human being on account of the war, but when an attempt is made to blacken the name of a Southern soldier, I will defend him, and, as I said in my speech, if I were sitting in the largest cathedral on earth and the pulpit was occupied by the greatest preacher that has been in the world since the days of Christ, and he were to state that the South fought for an infamous cause, or that the Southern soldiers were traitors, I would rise in my seat and tell him that he was a liar—let come what may.

It is said that I hate "free niggers." If so, why is it that I have paroled or pardoned more of them in seven months than any Governor we have had has done in his four years of office? I have pardoned some Yankees, who came into South Carolina and got into trouble, and they have gone home. If I hated Yankees, why did I not refuse and let these prisoners stay in the Penitentiary and die, instead of letting them go to their Yankee homes and be with their families once again? I now have under consideration and expect to grant executive clemency to a man who, when he was asked by the Solicitor if he was with Sherman's army, made the reply: "Yes, I was there, and I am proud of it." He was convicted and is now in the Penitentiary, and I have promised to relieve him. Does this display hatred for the Yankees or Sherman's bummers? There are other cases which I could mention and which I will mention if you so desire. I was not out of humor, was not wrought up, was in a "clear frame of mind," and spoke coolly, deliberately, and from the records and in the defense of the good names of Wade Hampton, M. C. Butler, M. W. Gary, and the other Confederate leaders and their soldiers—the ex-Confederate veterans, the truest, bravest, noblest band of men that ever marched upon a field of battle in this world. Their equal was never seen before and never will be seen again, and if defending them against a falsehood is hatred for the Yankee or the nigger, make the most of it, for as long as I live, wherever I am, and wherever it may be, if any man says that they were traitors or rebels, I will say that that man lies—let the consequences be what they may; and, as to them, I beg to quote you just a short sentence from your President Roosevelt, in his life of Thomas H. Benton, in which he says:

> The world has never seen better soldiers than those who followed Lee, and their leader will undoubtedly rank as, without any exception, the very greatest of all the great Captains that the English-speaking people have brought forth—and this, although the last and chief of his antagonists may himself claim to stand as the full equal of Marlborough and Wellington.

As for the Northern capital: Keep it up there if you want to. I have never seen or heard of any coming here yet except when the one or ones who sent it expected to make large profits from the investment or receive heavy interest for its use; hence, the man who sends it here receives full pay for it, and it's no charity to us that you send it here, and if he thinks so, so far as this State is concerned, he will please keep it. I am of the opinion that the South can get along just about as well without the North as the North can without the South, but we all should (and I do) wish for a strong, united country—all working and pulling together to make each stronger and more useful and make all of the people happy and bury all old feelings of animosity; but, lies in writing about the Southern or Northern soldiers and lies in newspapers will not bring about that era; hence, let the historians record the truth about both sides—let the newspapers write the truth, and when either side is lied on, let some man stand and denounce the liar; and I am one who believes that the South will always furnish her man ready to speak, and who will speak in no uncertain tones.

Did you denounce Heyburn when he denounced the South and spoke of it as having fought for an infamous cause? Then, why show your animosity and denounce me when I stand up and speak for the Southern soldiers and in the defense of them and their leaders? Where is your consistency? The shoe pinches; you put it on; wear it; the hit dog yelps; it seems that I heard you holler.

I am not one of those who apologize to the North for the war, neither do I get upon my knees and beg them for forgiveness, and never expect to. The Confederates were right; they fought for the highest of principles, and the number of Yankees in the graveyards show that they were some fighters, and if the North had not had recruits from all over the world Lee would have won, as every honest man will admit; and I believe that we killed about as many Yankees as we had soldiers in the Southern Army.

I hope some day to meet you and possibly you will conclude that I am not a firebrand or so ignorant as you might make believe. For a solid country, for the truth, for the right, for the upbuilding of the American Nation, and always ready to defend her, I will with you stand.

COLE L. BLEASE,
Governor of South Carolina.

Been and "Bin."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thomas Griffiths, in your issue of Sept. 4, gives Webster's Dictionary a severe scolding for pronouncing "been" as "bin." There are several mistakes in his communication. For instance, he says:

> Derived from the Saxon "beon," as Webster himself points out, I cannot find that the word was ever pronounced "bin" in England, except by the entirely illiterate.

1. Webster's New International Dictionary does not point out that "been" is derived from the Saxon "beon," but that "been" is an obsolete variant of "beon," and an obsolete plural of "bee."

2. If "been" is never pronounced "bin" in England except by the illiterate, why does the Oxford Encyclopaedic Dictionary give the pronunciation as "been or bin," and Stormonth's (English) Dictionary as "bin" only?

Again, Webster gives the choice of "bin or been." And why attack Webster in particular? The Century gives "been or bin," and Worcester gives "bin" only.

Public and Parochial Schooling.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me Robert P. Green's letter attacking the public school system is lacking in logic. He says: "There must surely be something very wrong, indeed, in our astonishing public school system in this country if we are to judge by some of its results." Then follows the statement that there are several times as many murderers per 100,000 inhabitants in this country as there are in Italy, implying that this is one of the results of the public school system.

Do most of the murderers in this country hold public school degrees? Do the products of the parochial schools make any better men and women than those produced by the public schools? If the papers report correctly, a great number of the murderers are men born and brought up in that country where parochial schools are supreme.

An Innocent Warning.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the note of "Arthur F.," in your issue of to-day, I am reminded of a sign I saw, rudely printed in lampblack on a sheet of yellow straw paper, over a fruit stand in Fulton Street. It was displayed in obedience to law. It read:

DAMBANANONPAVEISMISDEMBAN.

On talking with the vendor I discovered that the apparent profanity of his sign was but the innocent use of a common (and misunderstood) name of the banana.

MRS. DONALD BRIAN AN ACTRESS NOW

Former Society Woman to Appear in a Leading Role in Winchell Smith's New Play.

ONCE WIFE OF C. H. POPE

Married Star of "The Siren" After Her Divorce from Broker — Appearance at Rehearsal Causes Surprise.

Mrs. Donald Brian, wife of the actor who is appearing in "The Siren" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, is to go on the stage herself this season as a leading woman in a new comedy. Mrs. Brian, up to the time of her marriage to the young star, a little more than a year ago, had had no theatrical experience, or, as far as her friends knew, no desire to shine as an actress. However, she is to be leading woman this Fall in support of Wallace Eddinger in a new comedy under the management of Cohan & Harris. The play, "The Only Son," written by Winchell Smith, went into rehearsal yesterday, and the company was much surprised to find her among them.

Mrs. Brian was Mrs. Charles H. Pope before she was married to the actor, and was a prominent figure in the exclusive society of Washington Square, where she had her home. She had divorced her husband, the head of the firm of C. H. Pope & Co., cotton brokers, in 1908, and she retained the custody of their only child, Florence M. Pope, then 3½ years old. She is the daughter of Joseph J. Gleason, formerly an important real estate operator in Westchester County.

She and Mr. Brian met soon after the divorce was granted, and their friends speedily learned of their engagement. It was intended at first that the wedding should take place at the conclusion of Mr. Brian's season in "The Dollar Princess" last year, but as that season seemed to promise no end, they decided to postpone their honeymoon and be married at once. The wedding took place at the bride's home, 40 Washington Square, on March 1, 1910, and was attended by only a few immediate friends. Mr. Brian continued in "The Dollar Princess" until the end of the run, and then the couple went to the Canadien woods for their honeymoon.

Mr. Brian first came into prominence in New York in the rôle of Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow," which he played for two seasons at the New Amsterdam Theatre. He then had the leading rôle in "The Dollar Princess," and this year has been promoted to the position of a star in "The Siren."

Associated in the company with Mrs. Brian will be Claude Gillingwater, Leslie Kenyon, Roy Atwell, Elmer Granden, Consuelo Bailey, Ida Waterman, Alice Putnam, Mabel Rowland, and Louise Randolph. The opening is set for Oct. 2, at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia

MISS FARRAR RETURNING.

Opera Star Arrives Next Tuesday from Europe for Concert Tour.

The first of the opera stars to arrive in this country after Summering in Europe will be Miss Geraldine Farrar, who is expected in New York next Tuesday on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. Miss Farrar comes thus early chiefly because she has before her a rather extensive concert tour this Fall before the opening of the opera season.

In this tour, which is to be under the management of C. A. Ellis of Boston, she will have associated with her Edmond Clément, the French tenor, and Frank La Forge, pianist. The tour opens in Albany on Oct. 2, and includes seventeen concerts, which will carry the company as far west as St. Paul.

Directly on her arrival in this country Miss Farrar will go to the Adirondacks to spend a week in camp with her father. Then she will spend a week making records for a talking machine company in Philadelphia. Mr. Clément arrives later in the month.

Cast for "The Blue Bird" Revival.

Liebler & Co. completed the cast for their revival of "The Blue Bird" yesterday by the engagement of Dore Davidson for the rôle of Daddy Tyl, Giorgio Majeroni for Fire, and Harriet Sterling, who played the Indian squaw in "The Girl of the Golden West," for Night. Other members of "The Blue Bird" company will be Burford Hampden, Helene Lackaye, Cecil Yapp, W. H. Denny, Alice Butler, Ethel Brandon, Claribel Campbell, John Sutherland, Charles Hampden, Gwendolyn Valentine, Merle Maddern, George Sylvester, Margaret Fairleigh, and Berta Donn. The play will open at the Century Theatre on Sept. 16.

Beban to Open New Atlanta Theatre.

Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger will open their new playhouse, the Atlanta Theatre, in Atlanta, Ga., next Monday evening, with George Beban in his own play, "The Sign of the Rose." The house is modeled after the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York, and is said to be one of the most beautiful in the country. Dedicatory speeches will be made by several prominent citizens of Atlanta.

Conductorship for Arnold Volpe.

Arnold Volpe, the director and founder of the Volpe Symphony Orchestra of New York, has received the offer of the conductorship of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, left vacant by the resignation of Henry Hadley, who is to take charge of a symphony orchestra to be organized in San Francisco. Mr. Volpe, it is said, has not yet decided whether he will accept the position or not.

"Speed" Satirizes the Auto Craze.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—"Speed," a three-act comedy by Lee Wilson Dodd, was produced at the Hyperion Theatre to-night by a company headed by Orrin Johnson and Osa Waldrop. Mr. Dodd is a Yale man and the English department of the university was well represented at the performance. The play satirizes the automobile craze by depicting a happy family made miserable to the extent of mortgaging a home and forging checks to keep a touring car in motion. The company includes Eric Blind, Elise Scott, Sidney Greenstreet, Frank Broder, Lela Lee, and Joseph Buckley, Jr.

Anna Held Sails for New York.

Anna Held sailed yesterday from Cherbourg, France, on the Kronprincessin Cecile for New York to begin rehearsals of "Miss Innocence," in which she will make a Western tour under the management of F. Ziegfeld, Jr. Later in the season she will appear in a new musical play by George V. Hobart, Haymond Hubbell, and Julian Mitchell.

DIED IN JUNEAU FIRE.

W. A. Southworth of Michigan Lost His Life When Hotel Burned.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 6.—Seven persons are known to be dead as a result of the fire which destroyed the Juneau Hotel and the McGrath building late Sunday night. Other bodies are being sought in the ruins.

The dead included William A. Southworth, a machinist, whose mother, sister, and two brothers reside in Lansing, Mich. Southworth died in a hospital from burns.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Livingston, (Miss Benedict,) who are at Bar Harbor, will not return to town until the end of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Warner have ended their stay at Southampton and have gone to Cooperstown to spend the rest of September.

James A. Benedict, who is occupying his villa at Bar Harbor, will close it the end of next month and open his town house here.

Mr. and Mrs. Osgood Pell of Westbury are the guests of Mrs. William N. Kerr of Sewickley, Penn., at the Wolcott.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Winterfeldt have returned from the Oriental Hotel and are at their apartment at the Ritz-Carlton.

Mr and Mrs. George Barton French, who arrived on the Olympic, are at the Gotham, where they will remain for the present.

The Hon. Lionel Guest and Mrs. Guest, the latter formerly Mrs. Flora Bigelow Dodge, have arrived in town from Montreal and will be at the Ritz-Carlton until they sail for London, where they will live.

Dr. D. A. McMichael and Mrs. McMichael have returned from their Western trip and are at 3 West Ninety-second Street.

The Rev. Joseph A. Leighton and Mrs. Leighton of Ohio are guests at Trinity rectory, Lenox, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brooks and Mrs. Paul Phipps have arrived at the St. Regis from Greenwood, Va.

Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, and Mrs. Stires are also at the same hotel.

Lord Colville, A. Eugene Gallatin, and Robert Walton Goelet are at the Ritz-Carlton.

DR. PORRAS WED BY PROXY.

Panama Minister in Washington Married to Prominent Woman in Costa Rica.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—Although Dr. Belisario Porras, Minister of Panama to the United States, has been too busy to leave Washington, he was married last week at San José, Costa Rica, to a member of a prominent Costa Rica family, according to advices received here from Colon. The wedding was by proxy, which is sanctioned by the Government, although rarely resorted to in the Latin-Americas.

Señora Porras is expected to sail soon to join her husband in Washington.

MISS HESTER RIDLON WEDS.

Married to Joseph L. Hempstead of Brooklyn at Parents' Summer Home.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—Miss Hester Ridlon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Ridlon of Chicago and Newport, and Joseph L. Hempstead of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married this morning at the Summer residence of the bride's parents, Rhuddians-on-the-Cliffs. Relatives of the couple and a few personal friends witnessed the ceremony in the drawing room, which was transformed into a bower of white and green flowers. The Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church, officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Ridlon. The bridegroom was unattended. Following the ceremony a bridal breakfast was served. Later the couple started away on their bridal trip by automobile. They will reside in Cambridge, Mass.

FOOTE—PAGANT.

Miss Grace Estelle Pagant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pagant of 798 North Broadway, Yonkers, was married last night to John George Prince Foote, son of the late John Foote of Wiltshire, England. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents by the Rev. Sanford C. Hearn of Newburg. A reception followed. Mrs. Chester Allan Fulton of Guanajuato, Mexico, was her sister's matron of honor, and George J. Daniel was the best man. The ushers were Dr. Franklin J. Lasher of Brooklyn, Joseph Boss of Vera Cruz, and Harry Roberts of New York.

FAIRBANKS MOVES TO GLOBE.

"A Gentleman of Leisure" Leaves The Playhouse Next Wednesday.

Arrangements were made yesterday between Charles B. Dillingham and the Shuberts and William A. Brady, so that Douglas Fairbanks in "'A Gentleman of Leisure" can be moved from The Playhouse to the Globe Theatre on Wednesday of next week. Mr. Brady wants the stage of his own theatre for the production of a new play by Thompson Buchanan, called "'The Rack," which is in rehearsal.

It was intended at first to present "The Rack" out of town, and to wait until a Shubert or Brady theatre was vacant before bringing it into New York. However, Mr. Brady and Lee Shubert chanced to meet Mr. Dillingham on Tuesday, and the three were able to come to an agreement in a short time for the transfer of Mr. Fairbanks. Mr. Dillingham has a musical play under way for the Globe, but it is not yet ready for production.

DEATH RECALLS ROMANCE.

Baroness Von Biedenfeld, Heiress to Millions, Married Poor Baron.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—News of the death of the Baroness Curt von Biedenfeld in Berlin, after a long illness, recalled attention to-day to her romantic experience in this city. She was the favorite niece of the multimillionaire Columbus R. Cummings, and was expected to inherit his fortune. Against his wishes she married the penniless Baron, who afterward killed a detective here in a quarrel over money. The nobleman was acquitted on the ground of self-defense. Instead of millions, his wife received on her uncle's death only $10,000.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Cyril Scott, in "Modern Marriage," will open at the Bijou Theatre on Saturday night, Sept. 16, instead of Friday night, in order to have several trial performances out of town.

The opening of "When Sweet Sixteen," scheduled for next Monday at Daly's Theatre, has been postponed until Thursday evening, Sept. 14, in order not to conflict with other openings on Monday night.

An entirely new production of "The Pink Lady" will be made at the New Amsterdam Theatre next Monday. Gowns and hats of the advanced styles for 1912 have been imported and a new set of scenery has been prepared.

The juvenile performance of "Pinafore" to be given at the Casino Theatre on Friday afternoon, Sept. 15, will not begin until 3 o'clock, in order that school children may attend. Fay Templeton, who is to play Little Buttercup with the children, is actively engaged in rehearsing the cast of youngsters.

The performance of the Russian ballets at the Winter Garden to-morrow night will be for the benefit of the Russian Labor Immigrants' Society.

David Belasco's production of "The Concert" will resume its run at the Belasco Theatre next Thursday evening, Sept. 14. The engagement is limited to four weeks. There have been no material changes in the cast since last Spring.

REGISTRATION RUSH IN ALL THE SCHOOLS

Mothers Busy Presenting Their Young Hopefuls to the Principals and Aids.

70,000 PUPILS ON PART TIME

Only 15,000 Additional Sittings to be Available This Fall, with 20,000 New Pupils Coming In.

In every part of the city yesterday proud mothers stood before school Principals' desks, offering up their timid, half-willing children for their first enrollment. It was the first day of registration. The process for both new and old pupils will continue to-day and to-morrow, for the full tide of registration is rarely reached before the latter part of September.

The number of new pupils registered yesterday, roughly estimated, was about 10,000, with many thousands of former pupils, and it is expected that by Monday, when classes will be organized, the great majority of pupils will be in their places.

Principals are insisting that children, entering for the first time, shall show a certificate from a physician of recent and effective vaccination, but where children offered for enrollment were born and vaccinated outside the city, the mother's word for the date of birth of the child was acceptable in most cases, as was the certificate of recent vaccination from the present family physician.

City Supt. Maxwell said he thought the total registration for this year would certainly be in excess of 710,000, but how much he could not tell.

"It is impossible to foretell," he said, "one of the reasons for this being immigration. There have been many newcomers to our shores, and the children of proper age must attend school. Of course, we do not know how many there are of these, and shall not until about the end of the month.

"I do not anticipate much of an increase in the number of part time pupils. At the end of September last year there were 54,441 on part time, and at the end of June, this year, there were 65,387. I do not think there will be many more than the latter figure this year. There are a number of new school buildings in the Bronx, and this will tend to decrease the number on part time."

The new buildings and additions to be opened at the beginning of this session, or within a few weeks of the opening, will furnish about 15,000 additional sittings. As about 20,000 new pupils are expected, it is estimated unofficially that the number of pupils on part time will be represented by the number on part time in June plus the excess of 5,000 new pupils over new sittings, that is, 70,000. These are the new buildings and additions ready for occupancy on Monday or in a short time:

Manhattan—No. 95, new building at West Houston and Varick Streets, 3,000 sittings, ready in November.

Bronx—Addition to Public School 4, Third Avenue and 174th Street, 600 sittings; No. 44, new building, Prospect Avenue and 176th Street, 2,100 sittings; No. 48, four-room portable building in Hunt's Point section, 200 sittings.

Brooklyn—Addition to No. 19 at South Second and Keap Streets, 1,500 sittings; No. 167, new building at Schenectady Avenue and Eastern Parkway, 2,400 sittings; addition to Erasmus Hall High School, thirty-one rooms, providing about 1,200 sittings; addition to the Girls' High School, Nostrand Avenue and Halsey Street, including gymnasium, laboratories, and library.

Queens—Addition to Public School 7, Long Island City, 1,000 sittings; addition to No. 58 at Woodhaven, 1,100 sittings.

Richmond—No. 17, portable building, 100 sittings.

In addition, it is expected that No. 165 at Lott and Hopkinson Avenues, Brooklyn, furnishing 1,800 sittings, will be ready in November.

At the office of C. B. J. Snyder, Superintendent of School Buildings, it was said yesterday that, besides the buildings ready or soon to be ready for use, a considerable number in each borough were in course of construction and plans were being drawn for still others. These include two new buildings and one addition in Manhattan, two in the Bronx, three and one addition in Brooklyn, and one new building and three additions in Queens.

Supt. Maxwell recently made this report to the Board of Education on large classes:

	Registers 51-60. May 31.	June 30.	Registers in Excess of 60. May 31.	June 30.
Manhattan	335	406	9	10
Bronx	120	133	6	4
Brooklyn	838	734	19	24
Queens	28	28	..	6
Richmond	1	4	..	..
Total	1,322	1,305	34	84

In addition to the regular schools for normal youngsters, it is planned to organize before the session is over twenty special open-air classes for weak and anaemic children. So successful have the classes proved that the Board of Superintendents now regard them as beyond the experimental stage, and it has been decided to open classes for weaklings in these schools:

MANHATTAN.

P. S. 17—Forty-seventh Street, west of Eighth Avenue.
P. S. 110—Broome and Cannon Streets.
P. S. 147—Henry and Gouverneur Streets.
P. S. 179—101st Street, east of Amsterdam Avenue.

BRONX.

P. S. 7—Kingsbridge Avenue and 232d Street.
P. S. 24—Kappock Street, Spuyten Duyvil.
P. S. 83—Jerome and Walton Avenues, north of 184th Street.
P. S. 46—196th Street, Bainbridge and Briggs Avenues.
P. S. 47—Randolph, St. Lawrence, and Hammond Avenues.

BROOKLYN.

P. S. 6—Baltic and Warren Streets, near Smith Street.
P. S. 10—Seventh Avenue, Seventeenth Street and Prospect Avenue.
P. S. 64—Berriman Street and Belmont Avenue.
P. S. 69—Ryerson Street, near Myrtle Avenue.
P. S. 85—Evergreen Avenue, Eldert and Covert Streets.
P. S. 126—Meserole Avenue, Lorimer and Guernsey Streets.

QUEENS.

P. S. 56—Orchard Avenue and Elm Street, Richmond Hill.
P. S. 85—De Levoise Avenue, near Woolsey Avenue, Long Island City.
P. S. 89—Orchard Avenue, Elmhurst.

RICHMOND.

P. S. 28—Centre Street, Richmond.
P. S. 84—Fingerboard Road, Rosebank.

At the close of last session there were 179 weaklings in the special classes, and most of them had improved considerably under the new conditions.

North Beach Carnival Week.

Crowds attended North Beach last night and Tuesday night, the opening nights of the week's carnival there. Last night there was an illuminated parade with elaborate floats. To-day there will be Japanese daylight fireworks, which will be repeated to-morrow afternoon. Saturday afternoon is set for a parade of decorated yachts, and a water carnival will take place on Saturday night. The king and queen of the carnival, Charles Deutschmann and Freda Keim, who were crowned on Tuesday night, will continue to reign all the week.

LORD CAMOYS AT NEWPORT.

Visits His Fiancee, Miss Sherman—Entertainments in His Honor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—Lord Camoys of England arrived from New York to-day after landing in that city from the steamship Olympic Tuesday night, hastening to Newport to meet his fiancée, Miss Mildred Sherman, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie. Lord Camoys is stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie. He found many cards for social entertainments when he arrived. This evening Lord Camoys and Miss Sherman dined with Mr. and Mrs. Sherman and Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie.

As soon as Lord Camoys's plans are fully known numerous entertainments will be given for the young people, as he is acquainted with many of the Summer residents. Lord Camoys is a clever tennis player and will most likely take part in the playing at the Casino as well as golf on the links of the Newport Golf Club.

At the close of September the Sherman family with Lord Camoys will go to New York to arrange for the wedding, which may take place at the end of November or the beginning of December in that city.

The Executive Committee of the Newport Horse Show has taken for its sixteenth annual exhibition Sept. 2, 3, and 4, 1912.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Colford entertained a luncheon party at the Clambake Club this afternoon for thirty-two guests, who sat about one large table with an immense centrepiece, with a tall tree in the centre, forming a combination of yellow flowers. It was one of the most striking decorations of the Summer. McLellan's colored singers and musicians entertained the guests after the luncheon. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Julian McCarty Little, Capt. Louis M. Little, U. S. M. C., Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Colford, E. C. Knight, Jr., and others.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Gammell will entertain a dinner company Friday evening.

Mrs. Emile Bruguière has cards out for a dinner to-morrow evening at Castlewood, where her son, Louis S. Bruguière, will remain until November.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas are entertaining a dinner company at Quarterfoil Friday evening.

Miss Condon of Watch Hill is visiting Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard at Sunset Ridge.

The inclement weather to-day almost caused a postponement of the infantry drill by the Naval Apprentice Brigade at the training station, where the officers from the German cruisers Bremen and Victoria Luise attended, and in whose honor the drill was given. Numerous members of the Summer colony attended, as did many of the army and navy officers and their families. Later Captain and Mrs. P. W. Hourigan entertained the German officers with tea. To-morrow afternoon the officers of the German cruiser Bremen will give a reception on board their cruiser, which will include dancing, to repay the many courtesies which have been extended to them during their stay in Narragansett Bay. The Bremen sails for Philadelphia Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills and Mrs. Maturin Livingston took their departure from Newport this evening on the steam yacht Surf for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Perrin have closed their Newport stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin have returned to New Rochelle after spending the latter part of the season in Newport. Mrs. Ernest Iselin will close her Newport season Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hazard, J. A. Rawlins, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Otis, who have been stopping at the La Forge cottage, have returned to New York.

GERAGHTYS BACK IN NEWPORT

Chauffeur and Wife, Formerly Miss French, Have Taken a Cottage.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—John Edward Paul Geraghty and his wife, formerly Miss Julia Steel French, arrived from Springfield, Mass., this evening, coming from Fall River to Newport by the steamer Priscilla and riding in an automobile to the Aquidneck Hotel, where they were taken to the best rooms.

The couple were married in Central Village, Conn., Aug. 9, after their elopement from Newport, pursued by relatives of the bride, who, with detectives, searched the roads all night for the eloping couple.

Soon after their arrival the couple called upon the parents and other relatives of Mr. Geraghty. Returning to their rooms at the hotel, they found a number of flowers sent by friends. The arrival of the couple became well known all over the city soon after they passed from the steamer.

Geraghty stated to-night that he would resume his partnership at the Pender garage immediately and would remain here. Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty have taken a cottage in Everett Street.

MRS. K. C. THURSTON DEAD.

Irish Authoress Best Known by Her Novel, "The Masquerader."

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Katherine Cecil Thurston, the Irish authoress, was found dead this morning at a hotel in Cork. Upon retiring last night Mrs. Thurston was in her usual health. Apoplexy is given as the cause of her death.

Though Mrs. Thurston had never paid a visit to this country, her novels were more widely read here than abroad. She was planning to visit America this Winter. Her Summers were usually spent at her country place at Ardmore, County Waterford, Ireland, and it was here that most of her books were written. In London Mrs. Thurston lived at 20 Victoria Road, Kensington. She was a member of the Writers' Club, the Ladies' Athenaeum, and the Sesame Club. Mrs. Thurston is described as being of a charming Irish type, medium height, dark, and a beautiful woman.

"The Masquerader" was one of the most successful books of the last decade, the sales running over 150,000. "Max," her last book, was one of the successes of last Fall. Since then Mrs. Thurston has written nothing, but it is said that she had made as much money through her books in the last ten years as any living writer.

Mrs. Thurston was divorced from her husband on April 6, 1910. He is also a well-known author, and was married within the last month. The engagement of Mrs. Thurston has been rumored since her divorce, but has never been confirmed by her. Her principal works are "The Circle," "The Masquerader," "The Gambler," "The Fly on the Wheel," "The Mystics," and "Max." Some of these she wrote in collaboration with her husband.

MRS. HELEN F. DIXON DEAD.

Once Prominent Colorado Politician Found Lifeless in Squalid Home.

DENVER, Col., Sept 6.—The body of Mrs. Helen F. Dixon, once the most prominent woman politician in Colorado, was found last night in her squalid home here. She had been dead several hours.

Mrs. Dixon was graduated from the New York Academy of Music, and was said to be the daughter of well-to-do Eastern parents. She was an accomplished elocutionist, and employed this talent in the Populistic cause when that movement spread over Colorado.

She was an active supporter of Gov. Davis H. Waite, and during his administration she was credited with having a marked influence in State affairs.

Henry Vaughn Crandall.

Henry Vaughn Crandall, for many years an active business man both in this city and in Canada, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. LeRoy B. Vail, 941 Simpson Street, the Bronx. He was in his 75th year. Mr. Crandall was born in St. Martin's, New Brunswick, the son of the Rev. David Crandall, who was the last of a long line of Baptist preachers. Mr. Crandall came to New York when a young man and built up a ship broker's business. Later he went back to Canada, and for many years had a shipyard at Moncton, N. B. He came to New York again in 1885 and engaged in the manufacture and sale of painters' supplies. He was one of the first members of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church in Brooklyn, in which borough he had his home for many years. His wife, who was Margaret Rand, died several years ago. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Vail and Mrs. Herbert Gardner of 1,855 Eighty-second Street, Bensonhurst, and four sons, Surgeon Rand P. Crandall, U. S. N.; Joseph B. Crandall of New York, Edward H. Crandall of the Hotel Touraine, Brooklyn, and Allison G. Crandall of Syracuse, N. Y. Funeral services will be held at 2 P. M. to-morrow at the residence of Mrs. Gardner in Bensonhurst.

Masuchika Shimose.

TOKIO, Sept. 6.—Masuchika Shimose, who invented the high explosive to which the name Shimose powder was given by the Japanese Navy, died to-day. Masuchika Shimose was Professor of Applied Chemistry. He was born in 1859. For several years he was Superintendent of the ammunition department of the naval arsenal, and in the meanwhile completed researches in connection with explosives. His compound was adopted in 1893 by the Japanese Navy, and for his services he received a decoration and a sum of money.

A. Cochefert, Noted Detective, Dead.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The death is announced to-day of Armand Cochefert, a former noted chief of the detective service of Paris. He was born in 1850. M. Cochefert played a prominent rôle in the Dreyfus trial. He was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

*Batted for Quinn in the eighth inning.

Two-base hits—Daniels, Elberfeld, Blair. Stolen bases—Gessler, Conroy, Schaefer. First base on errors—Washington, 2. Left on bases—New York, 6; Washington, 2. Double plays—Groom, Henry and McBride; Fisher, Gardner and Chase; Knight and Gardner. Struck out—By Fisher, 2; by Quinn, 2; by Hoff, 1. Bases on balls—Off Fisher, 3; off Quinn, 1. Passed ball—Blair. Hits—Off Fisher, 5 in six innings (at bat 21;) off Quinn, 3 in two innings (at bat 7;) off Hoff, 0 in one inning (at bat 3.) Umpires—Messrs. Connelly and Sheridan. Time of game—One hour and forty-five minutes.

The Giants had a day off yesterday and went up to the Hilltop to see the Yankees play the Washingtons. When a ball player gets a day off the first thing he does is to hurry to the nearest ball game. The Giants were sorry they went, because they caught the Yankees at an off moment. The Senators won 6 to 2 without an effort. The Yankee pitchers, Fisher and Quinn, didn't have a thing but good intentions, and Washington cracked the ball at just the right time to shove in runs. When these two boxmen had retired, the best Saturday and Sunday pitcher in Yonkers went to the slab. He had a curve as round as a barrel hoop. His name is Hoff. He uncorked lots of speed, and there wasn't a thing the matter with him aside from the fact that he hangs his hat in that town up above here.

Bob Groom gripped the ball with confidence and propelled it with fascinating dips. He kept the Yankee taps widely scattered except in the eighth round when they bunched three clouts and got two runs. Jack Sheridan was here for the first time this season. Some one remarked, "Is he umpiring yet?" The Washingtons looked quite familiar. "Wid" Conroy was at third base, Kid Tobasco Elberfeld was at second, and Germany Schaefer was at first cutting up slap stick comedy stunts. The game wasn't the kind which is calculated to ruin good throats or hats. It was perfectly calm and peaceful throughout the period when the Yankees were suffering.

Some smart fielding broke the monotony of the first three innings. In these sessions the Senators made one double play and the Yankees two. In the fourth inning, the Senators began to hit Fisher's service. With Schaefer out, Elberfeld doubled to right field and went to third on an error by Knight. Fisher tried to get the Kid napping off the bag, but Knight muffed the throw. Fisher for some unknown reason walked Gessler on purpose and waited for Walker, who is hitting the ball harder than any of the Washington players. This walking of Gessler was a poor piece of baseball, for Walker smashed the ball to centrefield and scored Elberfeld and Gessler. The same situation came up in the sixth inning. Schaefer was safe on Hartzell's low throw to Chase, and he went down on Elberfeld's out. Again Fisher passed Gessler. Why, you'd think Doc was hitting like Ty Cobb the way they avoided him. It must have been flattering to old Doc. This time Walker fanned, and on a double steal which followed Schaefer crossed the pan. McBride lined a smash to centre field, scoring Gessler.

The Senators got another in the seventh when Wid Conroy walked, stole second, went to third on an out, and scored on a passed ball.

Singles by Schaefer, Elberfeld, and Walker while Jack Quinn was pitching, gave Washington a run in the eighth and in the same session the Yankees woke up for a few seconds and pushed two runs across, but fell right back to sleep. Knight singled to centre and went to third on Blair's double to right. Knight scored while Fitzgerald was being thrown out, and Blair went through on Daniel's single.

MINGLING WITH THE LOWLY.

The Yankees drafted one player for next season and he wasn't a manager.

Bat Boy Dick Hennessy and the other Giants viewed the calamity from the left field bleachers. The game didn't smell so badly so far off.

Herman Schaefer's comedy around first base was so modern and enjoyable that Arlie Latham left the grounds early all filled up with jealousy.

Joe Quirk, trainer for the Senators, sat in front of the Giants and frequently took a look at a real ball club.

There was so little enthusiasm among the few spectators that a pin could have been heard splashing into a pail of water.

Umpire Jack Sheridan made his first appearance of the season on the hilltop. He hasn't lost his keen eye.

Next topic for discussion at the literary society in the little red schoolhouse will be: "Why is it that the Yankees can beat good teams and play like mutts against tailenders?"

Schaefer scored two runs and made one hit. He then yelled to the crowd: "They say I'm all in."

The game sizzled with all the excitement of an undertakers' convention.

Pitcher Hoff was in the game long enough to have his picture taken.

Note of gratification—The baseball scene will shift to-day to the Polo Grounds, where the Giants will try to club their Brooklyn relatives into submission. The pastime will start at 8:30 all this week because of the early departure of the sun.

Athletics Win Eighth Double-Header.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—For the eighth time this season Philadelphia won both games of a double-header, Boston being defeated by 5 to 4 and 4 to 3. The first game was won in the ninth inning. With two men out and Oldring on second Cicotte purposely walked Baker and Murphy, filling the bases. McInnes's grounder was fumbled by Gardner and Oldring scored the winning run.

The second game went ten innings. Philadelphia filled the bases on Oldring's single and safe bunts by E. Collins and Baker, and Barry's single sent in the needed runs. Oldring made eight hits in ten times at bat during the afternoon. The scores:

Tigers Couldn't Beat Browns Twice.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—St. Louis and Detroit split even in a double-header this afternoon, St. Louis losing the first 2 to 3, and winning the second 2 to 0. Compton and Kutina, recruits from the South Michigan League, reported to Manager Wallace to-day, and were included in the line-up. Compton's throwing featured the first game, which Detroit won by hitting Hamilton hard in the sixth and eighth innings. Taylor, a recruit from the Texas League, was used for the first time by Manager Jennings in the second game, and engaged in a pitchers' duel with George. The two runs scored were both made on errors. EVERS AND SHECKARD CUBS' BATTING STARS

Cardinals Make a Futile Stand Against Chicago's Strong and Winning Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Playing championship baseball, with Lew Richie pitching, the Cubs made Roger Bresnahan's bunch of Cardinals look cheap to-day and defeated them 9 to 0. During the session the Cubs ran wild on bases and made Catcher Bliss look like a novice behind the pan when they stole nine bases on him.

The Cubs took kindly to the deliveries of Steele and Louis Laudermilk, piling up four tallies from the first named and five off Laudermilk. Johnny Evers showed that he was there with the batting eye after his long lay-off and corraled four hits in five times up. Heinie Zimmerman was out of the game. He received a gash on the finger of his throwing hand in the morning practice and was forced to lay off, Davie Shean taking his place at second base. Shean played remarkable baseball in the field and secured two hits, besides stealing two bases.

It was one of those encounters in which a fan could only see one team and that was the Cubs. The start was excellent, and they kept up their wonderful work to the very end.

Steele only lasted three innings, and he got the better portion of his bumps in the opening session. Evers started away with a hit through the diamond to centre, and James Tilden Sheckard pulled off a homer to the signboard in right field. Tinker walked. Schulte flew out to Evans. Shean singled to left and Tinker went to third. Hofman flew out to Oakes, and Shean stole second. Saier walked and Needham was safe on his drill to Mowrey. Huggins muffing the throw that should have nailed Saier at second. On this play Tinker scored, and Richie wound up the inning with a dump to Steele, Konetchy taking the put-out. But the Cubs had gone away to a three run lead.

Sheckard made his second hit in the second inning, but Evers, Tinker, and Schulte proved easy outs. In the third the Cubs increased their run total to four, when Shean opened the inning with a drill to right. Hofman flew out to centre and Saier singled to right, Shean going to third. The pair on the bases essayed a double steal and Shean scored, but Saier was caught at second. The inning wound up when Needham flew out to Ellis.

At this stage of the game Steele was relieved and Laudermilk was sent in to finish the game by Bresnahan. In the fourth he allowed Evers his second hit, and then walked Tinker, but they both remained on the sacks when three outs rolled around. In the fifth they went out in one, two, three order, but Hofman got on through Huggins's second error, stole second, and was retired in an endeavor to pilfer third base.

Then the second blow-off came, in the sixth, and then after two were out. After the retirement of Needham and Richie, Evers singled through the diamond to centre, stole second, and went to third on Laudermilk's wild pitch.

Not satisfied with the seven runs already tabbed, the Cubs went at it again in the seventh inning. Hofman was retired by Smith to Konetchy, then Saier was hit by a pitched ball. He stole second and went to third on Laudermilk's error off Konetchy's assist on Needham. The pair worked a double steal and Saier scored, much to the humiliation of Catcher Bliss.

Richie singled to centre field and Needham tried to score, but was thrown out at the plate by Oakes. Evers then sandwiched in his fourth hit of the afternoon and Richie scored from second base. Evers's last hit was a crackerjack to right centre.

The Cubs threatened in the eighth inning, when Sheckard walked and went to second on Tinker's out, but that was as far as he got, for Schulte flew out to Evans, and Shean, the last man up, fanned.

But the Cubs were never in difficulty at any stage, and they won the game galloping, so to speak, for Lew Richie had the Cardinals eating out of his hand. The score:

MOTOR BOAT CARNIVAL.

Cruisers and Open Launches Compete in Huntington Bay.

The Seventh National Motor Boat Carnival, which has hitherto been held on the Hudson River, began yesterday on Huntington Bay, with races for cruisers and open launches. There were two races for each class, one starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and one at 2:30 in the afternoon, so that the larger classes covered twenty-two and a half miles in the morning and the same distance in the afternoon. The small class went fifteen miles in the morning and fifteen in the afternoon. All were pleased with the course, no driftwood being encountered, as in former years on the Hudson River.

The racing was in marked contrast to that of the two previous days, when the fastest boats of two continents were ploughing the waters of the bay into furrows of foam and spray

BOXING COMMISSION STILL ON THE JOB

O'Neil and Dixon Will Stay and Further Investigate the Garden Case.

Both Major Dixon and Mr. O'Neil, the remaining members of the State Boxing Commission, stated yesterday that they had no intention of resigning from the board.

Major Dixon, when seen at the office of the commission yesterday, said the proposed investigation of the conditions attached to the first open bout in Madison Square Garden would go on to-morrow, at which time other business would be transacted.

He denied that he had any intention of resigning because of the deadlock which resulted in regard to certain questions his confrere, Frank S. O'Neil, desired P. T. Powers, manager of the Madison Square A. C., to answer. "I will not resign," said he, "and will stick, unless the Governor removes me."

Following his plan of remaining away from the office of the commission since the disagreement between himself and Major Dixon, Mr. O'Neil absented himself from the quarters yesterday. He admitted, however, that he was busily engaged in detail work in connection with the duties of his office, and further stated:

"I think this matter of the Madison Square Athletic Club will be cleared up on Friday, and that Commissioner Dixon will back me up in the stand I have taken."

Mr. O'Neil did not say why he expected that Major Dixon had changed his views on the procedure of the board, as outlined by O'Neil, who insisted that Powers should answer such questions as were put to him by the commission, and that the whole subject be made a public record.

"Some of those," said Mr. O'Neil, "who are opposing what I think is the proper attitude for the commission to take in dealing with such questions as these would kill boxing in this State if they were allowed to have their own way. In the best interest of the sport the commission must act firmly in carrying out its rules and in regulating the sport fairly for all concerned.

"I do not expect to see Gov. Dix before the next meeting, and do not know about any reorganization of the commission with myself as Chairman in place of Mr. Sullivan.

"The fact that both Mr. Dixon and myself were very well satisfied with the arrangements which obtained on Tuesday night at the Garden in regard to the seating arrangements and the management generally does not do away with the need for an investigation of things in connection with the first bout, particularly as to who is concerned in the distribution of the profits and the question of the club having a lease in conformity with the rules of the commission."

Bartow S. Weeks, who was named as a member of the commission and who resigned before it was organized, had a long talk with Major Dixon yesterday, but neither would say anything as to the purport of the meeting or that it had anything to do with the reported reorganization of the commission.

MULDOON FOR COMMISSION.

Ex-Champion Wrestler Named for Head of State Boxing Board.

With the defection of "Jim" Sullivan from the Boxing Commission rumor was busy yesterday with names of prominent sporting men to fill the gap.

No name appeared to have quite the significance that Billy Muldoon's had. As one prominent sport declared.

"Muldoon is just the man for that commission if he could be induced to take it, for he has no political or sporting promotion affiliations. He is a man of intelligence and force, and he certainly knows the game."

Muldoon probably has no thought of the way his name was being handed around yesterday, but whenever it was mentioned among those who are striving to temper the odium that has been cast on the commission's direction right from the hour it started to do business as far as possible, it was a signal for a boost for the ex-champion wrestler.

The board from which great things were expected seems to have got up against one thing after another, and it will need a strong man to put it where it can perform the functions it was intended for and correct some of the mistakes that have already been made.

PACKEY HOMMEY WINS.

Strong Finish in Tenth Round Results in Young Britt's Defeat.

Only a whirlwind finish in the last round earned Packey Hommey, the east side featherweight, the decision over Young Britt of Baltimore in the star boxing bout at the Long Acre A. A. Both boys were lightning fast, and although Britt carried the fight to the local boy, his punches lacked the necessary strength, while the blows of Hommey were strong and had telling effect.

The Baltimorean held his opponent to an even break until the tenth round, but in this session Hommey planted a hard right to the jaw and Britt was floored for the first time. He fell heavily but was up in a flash, and without being struck again he fell and remained down for a short count. This advantage was all that there was to entitle the local lad to the honors.

At the start Britt started out to jab Hommey, and landed some clean blows to the face and then crossed his right to the body. Hommey did not try to fight as fast as his opponent, but when he landed his blows had more strength in them and usually told on Britt.

The entire ten rounds were full of action and the pair always fought back in the clinches, and although several fast mix-ups were witnessed, there was never evidence of foul fighting, each being exceedingly clean in his attack.

In every round there was enough fighting by both boys to satisfy the crowd, and many fast exchanges were witnessed in which both showed up well, but the east sider usually got the best of this style of work by the heavier blows.

Referee Eddie Smith Is Dead.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 6.—Eddie Smith, a well-known sporting writer and fight referee, died here to-day. He had been ill with brain trouble for several weeks. Smith was 33 years old. At one time he was a boxer in the lightweight class, and was the champion long-distance bicycle rider of the Pacific Coast. The last important fight which he refereed was the Wolgast-Nelson battle at Point Richmond for the lightweight championship of the world. He also refereed the Ketchel-Papke fight, the Britt-Nelson contest, and many other notable ring battles, including the Gans-Wolcott fight, in which Gans won the championship in the lightweight class. He was official referee of the Pacific Athletic Club of Los Angeles.

Moore vs. Murphy at National.

"Pal" Moore and "Tommy" Murphy will figure in an elimination bout at the National Sporting Club to-night to determine which will gain a match with "Knockout" Brown. Murphy is more than anxious to mingle again with the east side boy to prove that his recent limited stay of forty seconds in the same ring with "K. O." was the result of a lucky punch. Moore has another object in view, and that is to prove that he can outpoint the Flatbush lightweight. The pair came together at the Madison Athletic Club several months ago, and Murphy scored a clean-cut victory over the Quaker City boy. Since that time Moore has been clamoring for a return match, and to-night he gets his chance. Reports from the De Forest camp at Allenhurst, N. J., are that "Pal" has taken on several pounds since his last appearance here. Three six-round bouts will precede the main event.

Duryea Scores with Bugler.

CHANTILLY, France, Sept. 6.—H. B. Duryea's Bugler won the Prix d'Hallate, which was run here to-day.

PORKY FLYNN BEATS SMITH AT FAIRMONT

Bostonian, Outweighing Bronx Boxer, Able to Take Severe Punishment.

Porky Flynn of Boston defeated Jim Smith of the Bronx last night at the Fairmont A. C., but as a fighter had nothing to brag of, his sole stock in trade being his ability to take punishment and hang on to his opponent.

Smith waded right into the big man who opposed him, Flynn weighing probably thirty pounds more than the Bronx fighter. When Smith cut in Flynn would hang on and butt. Smith had all the better of the opening session. In the second round Porky evened up matters by jabbing and getting out of close work, although Smith caused him to know that he was in a battle.

Smith forced the going in the third round, Flynn ripping in some blows to the kidneys when he was holding his man. Just at the bell there was an exchange of rights. Round even.

Flynn jabbed repeatedly beginning the fourth, and caught Smith on the jaw with a right when he was rebounding from the ropes. Following this he punished him with blows to the stomach. Although Smith was getting all the worst of it, he was there, and parted with a right just before the bell that staggered his bulky opponent, who after delivering a blow was prone to hang on. Flynn's round.

Flynn started jabbing tactics in the fifth round, interspersing such blows with hooks to the wind. Flynn repeatedly held Smith's left glove, although having much the better of it at this stage.

Smith rushed starting the sixth session, throwing his right over, but the blow was ineffective. Flynn refused to go to his man, who was compelled to do all the work, for which eagerness he suffered, being smothered with jabs and kidney punches, the latter being delivered when Flynn was holding his man.

Smith made a gallant stand in the seventh round, laughing at Flynn's blows on the kidneys. He certainly beat Flynn up, the latter contenting himself by holding on his lighter opponent at every chance. Smith's round.

Smith missed two vicious lefts early in the eighth, Flynn sending in some jabs. They exchanged rights, but the big man took on. Smith was too willing to do the work and, missing many rights, waded into stinging counters. Flynn had the better of the session.

Smith continued to force matters in the ninth, but was missing too frequently. He was invariably stung with blows on the face, after which there would be a clinch. Smith was inclined to hang on toward the end of the round. Flynn's round.

Smith waded in in the final round, but missed often, Flynn coming back with hooks to the wind and face. Smith's wild swings to the head availed him nothing, they being mostly all glancing blows. Flynn checked Smith's rushes with uppercuts, which apparently hurt. Smith cut Flynn's mouth just as the bell rang at the end of the bout.

The opening bout between Jack McFarland and Sailor White was one of the hardest fights probably ever seen in New York between heavyweights. There was never a moment when there wasn't something doing. Both men were short on science, but long on their ability to assimilate punishment, with the result that at the end of the battle, each looked like he had been pulled through a thrashing machine.

Seldom if ever have two men been so beaten up. Although McFarland had the better of the argument, he knew he had been in an affair in which friendship was cast aside. In the second round McFarland rained White off his feet with the aid of a straight right, followed by an uppercut which planted him in a sitting position for the count of nine. Following this in the next round it looked as though White must go out, as he had fought himself apparently blind. He was still on the job, however, and by the expiration of the fifth each was hanging on the ropes. Both were game and continued in a manner which showed that there was still a "hope" in the white race.

White went down in the ninth from exhaustion, but rather failed from then on to take the beating his man dealt out, unwillingly accepting a beating one-tenth part of which would have made the average big fellow look for a soft spot.

Kid Ehle whipped Jack Smith, brother of Jim Smith, in the second bout. What Ehle did to Smith was aplenty, and the marvel was as to how the latter stood for the beating he received. It was wallop, wallop throughout, with Smith the receiver general pretty much all the way. In the seventh Ehle had his man on the run, but was unable to knock him out. Smith weathered the storm and managed to pull through the rain of blows which came from every direction, until within a few seconds of the end of the ninth round, when he went down and the referee, Billy Joh, stopped the go.

NATIONAL'S 100-MILE RACE.

Rutherford Drives Winning Car on Old Orchard Beach in 98:00 4-5.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 6.—John M. Rutherford, driving a National car, won the 100-mile beach race to-day, the feature event of the three days' automobile races here which closed to-night. He made the course in 98 minutes and 4-5 seconds with Louis Disbrow, driving a Pope-Hartford, 1 minute 17 1-5 seconds behind him. Disbrow lost a tire in the fifty-first mile and this cost him nearly two miles. There were six starters in the event of whom four finished. C. L. Bowler, driving a Pope-Hartford, was third, in 1 hour 49 minutes and 37 seconds, and Harry Endicott, in an Inter-State, was fourth, in 1 hour 50 minutes 37 seconds.

In a ten-mile race in which H. J. Habick with a Cole and Z. A. Neilson driving an Iter-State were the only starters, Habick won in 12 minutes 2-5 seconds.

Hilton to Play Max Behr.

The official entry list for the annual championship tournament for the United States Golf Association, to be held over the links of the Apawamis Club next week, contains the names of nearly all the prominent amateurs in the country. In addition to the best of the home talent appears the name of Harold H. Hilton, present champion of Great Britain. Hilton has been drawn with Max Behr of Morris County, and they are due to drive off at 12:08 next Monday afternoon.

W. C. Fownes, Jr., the title holder, is bracketed with Mason Phelps, one of the best of the Westerners. They will tee up at 10:56. Charles Evans, Jr., is paired with Sam Graham of the Greenwich Country Club, and they will not get started until 1:32. Jerome D. Travers, the metropolitan title holder, will get away shortly before noon in company with H. R. Johnstone of Garden City, while another good pair consist of Oswald Kirkby and G. Anderson. They leave at 10:08. Walter J. Travis will leave at 11:56 with H. K. Kerr of Ekwanok. The total list contains 184 names, considerably less than a year ago, when more than two hundred flocked over the Brookline links.

Armstrong Leads College Tennis Men.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—Joseph J. Armstrong, a wiry youth from the University of Minnesota, played havoc to-day among the Eastern racquet wielders in the thirtieth annual tournament of the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association on the grounds of the Merion Cricket Club. Armstrong, who recently won the Western intercollegiate title, defeated in the first round Harold Page of Pennsylvania. This was not unexpected, but when he trounced Deane Mathey of Princeton in his next match the experts were surprised. Final honors are now thought to rest between Armstrong and E. H. Whitney of Harvard.

Two rounds in the singles were completed, leaving eight survivors. Of these Yale had four, Harvard three, and Minnesota one.

Piping Rock Horse Show.

The ninth annual Piping Rock Horse Show will be held at Locust Valley, L. I., on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 6 and 7. The show, which is held under a sanction from the Hunts Committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, is intended to be non-professional and is limited to horses owned by residents of Long Island, except in the case of the hunters, polo ponies, and racing classes, which are open to all. The programme is made up of three steeplechase events and two flat races. Entries close on Wednesday, Sept. 27.

FIRE COMMISSIONER AFTER FIGHT CLUBS

Declares That Some of the Buildings Are Veritable Fire Traps.

Declaring that some of the buildings for which licenses had been granted by the New York State Athletic Commission, for the holding of boxing bouts, were veritable fire traps, Fire Commissioner Johnson got into the game yesterday, and demonstrated that the organizations will have some one who will probably worry them more than a supposed refractory Commissioner of Boxing.

It developed that Commissioner Johnson has had his men make examinations of the buildings in which the clubs are established, and from the reports it develops that the Athletic Commission has been granting licenses to some clubs without previously causing an inspection to be made to see if the requirements of the law were complied with.

"In my opinion," said the Commissioner, "the premises known as Brown's Gymnasium, for which a license has been granted, is utterly unfit for the assembling of a crowd. The Fire Commissioner can only view the situation from the fire hazard standpoint, and in that light it is difficult to imagine a more dangerous place. However, the Fire Department does not control the structural arrangement of places for which licenses are granted. That is the province of the several building bureaus."

Harry J. Gallagher, one of the Inspectors sent out by Commissioner Johnson, reported to his chief as follows, in regard to Brown's:

"In my opinion the general conditions are dangerous for the following reasons: The boxing club is located on the third floor of the building, main entrance from the stairway. The elevator is on the Twenty-third Street side of the building. The patrons of the club must pass through three rooms which contain 300 lockers full of clothing, then up nine steps to a passageway three feet eight inches wide, then up five steps to the main hall, wherein the boxing ring is situated. There is also a passageway three feet eight inches wide, on the southwest corner of the hall, which leads to the stairway to Twenty-third Street. The stairway to the Twenty-fourth Street side of the building is three feet wide, and leads to a door which opens inward. The two stairways mentioned are constructed of wood and are full of turns and small landing spaces. The side exit leads to the roof of the adjoining building with insufficient means of escape from same."

In the case of the Fairmount Club provision for exit signs are recommended.

The Twentieth Century A. C. was advised to make seats stationary and remove glass partition at the head of main stairway.

The recommendations for Madison Square Garden are that all seats be made stationary.

The National Sporting Club is advised to get more extinguishers, and that all seats be made stationary. Similar recommendations were directed to Longacre A. A., New Polo A. A., Madison A. C., and Sulzer's Harlem River Park.

Hilton's Golf Fine in New England.

MANCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 6.—The British amateur golf champion, Henry H. Hilton of Holyoke, pushed a nosed aluminium putter into his golf bag on the eighteenth green of the Essex County course to-day with the satisfaction of having played that course in seventy-five strokes, without ever having seen it before, and of having accomplished a still greater task earlier in the day of covering Myopia in seventy-nine strokes on his third round of those difficult links. Mr. Hilton expects to play the Country Club at Brookline to-morrow and then start in to learn Apawamis, where he will try next week to win the amateur championship of this country.

ON LOCAL TENNIS COURTS.

Women lawn tennis players began their matches in the New Rochelle Tennis Club series yesterday on the courts at Quaker Ridge. In one of the liveliest of the contests Miss Anna Martin of the Ardsley Club and three times winner of the Smith College championship, disposed of Mrs. Charles F. Porter at 6—3, 6—1. The two women engaged in some prettily played rallies. The surprise of the first round, which was completed, was the victory of Miss Margaret Grove, a former holder of Southern titles, over Miss Emeline W. Holmes of the Bronxville Athletic Association in straight sets at 6—2, 6—4.

In the progress of the men's singles for the Quaker Ridge Cup M. I. L. Galvao and Benjamin M. Phillips forged ahead to the semi-final round in the upper half. Galvao, a holder of German championships, who came to this country early in the season, disposed of A. J. Ostendorf by driving to the corners by the score 6—2, 6—1. Phillips experienced greater difficulty in coming through against his old rival, Dr. William Rosenbaum. The latter played a strong game, but was defeated 5—7, 10—8, 6—2 in one of the hardest matches of the tournament. The summaries:

Women's Cup Singles.—(First Round)—Miss Juliet Leach defeated Miss Bessie G. Holden, 6—3, 6—3; Miss Clare Cassell defeated Mrs. C. C. Phillips, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Anna Martin defeated Mrs. Charles F. Porter, 6—3, 6—1; Miss Emily A. Dietz defeated Mrs. H. Garside, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Henry H. Burdick defeated Mrs. A. Dudley Britton, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Margaret Grove defeated Miss Emeline W. Holmes, 6—2, 6—4; Miss Louise Wetherbee defeated Miss Jean Watson, 6—1, 6—4.

Mixed Doubles.—(Second Round)—Miss Margaret Grove and A. J. Ostendorf defeated Miss Emeline W. Holmes and Gustave F. Touchard, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2; Mr. and Mrs. A. Dudley Britton defeated Miss Louise Wetherbee and R. C. Black, 8—6, 6—0; Miss Eleanor Nash and Sidney Henshaw defeated Mrs. E. F. Tieman and David Sands, 7—5, 6—1.

Quaker Ridge Challenge Cup Men's Singles.—(Fourth Round)—Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated W. N. Granger, 6—2, 6—1.

Fifth Round.—M. I. L. Galvao defeated A. J. Ostendorf, 6—2, 6—1; Benjamin M. Phillips defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum, 5—7, 10—8, 6—2.

Men's Doubles.—(Second Round)—H. S. Volck and Gustave F. Touchard defeated William J. Walworth and S. Bruce Wilson, 7—5, 4—6, 7—5.

British and American international lawn tennis players practiced on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Review Place, yesterday. C. P. Dixon and A. E. Beamish as a doubles team opposed the American National champion, William A. Larned, and Harold H. Hackett, the former doubles title holder. The two pairs split sets without any reliable score being kept. In comparison to the Americans the Britons were slow. Both Dixon and Beamish brought off their drives well, and the former smashed accurately to court. Beamish puts a lot of body swing into his back-handers, but at this both he and Dixon were often short of range on their shots.

Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, the two Californians, worked through three sets at a furious pace. Bundy placed well and appeared to be in better form than he displayed at Newport. Following the doubles the veteran Larned took on Hackett for about half an hour in singles. All of this time Larned chiefly practiced shots to the sides and across court as Hackett came up to the net.

The finishing touches are being put upon the stands, which seat 3,000 spectators. The singles will open the series of Saturday, with the doubles match on Monday.

Sutton Sisters to Play In Finals.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Florence and May Sutton have eliminated all competitors in the western New York tennis tournament for the international championship and will play each other on Friday, their contest to decide who is to have the woman's cup. Harris, theh Dartmouth champion, defeated Kirover of Buffalo to-day and plays Moore, also of Buffalo, to-morrow. Banton of Cleveland defeated Hodge of Buffalo in straight sets, one of which ran to 22 games. It is believed Harris and Benton will play off the semi-finals and that one of them will meet Nat W. Niles, the present title holder, who will be here on Saturday.

Brighton Beach A. C.'s Boats.

A slashing ten-round bout is on for the members of the Brighton Beach Athletic Club to-morrow evening in the clubhouse, Surf Avenue and West Seventeenth Street, Coney Island. The principals in the engagement will be "Ty" Cobb of Philadelphia and the hard-hitting "Eddie" Powers. Both boys have a hard blow in either hand and are in fine shape to put up their best battle. Cobb is training at one of the roadhouses, and he expects to put Powers away inside the ten-round limit. The rest of the card will be of high-class order, as the boys in Greater New York will furnish the milling.

YALE AND HARVARD GOLF TEAMS WIN

Princeton Vanquished by Elis and Columbia Downed by the Crimson.

In the semi-final round of the intercollegiate championship at the Baltusrol Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J., Yale and Harvard survived yesterday. They will meet in the decisive match to-day.

The real struggle to-day came in the meeting of those old rivals, Yale and Princeton. When the last of the four-ball matches had been posted the blue led two points to one, but even then Princeton had hopes of winning in the afternoon at singles. It was not to be, however, for with the exception of Albert Seckel and L. D. Blair, all the representatives of Old Nassau went down to defeat.

The best match was between Seckel and Robert Gardner. At the seventh hole the Yale man stood three up, but Seckel then struck a great pace, reeling off hole after hole in par figures or better and winning the match by 4 up and 2 to play. He had the round in 75.

Harvard had the easiest kind of a time defeating Columbia, which had to play shorthanded. The final total read 9 to 0.

In addition to the final round for the team title to-morrow a start will also be made in the individual championship.

FOUR-BALL.

Yale.—R. A. Gardner and A. Dunlap, 1; George Stanley and Holden Wilson, 0; H. B. Lee and E. B. Jennings, 1. Total—2.

Princeton.—Albert Seckel and L. B. Blair, 0; D. W. Houston, Jr., and A. G. Kay, 1; C. P. Eddy and J. M. Stearns, 3d, 0. Total—1.

Match Play Summary.—Gardner and Dunlap beat Seckel and Blair, 2 up and 1 to play; Houston and Kay beat Stanley and Wilson, 1 up, (20 holes;) Lee and Jennings beat Eddy and Stearns, 2 up and 1 to play.

SINGLES.

Yale.—Gardner, 0; Stanley, 1; Lee, 1; Dunlap, 1; Wilson, 0; Jennings, 1. Total—4.

Princeton.—Seckel, 1; Kay, 0; Houston, 0; Eddy, 0; Blair, 1; Stearns, 0. Total—2.

Match Play Summary.—Seckel beat Gardner, 4 up and 2 to play; Stanley beat Kay, 3 up and 2 to play; Lee beat Houston, 2 up and 1 to play; Dunlap beat Eddy, 3 up and 1 to play; Blair beat Wilson, 3 up and 2 to play; Jennings beat Stearns, 2 up.

FOUR-BALL.

Harvard.—B. W. Estabrook and F. T. Clarke, 1; J. G. McNeil and C. M. Amory, Jr., 1; F. Sargent and W. V. Booth, 1. Total—3.

Columbia.—R. L. Morrow and W. White, 0; E. Downes and F. Butterworth, 0; forfeit, 0. Total—0.

Match Play Summary.—Estabrook and Clarke beat Morrow and White, 6 up and 4 to play; McNeil and Amory beat Downes and Butterworth, 3 up and 2 to play; Sargent and Booth won by default.

SINGLES.

Harvard.—Clarke, 1; Sargent, 1; Booth, 1; McNeil, 1; Amory, 1; Estabrook, 1. Total—6.

Columbia.—Morrow, 0; Butterworth, 0; Downes, 0; White, 0; Stern, 0; forfeit, 0. Total—0.

Match Play Summary.—Clarke beat Morrow, 3 up and 1 to play; Sargent beat Butterworth, 9 up and 8 to play; Booth beat Downes, 6 up and 5 to play; McNeil beat White, 4 up and 3 to play; Amory beat White, 7 up and 5 to play; Estabrook won by default.

Henry Morgenthau's Golf Cup.

The annual charter members' golf tournament of the Eagle Nest Country Club was held on Labor Day on the Eagle Nest Adirondack links.

The entries included Henry Morgenthau, Louis Wiley, Marcus M. Marks, B. Hochschild, J. Bookman, G. Riley, Sidney Blumenthal, G. W. Kirkham, M. W. Naumburg, Edward Stern, and A. Flood.

Mr. Morgenthau won the cup by a score of 78.

Val. Flood of Princeton is professional at the Eagle Nest links, which were originally laid out by Harry Warden.

The course is said to be one of the most beautiful in the country.

1912 Announcement COLE 30-40
$1800 instead of $1650
A YEAR ago we announced our 1911 models and an increase in price. We were told that it was folly for us to increase our price when so many other manufacturers were reducing theirs for 1911.
But we had to increase our price from $1500 to $1650. Improvements simply necessitated it. Every cent of the price increase was put into the car and the COLE became more popular than before. The 1911 Cole was one of the few cars whose production was actually oversold.
Again in announcing our 1912 cars we tell of a greatly improved car, and of an increase in price from $1650 to $1800.
If we were building cars to fit a price, we would continue the 1911 Cole for 1912. But we are building cars to meet this standard—the best car for the average man at a reasonable price.
1912 improvements
THE COLE 1912 is a better value at $1800 than was the 1911 COLE at $1650. We believe you will have to pay $2500 for its equal.
The 1912 COLE adheres to the basic principles of the 1911 car. But the 1912 model is a bigger, longer, more roomy car.
Its wheel-base is 122 inches, instead of 118 inches. It has 36-in. wheels instead of 34. Instead of brass trimmings the 1912 car has Nickel Trimmings.
The most important new specification of the COLE is the Timken Axle Equipment—the most durable and most satisfactory axle equipment known.

One chassis—seven bodies
THE 1912 bodies are more roomy, more luxuriously appointed, more stylish in appearance. All seven models are constructed on one chassis, with bodies interchangeable.
The five-passenger touring car has ventilated fore-doors, and control levers on the inside. It has two seat-sockets, which make it convertible into a comfortable seven-passenger car. The enclosed cars are masterpieces of the coach builders' craft.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Further Advance in Stocks Partially Offset by Reaction Toward the Close.

MANY INACTIVE STOCKS UP

Larger Iron Output—Favorable Moroccan Advices and Increased Interborough Dividend Helpful Factors.

A moderate reaction from the best prices of the session left the active stocks at the close of trading yesterday fractionally above Tuesday's final prices. Trading was a little more active than on the previous day, but the transactions were still in restricted amount compared with the much more active trading which accompanied the recent decline. A feature of the day's events on the Stock Exchange were the sharp advances recorded in a number of inactive stocks while relatively few issues of this class showed losses. These issues felt the favorable influence yesterday of the firmer tone of the general list during the last few days. The improvement which has been under way in the market the past week or more has not been predicated on any material change in fundamental conditions which have not had time to become very different from what they were a fortnight or a month ago, but liquidation having run its course the market was relieved of its greatest source of uneasiness, and with this burden lifted it has appeared that almost automatically a more cheerful view has come to be taken even of such matters as the bearing of politics upon business. Financial sentiment has thus changed sufficiently to permit encouragement being taken from incidents which would have passed unnoticed a fortnight ago.

The stock market had the support yesterday of more decidedly favorable advices regarding the probable outcome of the Moroccan situation than any previously received, and these advices were fortified by a cheerful tone in the foreign markets and by advances in the Government securities of the three powers most directly concerned in the outcome of the discussion over Morocco. Locally the announcement of an increased dividend by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company had favorable influence, particularly upon the collateral trust bonds of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, the position of whose securities is substantially modified for the better by a change in the company's revenue which enables it to give effect to the sinking fund plan which was adopted over a year ago, but which it has not been possible for the Interborough-Metropolitan Company to carry into effect until now.

Despite the caution which has been displayed in the iron trade the output for August, according to the figures compiled by The Iron Age, showed a substantial increase over July and the daily average production for the month was the largest recorded since last April. Moreover, the stocks of pig iron were reduced, and the capacity of the furnaces in blast at the close of the month was greater than at the end of July. At the same time The Iron Age reports that the price concessions which have attracted the attention of the trade in recent weeks have become more general, and The Iron Trade Review recites that new business is light. The present position of the iron trade seems to reflect accurately the fact that business is in fair volume, although it is being done under the caution which is implied in the fact that, generally speaking, commitments are being made far ahead. This is a condition which leaves the situation more open to day to day changes than during a period when business is being done with usual confidence in the general outlook. The security markets are necessarily subject to the same general consideration which are responsible for the apparent disposition of the business world to proceed under caution, as it were even though current operations are on a fairly large scale.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Tone Stronger on the Exchanges in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 6—Money was easier and discount rates were firm to-day.

The stock market continued cheerful, with an improving tendency on more confident Continental operations and local covering. All sections showed advances, with mining shares leading. Consols closed ⅛ higher.

American securities opened steady, and during the forenoon values fluctuated within narrow limits. In the afternoon the market hardened a trifle on Wall Street buying. A slight decline followed, but prices recovered in the late trading and closed steady.

Money, 1¼@1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent.; the rate of discount in the open market for three months bills is 3⅝@3⅞ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.55; at Lisbon, 7.

Paris, Sept. 6.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 80c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 26c for checks.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—A strong tone prevailed in all departments of the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 46½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅝ per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Mr. Baer and Reading.

Some traders who particularly interest themselves in the stock of the Reading Company and in its prospect for sharing some time in the future in some form of special distribution found a touch of humor in the suggestion advanced yesterday that Mr. Baer's return from abroad suggested the likelihood that the long-talked-of special distribution might be near at hand. It has been understood that as a matter of fact Mr. Baer has been opposed to certain suggestions along this line which from time to time have been tentatively advanced by other interests in the company. Some of the latter have been disposed to look upon Mr. Baer as pursuing an ultra-conservative policy with respect to allowing the stockholders of the road to share in earnings and in increases in assets which have come about in the course of the development of the property. It has been suggested several times that the commodity clause of the Hepburn law and the decisions rendered under that section of the law would be made the occasion for a resort by the Reading to some form of distribution of its coal properties, but so far nothing has occurred to bear out these rumors.

Politics and Business.

An international banker said yesterday that he did not look for a restoration of a substantial demand for securities until the country has passed through its present political disturbance. "There should be a recovery from the present dullness and low prices," he said, "but it will not be lasting, and when Congress reconvenes in December many sores will be opened again. It is an experience which the United States must go through. No matter which party is in power, the suits under the Sherman law must be carried to their conclusion, and investors will have to suffer for the well-meant efforts of the Department of Justice to right evils which were in a fair way to right themselves. The unrest this country is experiencing is not a local trouble. In Germany, the war scare has brought about a liquidation which had to come sooner or later, because values had reached a fictitious level, and France has almost ceased to buy our securities. There is a readjustment in progress all around, and perhaps the securities markets of the world will be the better for it when the end comes."

Decline in Security Issues.

The output of new railroad and industrial securities in August, according to a compilation made by The Journal of Commerce, reached the smallest total for any month in many years. The grand total was but $51,516,000, as against $129,912,000 in July and $238,397,000 in June. Compared with a year ago the August total represents a decrease of $11,936,000. This decline is not attributed to any lessening in the demand for new capital, but to the decline in the stock market and the absence of an investment demand which would insure reasonable success for an issue of good bonds. While the railroad needs are very large, the total offerings of securities of this class in August amounted to but $14,345,000, or only half the corresponding total for the preceding year. There was a larger volume of note issues than of either stocks or bonds, the figures being $6,745,000, $3,000,000, and $4,600,000, respectively. It is understood that several railroad systems have discussed the advisability of bringing out new issues and that terms had been agreed upon with the bankers who were to underwrite them, when market conditions became so unfavorable as to hold up the proposed new financing. There was a decrease in the amount of new securities authorized last month as well, stockholders having approved proposed issues of only $118,520,000, a decrease of $142,746,000 from last August.

London Stock Values Suffer Too.

The London stock market has suffered a decline commensurate at least with that through which the market here has been passing. During August the aggregate value of 387 representative securities chosen for statistical purposes by the Bankers' Magazine of London declined in market value £72,000,000, or about $365,000,000. The present values, those as of Aug. 21, the Bankers' Magazine states, are the lowest for these typical securities in "several years." The aggregate market value of the 387 securities on July 21 was £8,684,731,000, and on Aug. 21 it had shrunk to £8,611,568,000. The falling off in market values is attributed by the London authority to "the disturbing effect on American railroad securities" of unsatisfactory crop reports, and to the fact that the fall in public securities was also severe. Consols in August established the new low record of 77 11-16.

AUGUST BANK CLEARINGS.

Bank clearings at 112 leading commercial centres of the country, according to the statistics compiled by Dun's Review show a considerable improvement over the figures for August, 1910, but fail to equal the showing of the same month in 1909.

Dun's says:

Bank clearings for the month of August aggregate $12,547,373,024, an increase of 9.7 per cent. as compared with the same month last year, but a decrease of 6.7 per cent. compared with August, 1909. This is much the best comparison with last year for many months, and while there is a pronounced loss compared with two years ago, it is due almost entirely to the smaller total at New York City, good gains being reported by the majority of cities outside that centre. At many important cities the totals reported are much larger than a year ago, the gains being especially satisfactory at New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, and some other points in the East, South, and Central West, clearly reflecting improving conditions in those sections. In the New England States only moderately increasing activity, as indicated by a larger volume of bank exchanges, is apparent. The comparison at most points with 1909 is also very satisfactory. While losses, compared with last year, are still shown at a number of cities in the Middle Atlantic States, there is much evidence of improvement, the decreases in several instances not being quite so pronounced as a while ago, while numerous small gains are reported and most cities report gains over 1909. The large majority of the cities in the South Atlantic States make a favorable comparison with both years, and the few losses that are reported are more than offset by the gains, so that the total shows a large increase over both last year and 1909. In the middle South generally prosperous conditions are reflected in the larger returns than either last year or 1909 at many leading points. The exhibit by the cities in the Central States is the best for a considerable period, mainly owing to the improved showing by Chicago and a few other important points, and gains are still made over both years by the majority of cities included in the total for that section. In the West unsettled conditions are reflected in the contracted volume of bank exchanges. On the Pacific Slope the returns are favorable, the total being somewhat larger than either previous year.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Frank A. Horne, President of the Merchants' Refrigerating Company, has been made a Director of the Fidelity Trust Company.

R. M. Grant & Co., announce that Seneca D. Eldredge, who has been associated with them for seven years has become a general partner in the firm.

The Directors of the Guaranty Trust Company elected yesterday James M. Pratt Vice President and Robert H. Cox Assistant Secretary of the company.

The Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company has executed a general mortgage to the Empire Trust Company, with a deed of trust of all its property in Manhattan and the Bronx, for $50,000,000. It is to run for fifty years, and carries interest at 5 per cent.

The American Tobacco Company declared its regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock yesterday. The American Snuff Company declared the regular quarterly payment of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock and 5 per cent. and 2 per cent. extra on the common.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Better Prices at the Opening for Most Issues Yesterday.

SOME RECESSIONS LATER

Chicago Looks for a New Issue of Commonwealth Edison Stock.

After a firm opening yesterday morning which promised to carry stocks back over part of their lost ground, prices of most issues on the out-of-town Exchanges shaded off.

The Baltimore market continues to move in a dull rut, with transactions small and price changes of no importance.

The Boston market opened steady yesterday morning and the undertone continued strong throughout the early part of the session. After noon, however, realizing orders made their appearance and the early gains were lost. The volume of business was smaller on Wednesday, and there was no special feature to the trading.

People's Gas was one of the important features on the Chicago market, scoring a substantial fractional rise at the best, but easing off at the close to slightly above Tuesday's close. American Can common and preferred and Chicago Railways 2s made considerable advances. Brokers reported some demand for the bonds from investors who recently received cash for their maturing Northwestern Elevated bonds. It is expected that proposed financing of the Commonwealth Edison Company will take the form of a sale of $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 new stock at par.

There may be a special meeting of the Chicago Railways Company Directors late this month to take up important matters. There are several technical questions relating to the first mortgage and to the certificates, to the Board of Supervising Engineers, and in addition to the important matter of resumption of dividends on the Series 1 certificates. On these there is an arrearage of 18 per cent., including this year's 8 per cent. The company has the money to pay a good lump dividend to apply on the arrearage, but it may make a small declaration or none at present. This is a question which is before the Finance Committee for decision at an early date.

Further upbidding of the securities of the General Asphalt Company was the chief feature marketwise in Philadelphia yesterday. This stock responded with a jump of 2¾ points during the early hours of the day, and the preferred moved up a full 8 points. Nearly all local issues were strong. Philadelphia Electric, Tonopah Mining, Lehigh Navigation, United States Steel, Lehigh Valley, and Reading all moved up. The latter's advance was accompanied by rumors that the return of Mr. Baer from abroad would be followed by some favorable development in the property.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

More Pig Iron Furnaces in Operation and Output Much Greater.

Commenting on conditions in the iron and steel trade, the Iron Age says:

The expansion of steel works operations in August, particularly in those of the United States Steel Corporation, as shown in our blast furnace statistics for that month. The production of coke and anthracite pig iron amounted to 1,926,637 gross tons, or 62,150 tons a day, against 1,793,068 tons, or 57,841 tons a day, in July, a gain of 133,569 tons, or 4,309 tons a day. The production by steel companies last month was 47,120 tons a day, an increase of 4,648 tons a day over July, whereas the merchant furnaces produced 15,030 tons a day, or 339 tons a day less than in July.

The capacity of the 203 furnaces active Sept. 1 was 62,910 tons a day, against 59,680 tons a day for 196 furnaces on July 1. It is significant that the gain of 7 active furnaces in the month was entirely contributed by the Steel Corporation, which is also to be credited with more than 75 per cent. of last month's increase in pig iron output over that of July.

Steel ingot production of the Steel Corporation in August was 1,228,000 tons, which compares with 1,014,000 tons in July and is the high record for the year. In pig iron a record for 1911 was made also, with an output of 976,000 tons.

Concerning bookings an shipments, it is stated that those of the leading interest were greater in August than for any month of the year.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Production of coke and anthracite pig iron for August shows an increase contrasting strongly with the dullness in the pig iron market. It is noteworthy, however, that steel companies making pig iron for their own use increased their production 137,894 tons, while merchant furnaces increased only 7,203 tons.

LEATHER OUTPUT LESS.

But Expense Reductions Make Profit More Than Last Year.

The annual report of the American Hide and Leather Company for the year ended June 30 shows gross output of $15,448,241, compared with $18,271,118 in the previous year, but reductions in various items of expense made for an increase in manufacturing profit over the previous year. This item was $1,330,696, compared with $620,168 in 1910.

General and selling expenses were reduced from $520,212 to $483,820, but charges for bad debts, &c., increased from $18,454 to $28,441, leaving net earnings at $818,934, against $81,501 in 1910. Interest and sinking fund requirements were $714,678, leaving a surplus of $104,255, against the previous year's deficit of $696,590. Frank F. Baldwin was elected a Director, to succeed Carl A. D. de Gersdorff, resigned. Other Directors were re-elected.

SAGE ESTATE TO PAY EXEMPT BOND TAXES

Among the First to Register Under New Law Which Fixes Charge at One-half of 1 Per Cent.

OLD CONEY LINES INCLUDED

Also 4½ Debentures Gold and Stock Telegraph Co.—J. P. Morgan & Co. Will Register $3,000,000.

One of the first of the large holders of taxable securities to take advantage of the new law permitting exemption from all future taxation such "evidences of secured debt" as pay now a tax of one-half of 1 per cent. to the State Controller, is the Russell Sage estate.

Deputy Controller Julius Harburger in his daily report sent to State Controller William Sohmer last night showed that a considerable proportion of the day's receipts came from Mrs. Russell Sage, who paid about $1,870 to have exempted from all future taxation, whether by the State or city, $274,000 face value of securities left by the late Russell Sage. The law permits exemption from future taxation of "evidences of secured debt" which are not covered by mortgages within the State.

The first of the Sage securities presented for registration under the law and the payment of the one-half of 1 per cent. tax were $200,000 par value of the three-year 6 per cent. collateral coupon notes issued by the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad, which is the independent Brooklyn surface line run in opposition to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The other Sage security was $74,000 par value of 4½ per cent. debenture coupon bonds of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company. This is the company which has for many years operated the ticker quotation service in connection with the Western Union.

It could not be learned yesterday whether these are all of the Sage estate securities holdings which come under the new law. The exemption on such securities amounts to a considerable saving in taxation, for the same classes of securities, under the city personal tax, would have to pay 1.67 per cent. They are freed of any taxation by the city or any other municipality in the State by the payment of the new tax of one-half of 1 per cent. and registration with the State Controller.

So far only about $3,000,000 in par value all told has been reported to the office of Deputy Controller Harburger at 165 Broadway for registration, but the office force is expecting a rush of work next week.

One of the large insurance companies has been sorting out its bond holdings to find those which are not secured by mortgages registered in this State, and Deputy Controller Harburger said yesterday that he expected enough millions of bonds would come in from this source alone to keep his force counting and stamping "tax exempted" on the bonds for days.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have also notified the 165 Broadway office that they would send over soon $3,000,000 of securities to be tax exempted.

Some of the securities offered have given Edward W. Buckley, Chief Clerk of the bureau, a lot of trouble in deciding whether or not they come under the law. Included in this class were $102,000 par value of the first mortgage bonds of the New York & Erie Railroad. These are part of an issue of $2,482,000 4 per cent. bonds put out in 1847, when the road was first projected, and are first mortgage bonds.

Originally running as 7 per cent. currency bonds to 1897, they were extended to May, 1897, and then re-extended for fifty years at 4 per cent. They are described on the face of the old bond as "payable to the people of New York," and are a prior lien over all the existing liens against the assets and real, personal, or mixed property of the road or its franchises or immunities existing or accruing subsequent to the original lien. Further, these bonds, which bear the signature of Christopher Morgan as Secretary of State, are guaranteed by the State and are made payable on their face through the Controller of the State of New York, then Millard Fillmore.

The Chief Clerk could not find that the mortgage underlying the bonds had ever been registered, so he accepted the tax and stamped them exempt.

Weather in Cotton and Grain States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Following is the forecast for Thursday and Friday as issued by the United States Weather Bureau for the cotton and grain States:

INTERBORO DIVIDEND RAISED TO 10 P. C.

Of the $35,000,000 Stock Out the Inter.-Met. Holds $33,912,800.

EXTRA DIVIDEND 1 PER CENT.

The Increase Will Be Used to Establish a Sinking Fund for Retirement of Inter.-Met. 4½% Bonds.

Directors of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company surprised Wall Street yesterday by increasing the dividend on the company's stock from 9 per cent. to 10 per cent, per annum and declaring an extra dividend of 1 per cent. There had been no advance intimation of the change in the rate, although both classes of the shares were strong in the morning's trading and the Inter.-Met. 4½ per cent. bonds advanced a point before the meeting.

Of the $35,000,000 of stock on which the increased dividend will be paid, $33,912,800 is in the treasury of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, having been exchanged by the holders for the 4½ per cent. bonds on the basis of $200 in bonds for each $100 of stock.

It was announced by President Shonts that the increased dividends would be used to establish a sinking fund for the retirement of the $67,000,000 Inter.-Met. 4½ per cent. bonds. The dividend on the Interborough Rapid Transit stock was increased from 8 per cent. to 9 per cent. in 1907.

Although the increase in the operating company's dividend does not directly help the holding company's stocks, Interborough-Metropolitan common ended the day with a gain of ⅝ and the preferred with a gain of ½. The 4½ per cent. bonds made a net advance of ⅞, closing at 80⅝.

T. P. Shonts, President of both companies, made this statement to explain the increase in the Interborough's dividend:

"On June 2, 1910, a resolution was passed by the Directors of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company appropriating $300,000 annually out of any surplus income in the hands of the company after the payment of interest and taxes upon its obligations to the acquisition of its 4½ per cent. collateral trust bonds.

"These bonds are to be acquired in the open market at not exceeding par and interest, and to be turned in to the trustee of the mortgage, so as to operate as a sinking fund.

"The time now having come when the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has felt justified in increasing its dividend beyond 9 per cent. per annum heretofore paid, the Interborough-Metropolitan Company will be in a position to put in effect the declared policy of the company with respect to its 4½ per cent. bonds.

"Inasmuch as these bonds, when turned in to the trustee as additional security for the mortgage, cannot, under the terms of the resolution of June 2, 1910, be released, and will continue to draw interest, which must also be devoted to sinking fund purposes, a sum of over $40,000,000 or a larger amount if the bonds can be secured at less than par, will have been accumulated before their expiration for the purpose of paying off the $67,825,000 4½ per cent. bonds outstanding.

"Contemporaneously, by reason of the paying off of the 5 per cent. bonds of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company by the sinking fund provided for by that mortgage, the equipment of that company, now valued at $38,000,000, will have been released from that mortgage and the assets of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company will have been enhanced by a corresponding increase in the value of its stock in the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. There will remain the lease of the Manhattan Railway Company, which has been earning at a rate approximately $1,400,000 surplus to the Interborough Company."

THE COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market was strong all day, but without excitement, closing at extreme prices, with the market showing an advance of ⅝ to 1⅝c, the principal advance being in September wheat at Chicago. The Northwestern markets were strong. The news was, as a whole, more favorable to values. A good flour demand has developed in the Northwest, sales showing a material improvement the past week, with a large business reported yesterday at Minneapolis. There was good export inquiry, with sales of about thirty loads, part red Winter and part Manitoba. The receipts of wheat were fairly liberal in the Northwest, but shipments showed a large gain from Western points, particularly Chicago, indicating increased distribution from Western points of accumulation. The increase in the visible supply was 254,000 bushels for the week in the United States, with the world's total showing a decrease of 720,000 bushels compared with an increase of 2,209,000 bushels the previous week and an increase of 7,267,000 bushels last year. The European markets were generally firm, the Continent showing advances. Berlin was ½ to ⅝c and Antwerp 1¼c. advance. Russian reports were again unsatisfactory, with statements that a large amount of wheat was still in the fields in the Southwest, which is a large producing section. Private estimates of an increase of 56,000,000 bushels over last year in the French crop were made, but even with the increase the total will be less than the average French requirements. Cash wheat was higher, with the general advance in futures. No. 2 red was quoted at 98¾c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.13⅝; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.02¾, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.11. Chicago reported 500,000 bushels of hard Winter sold coast, insurance, and freight.

CORN.—The market was dull and firm, closing a little under the best, but ⅝c to ¾c net higher. The advance was due to the general strength in all grain markets, strong cash markets at the West, heavy interior shipments of corn, the total exceeding the receipts by 700,000 bushels, reports of active demand, with good export business, although the total export trade was only about twenty loads as far as reported at the seaboard. A much larger business was claimed from the interior. Foreign markets were higher. Some selling developed late on the increase of 457,000 bushels in the visible supply, a prediction by Inglis that the next Government report would show 150,000,000 bushels more than last month, and the Illinois Grain Dealers' Association estimate for that State of 88.2 against 74 by the Government last month, with a total crop promise for the State only 40,000,000 bushels under last year. Cash corn was firm with No. 2 quoted 74½c in elevator, domestic, and 74c, free on board.

OATS.—The market was quiet and firm, partially influenced by the advance in corn and wheat. Late the market showed some selling pressure, owing to the increase of 1,660,000 bushels in the visible; last year, however, the visible increased 5,972,000 bushels. Cash oats were firm and higher; standards were quoted at 45½c; No. 3 white, 48c.; No. 2 white, 49c.

PROVISIONS opened lower on the hog receipts, which were the heaviest for some time, amounting to 104,000 at Western points, and interior hog markets were 5c to 20c lower. Late the market displayed a considerably better tone, and final prices were at the best of the day.

COTTONSEED OIL.

During the early session the market was exited and strong, with a heavy volume of short covering, particularly in the near positions. There was also a good demand credited to foreign interest, but realizing sales were in large volume and at the close a fair recession occurred, with some difficulty experienced in disposing of a little September oil. Sentiment tends to grow more bearish as prices advance, but in the meanwhile crude movement continues light and is well absorbed, with the foreign situation bullish and suggesting a fair demand unless prices advance to levels detrimental to this inquiry.

COTTON.

With the exception of a brief period of hesitation at the outset, when good Liverpool cables were ignored and declines of 2 to 4 points recorded, the undertone was firm, with the tendency of values to harden and slowly advance to the close. Sentiment, however, did not improve materially with values, fresh outside buying being of small proportions and less favorable crop accounts from Alabama and Mississippi, which States are infested with insects, only served to inspire a scattered demand form shorts. The expected movement of cotton apparently tends to quiet bullish enthusiasm, but hedge pressure did not appear to be so large a volume yesterday. Receipts, while moderate, show a slight falling off, which, of course, is only expected to be temporary. Galveston will probably receive 8,000 bales to-day, against 14,000 last week and over 10,000 bales last year, while New Orleans expects about 1,000, against 3,000 last week. At all ports it is estimated that about 15,000 bales will be received, against 50,000 last week and 13,000 last year.

A report by Habersham King received prior to the opening did much to offset the better advices than anticipated from Liverpool. The assertion was that with normal conditions a record crop would be realized this season. On the other hand, The Journal of Commerce has private dispatches from the Southwest, stating that improvement to the crops in that section from recent rains was less than generally supposed. Advices to farmers from the Farmers' Union to hold cotton were again disseminated, it being promised that in the event of banks failing to loan sufficiently on the cotton held that the union could be counted on for assistance. Advices of such a character, however, are received practically every year, and their effect was not great in local sources, while at the same time disposition was still to allow for exaggeration in the bullish crop accounts coming to hand and to consider deterioration at the expense of a crop with a highly favorable promise until recently.

The weekly weather report was regarded as slightly bearish, reporting good rains in part of the Southwest and more settled conditions in the Central West. Some pressure was caused by this statement, but offerings were well absorbed, and, while predictions are for a bearish ginning report on Friday, it is not believed that it will have important market influence. Predictions are for about 600,000 bales ginned, comparing with 854,000 last year, 888,000 two years ago, and a record in 1905 of 477,000 bales.

Trade conditions are practically unchanged, although a slight improvement is noted in some sections, particularly the New England districts. Advices from the South are that demand for cotton is quiet, especially for future delivery, with immediate shipment most actively sought. Southern spot markets were irregular, ¼c. higher to 1-16c. lower. New York spot quiet, and unchanged; middlings, 12.60.

NEW COMMERCE BANK HEAD.

James S. Alexander Promoted to Presidency to Succeed V. P. Snyder.

James S. Alexander, Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce and Acting President for some time past, was elected President yesterday, to succeed Valentine P. Snyder. President Snyder retired on April 1. At the same meeting Paul Warburg was elected a Director, to succeed Jacob H. Schiff.

Like Mr. Snyder, the new President has given the best years of his life to the service of the bank, although Mr. Alexander is still a young man. He has been with the National Bank of Commerce for twenty-six of his forty-six years, having started in the lowest clerical position and worked his way up through practically every important position, save that of cashier, to that of the Presidency.

He was born in Tarrytown, and, after a public school education in the Hudson River town, entered, at 18, the service of the Tarrytown National Bank. He spent two years with that institution before coming to New York to enter the National Bank of Commerce. The bank was then on its present site, but housed in a small building. Mr. Alexander received his first office in the bank's organization when, in 1899, he was elected assistant cashier. In the Spring of 1908 he was elected Vice President. It was generally recognized as long ago as last March that he was slated to succeed Mr. Snyder.

The National Bank of Commerce passed some months ago out of the hands of the Equitable Life and Mutual Life into interests allied with the Morgan-First-National City Bank group. It is the second largest institution in the city.

TO LEASE IOWA CENTRAL.

Its President Authorized to Arrange Details with Minneapolis and St. Louis.

The Directors of the Iowa Central authorized the President of the road yesterday afternoon to appoint a committee to confer with a similar committee appointed by the President of the Minneapolis & St. Louis to arrange terms under which the former road will be leased to the Minneapolis and St. Louis. It was officially announced after the meeting that arrangements had now been made to extend the Iowa Central to St. Louis and the Minneapolis & St. Louis to the Canadian border, giving the new Hawley-Erb group a through route from Canada to the Gulf.

An understanding has been reached whereby both the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific will connect with the new extension to the Minneapolis & St. Louis. There will be no merger or consolidation of the Canadian Northern and the Minneapolis & St. Louis, as reported. Such an arrangement cannot be perfected under the law.

It was denied by one of the interests engaged in working out the new Canada-to-Gulf route that completion of these plans depended upon the acceptance of the reciprocity agreement by the Dominion. It was said that the extensions would be built regardless of Canada's action on the agreement and one or both of the Canadian roads would obtain an entrance into Minneapolis.

The two Hawley roads operate over 1,500 miles. When the projected extensions, which were decided upon following the entrance of Newman Erb to the Hawley boards, are completed, the system will operate a north and south line from the wheat fields of the Canadian Northwest to Galveston. With the opening of the Panama Canal the Hawley-Erb route is expected to get a large amount of export grain business.

Gauge of Ale, Sloe Gin, and Jamaica Rum Is Upheld by the Board.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has made a decision adverse to the claims of G. L. Battle regarding the gauge of ale, sloe gin, and Jamaica rum. The Appraiser reported that in returning the gauge of the ale he adopted the conventional gauge of twelve and one-half fluid ounces per bottle, and that the gauge of the gin and rum was ascertained by actual measurement. The protestant took exception to the payment of duty on the goods on the ground that the gauge was excessive.

In overruling the protest, Judge Somerville says that at the time of the hearing the witness who appeared for the importer could give no evidence of his own knowledge concerning the gauge of the goods in question; beyond the mere statement that the Treasury Department had reduced the gauge of the brand of ale concerned. According to the General Appraiser nothing is found in the record to disturb the action of the Collector, which, the decision holds, is presumptively correct. The protest is overruled.

Arnold, Hoffman & Co. and other importers scored a customs victory when the board handed down a ruling relative to the classification of iron drums, otherwise known as cylindrical metal coverings. They were assessed at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem as "unusual" coverings. The importers set up the contention that they are the "usual" coverings for the merchandise which they contain. It was alleged that either free entry should be granted, or in lieu of that, that the coverings should be allowed to enter at the same ad valorem rates as their contents. The protest for free entry is sustained.

The American Shipping Company failed to convince the board that importations of human hair are free of duty. The merchandise was assessed for duty at 20 per cent. ad valorem as human hair cleaned, whereas the importer maintained that free entry should be accorded as the commodity has been neither cleaned nor drawn. Judge Somerville says that as the importers failed to substantiate their claim, the protest must be overruled. Claims by A. & H. Veith regarding the classification of paste jewelry ornaments were sustained in the main. The Leoder & Bernkopf Company made certain claims relative to the classification of imitation precious stones, but as they failed to appear at the time set for the hearing the claims were overruled.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Ande Realty Company Buys Upper Lexington Avenue Corner for Speculation—West Side Apartments Sold to Investor—New Bronx Borough Auction Room Opened.

An important transaction on the upper east side, where there has been considerable activity since work was begun on the Lexington Avenue subway, was the purchase of the southeast corner of Eighty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue yesterday by the Ande Realty Company.

The property, which was bought for speculation from the Henry Schiffer estate, consists of three five-story flats and a three-story and basement dwelling known as 1,271, 1,273, and 1,275 Lexington Avenue, and 142 East Eighty-sixth Street. It has a frontage of 122.4 on the avenue and 62.3 on the street, and has been held by the estate for over thirty years. John J. Cody negotiated the sale.

William W. McLaughlin, President of the Ande Realty Company, has great faith in property in and adjacent to Lexington Avenue, and predicts a rapid rise in values in the Yorkville section especially, as soon as the subway work is further advanced.

Investor Buys West Side Apartment.

Earle & Calhoun have sold to a client for investment 272 and 276 West Ninety-fourth Street, a five-story apartment on a plot 45 by 64.8.

Bronx.

Mrs. William McCaffery has sold through John A. Warch the northwest corner of Honeywell Avenue and West Street, a plot 63 by 85, to Philip Kauffman. The buyer will break ground at once for the erection of an apartment house.

Philip Kauffman has sold 1,110 Starling Avenue, a two-family house, on lot 21 by 95.

Charles E. Cathie has sold the southeast corner of College Avenue and 168th Street, a plot 200 by 100, for C. F. Dilberger.

Brooklyn.

Galitzka & Co. have sold for the Asams Realty and Development Company to M. Callaghan, a two-story and cellar two-family brick house, 248 Sixty-first Street.

Staten Island.

Cuozzo & Gagliano Company have sold for the Caesar Realty and Construction Company to clients five lots at the corner of Burgher and Remsen Avenues, Linden Park, Garretson, Staten Island, on which the purchasers are going to build two up-to-date dwellings for their own occupancy.

New Jersey.

David Kraus has sold for a client the property 957 Garfield Avenue, Jersey City.

Bradish Johnson of Islip, N. Y., has bought from Mary F. Neumahn the corner of Fourth Street, Bayonne, a residence, on a plot 109 by 126; from Schuyler L. Mackie four lots on the west side of Zabriskie Avenue, near West Third Street, and from Franklin Dobson a plot 25 by 100, adjoining.

Long Island.

Daniel P. Ritchey and E. H. Antes have sold for the Copaig Land Company sixty-four and three-tenths acres on the Merrick Road, near Great Neck Road, Suffolk County, to a client. The property was known as the Murphy farm, and the price paid was approximately $500 per acre.

Bronx Auction Room Opened.

The first auction sale under the new law requiring foreclosure sales of Bronx property to be held in the borough was held yesterday at the legally assigned place, 3,156 Third Avenue. There was a large attendance and a modest attempt at a formal opening. James L. Wells presided and read the court order under which the new system was inaugurated. The first sale was held by Auctioneer Samuel Marx. The property sold was a two-story frame dwelling at 3,081 Hull Avenue, on lot 25 by 110. It went to the plaintiff, Emma Keller, for $7,654.

Van Cortlandt Partition Suit.

As a result of partition proceedings which have been begun several large tracts of land in the neighborhood of Van Cortlandt Park and the Jerome Park Reservoir and near the Van Cortlandt Park terminus of the Subway may be opened up for development.

The properties covered by a lis pendens filed in the County Clerk's office are the following:

A tract of about nineteen and a half acres at the northeast corner of Albany Road and 238th Street.

The greater part of four blocks lying south of Van Cortlandt Park and east of Van Cortlandt Avenue and intersected by Bailey, Gouverneur, and Norman Avenues, in all an area of eighteen and a half acres.

A block, containing about three and a half acres, between Sedgwick Avenue and the Jerome Park Reservoir.

A plot, measuring 1,310 by 40 feet, at the southeast corner of 238th Street and Albany Road.

In the partition suit Augustus Van Courtlandt, Jr., is plaintiff and James L. Van Alen and others defendants.

New West Side Apartments.

Plans have been filed by the Brixton Construction Company, Edward S. Buckner, President, for the construction of a nine-story apartment house at 314 to 320 West Eighty-seventh Street. The building will cover a plot 80 by 84, and will have a façade of brick, limestone, and terra cotta. According to the architects, Rouse & Goldstone, the cost will be $290,000.

White Rats To Build Home.

The White Rats of America, an organization composed of vaudeville artists, are going to build a seven-story clubhouse on the north side of Forty-sixth Street, near Broadway, and just west of the Globe Theatre.

A long lease has been secured on a frontage of 75 feet, and work on the new building will be begun on Dec. 1. The White Rats Realty Company has just been incorporated to handle the operation.

Leases.

Hornor & Co., Inc., have leased for Mrs. G. M. Cumming her property on Broadway, Irvington, N. Y., consisting of a large house, garage, and other outbuildings.

Leonard J. Muhlfelder has leased for Eliza Guggenheimer 10,000 feet at 715 to 717 Broadway to a clothing concern; also the following: For Frank G. Ormsby the second loft at 36 East Twenty-second Street; for the Venus Hat Company the fourth loft at 158 to 160 Greene Street; for John J. Radley the fourth loft at 35 Great Jones Street; for Andrew F. Murray the fifth loft at 204 to 206 Greene Street; for Max Goebel the third loft at 62 Grand Street; for the estate of Leopold Peck the fifth loft at 42 West Fifteenth Street.

Edgar A. Manning has leased for a term of years for I. J. Mayer to Guiry, milliner, now located on West Thirty-third Street, the westerly store in the building 15 West Forty-fifth Street.

The Ernestus Gulick Company has leased a suite of offices on the twelfth floor of the Putnam Building, 2 West Forty-fifth Street, for Thomas A. Sperry to the New York Realty Credit Association, which is now located at 29 Park Place. The lease is for a term of years.

H. C. Senior & Co. have leased for the estate of Selah R. Van Duzer the four-story dwelling 13 West Ninetieth Street to Mary Stajer; for Hooper C. Barrett the four-story dwelling 133 West Sixty-fourth Street to Albert G. Carling; for Janet Forsheim the store at 1,860 Lexington Avenue to J. Rusterholz.

Breunig & Jaeger have leased to a client the northeast corner of Gouverneur Place and Park Avenue, Bronx, for a long term of years.

Notes.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company announces that it has withdrawn from the management of the Heidelberg Building, Broadway, Forty-second Street, and Seventh Avenue.

The House and Real Estate Owners' Association will meet on Friday evening at New York Turn Hall, Eighty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has loaned to the Fox-Hall Realty Company a first mortgage of $50,000 on the store and theatre property located on the north side of Oliver Place and west side of Webster Avenue. The mortgage is for three years at 5 per cent.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET

awaiting those who delight to live amid refined and picturesque surroundings.

These exceptionally located plots command magnificent views of bay, and sea, and are a part of beautiful

Brightwaters

BAYSHORE, L. I.

Known as "The Venice of Long Island," this irresistibly attractive suburban home community combines the comforts of the city with every recreative feature that sea and land can furnish.

As desirable as these water front plots are, they are all moderately priced. Favorable terms will be made with those who wish to build this fall.

The New "Nineteen-Fifties" in the "Bungalow Gardens" are just the thing for families who want a Summer in the country, at little expense. Each perfect little home contains large living room with fancy brick fireplace, dining room, three sleeping rooms, closets and ample storage rooms, modern bathroom, kitchen with range, hot and cold water, sink, laundry tub, etc.; tastily decorated; have screens, shades and electric fixtures; cellar; roomy verandas, lawn seeded and graded, and sidewalks to front and side of houses. Plots 50x150 feet. PRICE $1,950. A little cash, balance like rent, buys one.

Larger Bungalows at $2,250 and $2,350

Readers of THE TIMES are invited to visit "BRIGHTWATERS" as our guests. Write or 'phone Murray Hill 3204 for reservations.

192 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

OCEAN FRONT AT A BARGAIN

15 ACRES ON FIRE ISLAND

Beautifully situated on Fire Island, opposite Patchogue, a 15-acre tract of land with a frontage of 500 feet on the ocean, extending across the island about 1,100 feet, with a frontage of 500 feet on the Great South Bay. It is a splendid proposition for subdivision. Considered a bargain at $50 per front foot for the entire tract. Other properties in the vicinity have sold for this price. Will sell to immediate purchaser for $20 PER FRONT FOOT, $10,000 ON A PAYMENT OF $5,000 CASH, THE BALANCE OF $5,000 IN THREE YEARS, WITH INTEREST AT 6 PER CENT., WITH RELEASE CLAUSES.

The property will cut up into about 180 TWENTY-FIVE FOOT LOTS, which should sell on an average of $500 each, which would total about $90,000. This is the prevailing price of lots on Fire Island. This price will hold good until October 1st. Full commission paid to brokers. Inquire of owner.

The BELNORD

BROADWAY TO AMSTERDAM AVENUE

Eighty-sixth to Eighty-seventh Street

¶ An apartment in the Belnord means more than merely a suite of rooms.

¶ Besides the advantages of location, of peace and quiet, and of highly efficient service, each apartment includes every modern device for extra comfort and convenience.

¶ For instance: Self-cooling refrigerators, vacuum cleaning systems, wall safes, and fireproof storage rooms go with each suite.

¶ Every room in the Belnord is an outside room. Those on the inner sides of the building look on to Belnord Court, a miniature park with walks, grass plots, shrubs and fountains. The building covers an entire city block, and is 12 stories high. It is the largest apartment house in existence.

¶ Suites contain from 7 to 11 rooms and yearly rentals are from $2,400 up. Reservations can now be made for October 1st.

A Riverside Drive Opportunity

¶ Two apartments, (ten rooms and three baths each,) in one of the new highest class apartment buildings on Riverside Drive will be vacated October 1st. To people of unquestionable references, I am authorized to offer them at very low rents, if taken at once, as it is desired for particular reasons to rent them immediately. It is unusual to have a vacancy in this building.

¶ The apartments can be leased for between three and four thousand dollars per annum. They are worth much more. If interested, write me at once and I will personally give location and rents.

Finding a Better Position

¶ Work in which there is no joy and which is not in line with certain capabilities—retards development and progress.

¶ Positions where aptitude and fitness are demanded and rewarded are within the reach of the wide-awake employes who read the Help Wanted Advertisements in The New York Times and take advantage of the opportunities offered.

¶ If you do not find the position you seek advertised as soon as you like, an advertisement in the Situations Wanted columns may bring about the opportunity. Both ways are productive of results.
